NATO Allies Pledge $1 Billion Outlay for European Defense

BRUSSELS (AP) — Ten European members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization announced plans today to spend about $1 billion in European defense over the next five years, in addition to the $24 billion a year they are spending now.

The 10 NATO members said their decision was made "on the basis that the United States, whose forces in Europe are of critical political and military significance for the common security of the whole NATO area, would for its part maintain those forces at substantially current levels."

The defense ministers of the 10 nations, presenting their plan to U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, called it a "special and wide-ranging European defense program."

Also on the agenda for the meeting today of NATO's defense planning committee was a general defense plan for the 1970s—a new document known as AD-70—drawn to chart how the Atlantic alliance will meet the challenge of the Soviet Union and its allies during the decade.

As NATO's annual four-day winter meeting went into its second day, the leaders of the seven Warsaw Pact nations were gathering in East Berlin, seeking to agree on a common position toward the overtures of the West German government for better relations with Eastern Europe.

The extra effort agreed on by the 10 European allies, to be spread over five years, is only a start, NATO Secretary-General Manlio Brosio told newsmen. But the Europeans felt that the program at least displays a willingness to share some of the extra load being borne by the Americans. They hope it will give the Nixon administration ammunition to use against demands in the U.S. Congress for a reduction in the 295,000 American troops in Europe.

Laird said on his arrival in Brussels Wednesday night that he was not familiar with the entire package, but "we are very pleased our European allies are recognizing the importance of changes as far as the whole question of burden sharing."

The 10-nation program calls for:

—Setting up an integrated military communications system and a network of air raid shelters for aircraft. This is to cost at least $420 million, but a snag has arisen because Britain is refusing to contribute cash.

—An increase of $450 million to $500 million in operational and capital expenses by the individual European allies.

—A gift by West Germany to Turkey of 16 new transport planes costing $79 million.

West Germany will bear about half of the total cost of the package, and West German Defense Minister Helmut Schmidt pressed Britain to contribute about $90 million in cash over the next five years for the communications system and the aircraft shelters.

Britain's Lord Carrington refused, since his government is trying to cut costs. He said Britain already bears a relatively heavy share of the military burden and is increasing its contribution to NATO about $366 million over the next 10 years by keeping the aircraft carrier Ark Royal operational and by supplying more fighter squadrons and a new reserve unit.

British refusal to spend more could influence some of the smaller countries to hold up their contributions.

In addition to Britain and West Germany, participants in the package are Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Norway, Denmark, Greece and Turkey.

France takes almost no part in NATO military activities, and Portugal can't participate because it is fighting rebels in its African territories. Iceland makes no direct military contribution to the alliance.

Expanded Air Attacks Indicate Tougher Policy Toward Hanoi

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has expanded its policy on air attacks against North Vietnam in what appears to be a deliberate strategy of increasing pressure on the enemy while continuing U.S. troop withdrawals.

Officials report a toughening attitude by administration leaders toward North Vietnam over the past months. The reasons appear to include frustration over lack of progress in the Paris Peace talks, the prisoner of war issue, and a determination to prevent Hanoi from taking advantage of declining American troop strength in Southeast Asia.

The United States ended bombing of North Vietnam Oct. 31, 1968 and until earlier this year air strikes against the North were explained as retaliation for attacks on unarmed U.S. reconnaissance planes.

In recent months, however, Defense Department spokesmen have expanded the reasons to include "protective reaction" against North Vietnamese rocket batteries firing at planes over neighboring Laos, interdiction of supplies moving down to South Vietnam, Cambodia or Laos and retaliation for terror shellings of South Vietnamese cities.

Furthermore, officials privately confirm the policy of expanding retaliatory strikes when possible to include other targets in the general area to destroy supply buildups.

Officials have also made clear that American combat planes flying protection for bombers operating against enemy positions in Laos can fire at missile bases in North Vietnam when they detect enemy radar locking on the bomber.

Neither President Nixon nor his spokesmen have pulled all these reasons together into any formal new policy statement on bombing the North.

And no responsible informant in the administration suggests that Nixon has any intention of resuming the bombings President Lyndon B. Johnson finally brought to an end after bitter and sometimes violent public controversy.

On the other hand, those familiar with the President's thinking on his broad policy of withdrawal from combat in Southeast Asia say he is following simultaneously two principles.

One is Vietnamization, involving replacement of withdrawing U.S. forces by American trained, armed, and financed South Vietnamese forces.

The other principle is sometimes expressed by insiders as "don't let the enemy take us for granted."

Together these principles mean that from time to time Nixon can be expected to strike heavy blows against enemy positions in Southeast Asia, including North Vietnam, depending on what actions Hanoi itself takes.

In practical terms Nixon is said to be determined to keep the North Vietnamese from taking important military advantage of the situation while the United States withdraws and turns the battle over to the South Vietnamese.

The basic policy line was set forth by Nixon in a speech last April 30 to which some diplomatic officials now direct attention.

He accused the North Vietnamese of intransigence in the peace negotiations, "massive military aggression" in Laos and Cambodia and an increase in attacks in South Vietnam to raise the American casualty rate.

He then said:

"I again warn the North Vietnamese that if they continue to escalate the fighting when the United States is withdrawing its forces I shall meet my responsibility as commander in chief of our armed forces to take the action that I consider necessary to defend the security of our American men."

Almost immediately Nixon's words were reinforced by action. The North Vietnamese had shot down a plane escorting a U.S. reconnaissance plane, which also was damaged.

By May 4 about 500 U.S. fighters and bombers carried out what the Defense Department called "protective reaction strikes" against North Vietnam.

Two weeks ago a second massive raid was carried out against North Vietnamese targets after a lapse of six months. Again an American plane had been shot down and a series of U.S. raids resulted on Nov. 20-21.

Then on Nov. 30 a U.S. pilot flying patrol on the Laos-North Vietnamese border attacked a missile site in North Vietnam after determining through his electronic gear that it was tracking an American combat plane over Laos.

There was a similar attack last September on a North Vietnamese radar-controlled antiaircraft missile base. And last August the U.S military headquarters in Saigon announced a Navy plane carried out a "protective reaction" attack against a North Vietnamese antiaircraft missile base in southern North Vietnam.

Some informed officials agree these strikes, ranging from single plane to 500-plane actions, define the slow development of a policy which could stop where it is, revert to only punitive attacks for shooting down reconnaissance aircraft, or expand further into frequent selective operations against North Vietnamese positions.

Two Accused in Station Burglary

NEW MADRID — Two Portageville youths Billy Blanchard, 17, and Mike Foster, 18, were arraigned Tuesday on charges of burglary and larceny and felonious assault before magistrate judge Leo Hedgepeth.

Blanchard is charged in two cases of burglary and larceny in connection with the Nov. 24 double burglary of Ray's Standard Service Station at highway 162 and Portageville I-55 overpass.

The pair is accused of felonious assault Sunday against Jerry Wayne Tinnin, who it is reported knew about the burglary, at the station.

Foster is charged with the second breakin at the station when knives and cigarettes valued at $100 were stolen.

Bonds of $5,000 each were set for Blanchard and Foster on all charges, pending obtaining counsel and appearance Monday in magistrate court.

A third youth, J. C. Walls, charged with burglary and larceny in the first breakin of the station when $17 in cash was taken, is being sought.

Enlarged Food Mart Opens

The grand opening of Marks and Stearnes Food Mart continues a partnership of two men, who have 61 years in the food business.

Enlargement of the food mart at 700 North Main, was necessary by increased patronage. The store opened Aug. 28, 1963.

The partners are Roy Marks and Charles Stearnes.

The original building was increased from 66 by 88 feet to 85 feet by 118 feet. There is a large parking lot.

Departments enlarged: the meat and dairy departments more than doubled; The shelving area, increased one and One-half times; the frozen food department, more than doubled.

There are wide aisles, 12 or more feet.

Added at the rear of the building is an anti smog furnace that burns all discarded items except metal. The new unit, which passes all state regulations for air pollution, is five feet wide and 35 feet high. The furnace destroys fly ash and eliminates smoke.

Marks began his career as butcher for the Kroger company in 1946, and worked in Illinois cities. He came to Charleston as a Korger manager in 1954, where he remained one year. He then came to Sikeston, where he remained another three years with Kroger.

In 1957 Marks purchased the old Boston grocery store, across from the highway department building.

Stearnes began his career in Sikeston as a butcher for Kroger stores on Front street and Malone on May 2, 1933.

After serving the two stores for 28 years, he became a partner in the Boston store, Aug. 1, 1960, beginning the partnership.

THE DEANS OF MARKS AND STEARNES FOOD MART are, Roy Marks, left, and Charles Stearnes, owners of the enlarged store at, 700 Main St.

Reds Unleash Heavy Siege Of Shellings

SAIGON (AP) — Communist gunners unleashed a series of shelling attacks up and down South Vietnam Tuesday night, firing rockets and mortars into three air bases, three provincial capitals and two district towns.

It was one of the biggest nights for the enemy gunners in two months. Allied military spokesmen said over-all casualties and damage were light. But an unspecified number of Americans was killed at the big Cam Ranh Bay air base 193 miles northeast of Saigon, and more Americans were wounded at the Phu Cat air base 100 miles up the coast from Cam Ranh Bay.

Enemy rockets also hit Holloway air field in the central highlands, where both U.S. and South Vietnamese personnel are stationed; the provincial capitals of Pleiku City and Ban Me Thuot in the central highlands and Quang Ngai on the central coast, and two district towns in the Mekong Delta.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said there were no casualties or damage at Holloway field, but two Vietnamese civilians were killed and 16 were wounded in the attacks on the cities and towns.

Quotas on Shoe Imports Reinstated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee has ended work on foreign trade legislation by voting for import quotas on shoes.

The vote Tuesday brought into agreement Senate and House versions on the most sensitive provisions of the protectionist bill which is expected to reach the Senate floor within two weeks.

The committee vote was 9 to 8 in favor of quotas on imported shoes. The tentative vote taken Monday was 8 to 6 against such restrictions, but three senators who were absent—Albert Gore of Tennessee, Vance Hartke of Indiana and Harry F. Byrd Jr. of Virginia—voted for quotas.

As a result, the bill limits imports of shoes and woolen and synthetic textiles to the 1967-69 average with increases of no more than 5 per cent a year after 1971.

Although most attention has been focused on the bill's quota system, the Senate and House versions still differ on tax breaks for U.S. exporters and on a series of tests to trigger relief for industries damaged by imports.

Approximately 50 percent of all physically fit males between 15 and 49 years of age in South Vietnam are in military service.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
STORY WITH A HAPPY ENDING

With the national and international news so filled today with unpleasant events, it does the heart good to note one dispatch with a very happy ending.

On a cold, wet, rainy day just outside Petersburg, West Virginia, a car bearing Mr. David Urey of McLean, Virginia; his wife, Donna, four months pregnant; and his 2- year- old son, slid off the road and rolled down a steep embankment. His wife critically injured and his son unconscious, Urey crawled up the bank to the highway and tried to flag down a car. None would stop until finally a man in a pickup truck stopped, took the small boy to the nearest house he could find and called for help, while Urey remained in the rain with his wife.

But when medical help did arrive, it was found that Mrs. Urey was so badly hurt- with fractures in her spine and skull- that she would need the immediate care of a neurosurgeon if she was to live. But the nearest help was at least 75 miles away, and it was feared that she would not survive the long ride.

Urey telephoned for helicopter service- but none would fly in the storm. Finally, he called Andrews Air Force Base, where he was told that they had a helicopter available, but that they didn't have the authority to fly; it was the President's.

So Urey called the White House, where he reached Mr. Nixon's chief military attache, who said he would call back. In fifteen minutes the call was returned with the message that the aircraft was on its way with a doctor and medical corpsman.

In a flash they were whisked to the flare- lighted football field at Georgetown University where doctors and nurses waited in the rain.

Recently - five months after the accident — David Urey drove home from Georgetown University Hospital with Donna, now well, and his brand- new, nine- pound baby boy, to join their two- year- old, now a healthy "grown- up" three.

David Urey knows that he is not only a lucky man, but that the happy ending to what would have been a tragic story was made possible through the help of many people, all the way from the driver of a pickup truck to the office of the President.

WE'VE COME A LONG WAY

It was considerably less than 100 years ago that the rule of consumer merchandising was: "Let the buyer beware!" You paid your dollar (worth considerably more than now) and you took your chances. But by the turn of the century, and particularly after World War I, growing competition forced manufacturers to make a radical change in policy — and how far we have come from then can be seen in the great lengths to which some companies now go to keep customers happy - not just before they buy, but long after the original purchase was made. This is reflected in simplified warranties, centralized handling of consumer complaints, improved labeling practices, more quality control testing. Firms such as Corning Glass Works have pioneered shortened and simplified language in warranties, spelling out precisely the guarantee for parts and labor when and if service repairs are required.

But what if something still goes wrong in spite of everything? After all, there is nothing perfect on earth— including newspapers!

That's when it is important for the consumer to know when a company will stand behind its product and what kind of service to expect— and that's where responsible business firms go the extra mile. If, for example, you should purchase one of those new- fangled "Counter That Cooks" cooktops or other Corning appliances, and anything should go wrong, the company has set up an authorized service system with trained, independent repair services throughout the country. These are local people, who are paid prevailing labor rates by Corning for any repair made on its product in warranty. Every woman knows how frustrating it can be for a stove or a range to go out, and it is good to know that the appliance can be serviced regardless of where the homemaker may live or move.

No other "system" in history has provided so much to the people as that which we have in the United States today. Those who attack and say that they must "destroy the system" are not only wrong; they are apparently blind to the real world which is about them.

FLU SHOT TIME

If you were down with the flu last winter your body may have built up an immunity that will protect you this time around. But don't count on it. If you've had or plan a flue shot, that might also help keep you healthy. But don't count on that either. Will this be a bad year for flu? "We simply don't know," says Dr. Alan Brodsky of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta. The U.S. Public Health Service has decided against making a prediction.

All these uncertainties point up the fact that medicine has only an imperfect understanding of influenza viruses and what will stop them. Several varieties have been isolated and several vaccines are available. But the vaccine for one type -- says the relatively mild B variety -- is useless against the others, like the virulent Hong Kong strain of the Asian flu variety. Polyvalent vaccines offer protection against several strains but in reduced measure. None of the vaccines is any good once you have the flu. The approved cure is still as simple as it is unsatisfactory: aspirin, bed rest and time.

Despite the drawbacks, flu shots are advised at this time of year, especially for the aged and infirm. Worldwide, the flue claims thousands of persons in these categories each year. Thanks to antibiotics, which reduce the danger of secondary complications, it is unlikely there will ever be another pandemic like the one in 1918-19 which claimed an estimated 20 million lives.

The search for an effective anti- flu agent is now shifting to chemotherapy. Science News reports (Aug. 22, 1970) that tilorone hydrochloride, known as inteferon, may some day provide a first line of defense against most virus diseases, just as antibiotics are effective against bacterial diseases. Soviet researcher Dr. A. A. Smorodintsev, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association (Aug. 31, 1970), reports that the drug amantadine hydrochloride was 51 per cent effective in preventing artifically induced A2 influenza in 404 volunteer medical students. These developments offer hope -- but a sure- fire preventative and cure for influenza still appears years away.

THE SCENT OF BONDAGE

A unique advertisement over the name of an investor-owned power company has appeared in Western Farm Life. It contains no word about electric energy, nor does it discuss rates, taxes, or the invasion of private business by government competition or bureaucratic regulation. It talks about wild horses, and it is entitled "The Free Breed." However, only the extremely myopic will miss the point

Speaking of the wild horse, it says, "There still lives a breed unvanquished and untempted by the relief of surrender. Efforts to tame it have only made it more wary and wise to the ways of oppressors. The scent of their bondage has only made the smell of freedom sweeter to its nostrils. Again and again it has tossed off their frayed fetters with a proud snort of contempt, and it has eluded their dogged pursuit like a mocking phantom. The free breed survives on the instincts created and strengthened by the relentless threat of subjection. Only when the memory of that threat fades does the smell of freedom seem stale. Hopefully, one day that memory will be strong enough that it needn't be revived by danger."

The people of the Unites States have lived in freedom and security for so long that they have become amenable to strictures and controls that would have been unacceptable a few years ago. Like the wild horse, we have been a free breed, but if the time comes when we can no longer distinguish between the scent of bondage and the smell of freedom, we may find ourselves wearing a halter with a lead rope fast in the iron grip of government. Many of the controls that are proposed today in the name of such things as electric power reliability, economic security, safety and law and order, have the smell of danger to those who value freedom.

DEFINING CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTION

Conscientious objection has been a legitimate, if not always an approved, method of avoiding combat service in every American war. Until this century, COs with enough money could provide a substitute or pay a commutation fee. In World War I, anyone receiving CO status was exempt from bearing arms but not from serving in a medical or other capacity with the armed forces. During World War II, those who "by reason of religious training or belief" opposed war could avoid all military service. In the Universal Military Training Act of 1948, CO classification was limited to "an individual's belief in relation to a Supreme Being." On June 15, the U.S. Supreme Court broadened the qualifications for conscientious objection. In a 5-3 decision, the Court reaffirmed its unanimous 1965 judgment that non-theistic ethical or moral opposition to war was as valid a reason for CO classification as traditional religious belief.

In issuing guidelines to local draft boards early this month, Selective Service Director Curtis Tarr specified that "the primary test... is a test of sincerity... The belief upon which conscientious objection is based must be the primary controlling factor in a man's life." Applicants also must demonstrate a foundation for their belief in "training, study, contemplation, or other activities." The educated are thus at a distinct advantage in applying for CO status. In an attempt to clarify the new draft rules, the Practicing Law Institute will hold its second two- day seminar for lawyers active in defending conscientious objectors. Col. Roy Bartlett of the Selective Service System will address the attorneys in Boulder, Colo., beginning Thursday, July 30.

Historically, about 1 per cent of eligible Americans have applied and qualified for CO status and at least 50 per cent of these have served with the armed forces in a non- combat capacity. As opposition to the Viet Nam war has grown, the number of COs has increased at the same time that local draft boards have made it more difficult for young men to obtain these exemptions. COs now comprise about 4 per cent of the 900,000 men classified 1-A. While the number of CO applicants and appeals is expected to increase with the Supreme Court ruling, Selective Service personnel are sure that the increases will be manageable. The real problem will come in the fall, when the Court is expected to decide whether men who object to a particular war-- but not to all wars -- are eligible for CO classification.

THE NEEDS OF THE INDUSTRY

The public interest requires that tomorrow's railroads be thoroughly modernized-- not only to expand capacity but to improve performance. But high quality service and impoverished railroads are not natural companions.

Between 1970 and 1980, more than $36 billion must be spent on plant and equipment. This greatly exceeds the entire net investment in the railroad industry today.

Almost half the targeted amount-- $18.6 billion-- should go for new and rebuilt freight cars. A beefed- up locomotive program will cost another $5.9 billion. Rail and tie replacements and other roadway needs will require another $11.9 billion.

The annual cash needed for these programs will go from $2.4 billion in 1970 to $4.5 billion in 1980. The average in the past three years has been less than $2 billion. And these projected figures do not take into account the effect of any possible further inflation.

DEPLORABLE 'HOLE' IN HISTORY

It doesn't happen just on television. The very newspaper you are holding in your hands will self - destruct — not in five seconds but in about 50 years.

Now the average newspaper reader may consider this to be an admirable thing, depending upon his opinion of the newspaper or the the news it prints. But it is distressing to scholars researching historical documents dating from around World War I and before to have those documents crumble before their eyes.

It seems that the nation had another information explosion about 100 years ago and the demand for more paper for books, magazines and newspapers began outrunning the supply of linen and cotton rags. It wasn't until the 1880s that a new process for making paper from chemically processed wood pulp was introduced on a commercial scale.

Unfortunately, the life expectancy of this wood -based paper was and is 50 years. By comparison, the rag paper in existing copies of the Gutenberg Bible, printed more than 500 years ago, is in nearly perfect condition.

Microfilming is one solution to the case of the disappearing documents, but this is expensive, time- consuming and, in many cases, too late.

A similar problem has afflicted the cinematography profession, reports American Heritage magazine. Masterpieces of the first 60 years of motion pictures have already disappeared because of the deterioration of the nitrate-based film they were photographed on. The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has discovered that it cannot assemble a complete file of Academy Award - winning films.

A "hole" has developed in the continuity of history between the latter part of the 19th century and our own time. A lot of valuable things will be lost through that hole before it is plugged.

Whenever anyone tells you that the modern homemaker has it easy compared with grandmother, don't you believe it. The Department of Labor claims that there are well over 20 million working women today. Three out of five are married, and more than 10 million have children under 18.

That means that at least half of our working gals have a double - work schedule that would have staggered grandma. One set of statistics says that in addition to the time spent on the job and traveling to and from it, today's working mothers put in an average of 5.3 hours per day on housekeeping and with childcare.

Might make you think today's career woman looked like a harried drudge. Not so. Grandma would have gasped, no doubt, over miniskirted moms with frosted hair and false eyelashes, but she would have applauded the freedom of spirit, ease of movement, and lack of pretense shown by today's young homemakers.

Another surprising note is the amount of home sewing that is done today. According to the sewing machine industry, nearly half of all homes in the country own an electric sewing machine.

Some 41 million women sew at home, and 55 percent of them are under 40 years of age. In fact, a recent survey shows that 85 percent of our teenagers love to sew — in 1968 they made more than 82 million items for themselves.

Incidentally, if you are one of the homemakers who starts half a dozen things at one time when you houseclean, don't let anyone say you are being inefficient.

It now turns out that household fatigue is caused by sticking at one task too long a time. Experts now recommend that you vary your tasks frequently. For example, iron or sew for 15 minutes, then dust a room or two, or make a bed, then come back to ironing for another 15 minutes or so. You'll have less fatigue that way.

Stopping for a short bit of exercise or a good stretch is healthy for muscles and nerves, too. Loosening up neck and shoulder tension makes you feel better and your work easier.

PROTECTING THE CONSUMER

The president of a large food processing concern has expressed some timely thoughts on the consumer protectionism movement. He declares, "I believe that business accepts the fact of deeper involvement by government in consumer affairs. I regret, however, that this involvement is being lumped under the heading of consumer protectionism. First of all, protectionism, by definition, assumes the presence of an adversary. When legislation is enacted to protect the consumer, the adversary becomes the producer, or supplier -- in short, business. Furthermore, legislation and regulation in the consumer's interests implies that business has been remiss in its responsibilities and that government has had to step in as the agency of last resort."

This food industry leader rightly believes that the best way to protect consumers -- and the businessman -- is to appreciate that both have a common objective, and that the objective can best be reached by a course of moderation rather than harassment. He believes that differences should be worked out before consumer protective regulation or legislation is formally proposed. Above all, he believes the best form of consumer protectionism is in the area of information wthat will help consumers make intelligent buying decisions.

As the food industry spokesman points out, "If we work together toward a more informed public, I feel certain that much of the legislation and regulation of the kinds now being proposed would be unnecessary and even distasteful .... " His proposals suggest a way toward both protecting the consumer and preserving the free market, which of itself is the greatest protection the consumer has.

RAILS WELL FITTED TO COMPETE MORE EFFECTIVEL SAYS MENK

LOUIS W. MENK, president of the Northern Pacific Railway, in a recent edition of Progressive Railroading magazine, expressed the following viewpoint about the railroad industry:

"I believe the railroad industry has now approached a point where it can capitalize on the progress of the past five years in modern management and operating techniques, research and marketing programs and its wide - spread adoption of electronics to move freight traffic more efficiently and with greater speed.

"Never in the past decade has the industry been as well fitted to compete more effectively with other modes of transportation and should in 1969 and in succeeding years recapture a growing share of the total transportation market."

BLAZERS HEAD THE LEAGUE IN FASHION TRENDS: How much better all those traveling athletic teams look now that they're wearing handsome blazers with colorful crests of the team's theme. It's a growing custom in many sports, and a big sartorial improvement ... In double - breasted jackets and suits, the six - button, one -to -button model may be the next big fashion, according to the Men's Fashion Association. It shapes up as a red, white and blue year in men's fashions. The three complimentary colors go well for Spring and Summer.

RED ROVER ON THE MOON

Russia's "Red Rover" mobile moon machine is hard at work, or will be when its batteries are recharged, prowlin the Sea of Rains and gathering lunar specimens for analysis. Moscow proudly trumpets its accomplishment of successfully rocketing the unmanned Lunokhod 1 to the cold surface of our space neighbor and predicts that similar unmanned mobile laboratories will be projected on Mars, Mercury, and Venus.

While the Soviet feat lacks the glamour of our manned space flights to the moon, they do represent accomplishment in man's determination to learn more about space and heavenly bodies and provide information that eventually will benefit mankind on earth. Basically, the Russians remain coldly secretive about their technology in rocketry and sophistication in landing equipment. But their have been a few chinks in the scientific blackout of outer space effort. Their cosmonauts have visited in this country and our astronauts have made trips to Russia.

Perhaps, it is too much to hope that some day there will be a vital exchange of information between all nations who have space=shot capability. If joint efforts in this field are ever launched, it could mean a big saving in national budgets.

At present, we are cutting back on some of our efforts and communities near the big space centers are hurting. We can't afford to cut back too much, not just to keep people on government subsidies, but to keep on a par or ahead of the Russian effort. Space is vital. It could be the futur of all manking.

Peaceful use of rocketry in space is preferable to its destructive use on this planet.

NEW YORK (AP) — While everyone else is out rushing around doing his shopping early to avoid the Christmas rush, I've decided to steal a march on them by making my New Year's resolutions early.

There are a couple of advantages in getting this done a month before the deadline.

For one thing you can make your good resolutions with a clear mind and a steady hand, which is not always true of those who wait to perform this chore until the morning of Jan. 1.

For another, you are free to pick and choose from a complete stock of good resolutions. There is nothing more pitiful than the harried, procrastinating fellow who comes late to the scene and finds the best resolutions have already been made —and has to settle for second-or third-rate ones.

The problem with most New Year's resolutions is that people who make them accentuate the negative rather than the positive. They vow to quit doing bad things instead of pledging themselves to do more good things. This year, for a change, I'm going to try to do both.

For example, I'm promising myself I will cease—

Oppressing women.

Burying dead horses.

Polluting the atmosphere with any more hot air.

Giving free advice to people who aren't worth two cents anyway.

Playing poker for keeps after midnight.

Opening savings accounts at banks just to get a free electric blanket or hearing aid.

Goring the other fellow's ox. Ox goring isn't much fun at best, and at the worst it can be terribly fatiguing.

Well, that's enough things I'm going to quit doing. On the more constructive side—the better things I'm going to start doing —I hereby resolve to—

Get more exercise by opening more junk mail.

Write down all the memorable things I hear said at cocktail parties and file them in my snuffbox.

Get an unlisted telephone number, so that all the people who never bothered to call me before won't be able to now in case they change their minds.

Punch anybody in the nose who greets me on Monday morning with such remarks as, "Tell me all about it. Were you in a train wreck over the weekend?"

Reread an old Bobbsey Twins book every month to restore my faith in the belief that neither sex nor money is everything.

Listen to the opinions of others—just to assure myself that my ideas aren't the only nutty ones on earth.

Bury all these good resolutions in a time capsule, then dig them up and use them all over again on Jan. 1, 1981.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Relief money, intended for the burned-out victims of Northern Ireland's civil strife, has gone to arm Irish revolutionaries.

Most Irish aid collected in this country has been used for charitable purposes, but some money has been spent on arms.

From talks with U.S. officials, Irish revolutionary contacts in American and diplomats from both countries, this column can now report some of the conduits by which charitable gifts become rifles.

Most of the gun purchases have been traced to two rival organizations which raided the money in this country in the name of relief. They are:

1. The National Association for Irish Justice, a radical group, which has ties with the Black Panthers and other extremist organizations. For a time, Black Panther members operated out of the Irish Justice Headquarters on New York's East 23rd street.

The Irish Joan of Arc, Bernadette Devlin, came to the U.S. to collect money, sponsored by this faction.

2. The Irish Northern Aid Committee, a more moderate group, which supports the romantic, often violent old wing of the Irish Revolutionary Army. This group is sponsoring a fund-raising U.S. tour for two of the IRA's old heroes, Sean Keenan of Derry and Joe Cahill of Belfast.

The fiery Miss Devlin raised a reported $42,000 in New York City during her emotional tour. Sources inside the Irish revolutionary movement say she wanted all the money distributed to the victimized families of Northern Ireland. Some of her American sponsors, however, thought the money should be spent on guns.

DONATIONS DIVERTED

The inside word is that the sponsors withheld thousands of dollars from Miss Devlin and slipped it secretly to Irish militants for arms purchases. The Irish Justic leaders deny the charge.

In contrast, leaders of Irish Northern Aid concede that some of their collections may have gone for firearms. Says one leader, Michael Flannery, a tough, articulate New Yorker: "We deliver the money in Ireland. We don't earmark it for anything."

Pressed for specifics, he told my associate, Les Whitten with Hibernian fierceness: "Look, if you want the truth, the people have to be armed for their own protection."

Both of the Irish-American groups have close ties with the Northern Defense Committees, which recently sent Capt. James Kelly on a gunbuying mission to West Germany. There is sworn evidence that the arms money was collected for the relief of the homeless.

It was deposited instead in a branch of the Munster and Leinster Bank in Dublin where it was turned over to Kelly. The handsome Irish intelligence office delivered 10,000 pounds ($24,000) to a German munitions merchant, who was supposed to ship a load of arms to Ireland from either Antwerp or Trieste. In this case, the deal fell through.

But other charity money, according to ship a load of arms to Ireland from either Antwerp or Trieste. In this case, the deal fell through.

But other charity money, according to reliable information, has been successfully squandered on weapons. Although these arms were intended for use in Northern Ireland, some have been diverted to SDS—style revolutionaries in the southern Republic of Ireland.

Footnote: The British, Irish and U.S. governments can't officially recommend safe charities to Americans who want to help impoverished Northern Irish families. But our own investigation indicates that recognized church charities and the Ancient Order of Hibernians have been successful in getting contributions to deserving families.

$182 INCIDENT

A Romanian-born American with 20 years of highly praised work behind him in the PX system is all but destitute now because he tried to make his Air Force boss pay for a $182 dishwahser.

A few months ago, Louis Paulmann, 58, was the $19,000-a-year manager of a handsome PX at an American Air Force Base in Bitburg, Germany. Today, he has hardly enough money for rent and medical care.

Paulmann's ordeal began on January 30, according to Air Force files obtained by this column. Co. Edwin Robertson II, the squarejawed commander of the 36th Tactical Fighter Wing, wanted a dishwasher as soon as possible. Paulmann said in an official statement that he had to juggle maintenance crews and wink at the lack of a purchase order to make the delivery.

For a week, Paulmann tried to locate Robertson to get cash payment or a purchase order. But 25 days later, Paulmann was still waiting for the money.

Rather than let the $182 be charged off against himself or one of his employees, Paulmann wrote a full memorandum to the base commander. The strange "Purchase" by Robertson "is putting me in the position of committing an illegal transaction," Paulmann explained.

Withing nours after the Base Commander got the memo, Colonel Robertson came through with a check for $182. At about the same time, Paulmann learned that Robertson had insisted that Paulmann be ousted from his job.

Paulmann was demoted and remained in limbo at Bitburg for almost three months. Then he was transferred to a job in Frankfurt with far less prestige. Eventually he came to the U.S. with the promise of a new military job.

All he has gotten from the Defense Department, however, is a run-around.

Footnote: At the time of the incident, the Air Force claimed, Robertson thought the machine should be paid for by the government. Despite Paulmann's exemplary record, therfore, the Air Force decided the PX in Bitburg "could be upgraded more effectively" without him.

BEAUTIFUL EYES are the most easily recognized trademark of the dolls made by Jumeau and the son of Jumeau of France in the middle and late 1800's. These dolls, in the collection of Mrs. Rosemarye Harrison, are dressed in authentic, period costumes made of pure cloth (silks primarily). Mrs. Harrison, a professional seamstress, reproduced the costumes for many of her dolls.

Collector of dolls

Mrs. Rosemarye Harrison of Sikeston began collecting dolls when she was in high school. She is building her second collection. Her first was given to a niece and this one is being built for another neice.

Mrs. Harrison is a native of Walla Walla, Wash. She is a professional seamstress, an orchid grower and a doll collector.

"A lot of research and work goes into reproducing the costumes of period dolls. They must be authentic. Everyone who collects dolls has to look up everything he wants to know." Therefore, Mrs. Harrison finds her own library of history about dolls indispensible.

Hair for wigs (which she makes) comes from beauty parlors when they cut hair. Costumes are made by Mrs. Harrison with real cloth she finds at antique shops. The costumes are reprodutions of the period clothing, either from her research library or the doll's original costume.

Jumeau of France designed dresses for the French fashion dolls, but bought his doll heads from Germany. In the middle 1860's, Jumeau freed his business from Germany and went up and up in fame. A business associate, Bru, whose dolls now are the most expensive, designed dolls and made only two or three of a design. The son of Jumeau continued the business with great success until the French doll makers were all bombed out in World War I.

In the 1930's, people seemed to realize an era had ended and the doll collecting business began.

Mrs. Harrison sometimes spends more than a year collecting the right amount of the right materials to make authentic costumes with laces and osterich and silks.

"I have wax dolls, tin dolls, and many other kinds stored. Almost every cabinet or drawer in the house has a doll or a doll part in it."

So it is with true doll collectors.

JENNIE LIND'S wedding dress was reproduced in miniature by Mrs. Rosemarye Harrison and placed upon this 32" doll which belonged to Mrs. Harrison's sister- in- law. The doll at the right wears a dress which was cut to doll size from a real dress found in an attic trunk. The doll's dress is an exact copy of the antique wedding gown. The doll has been Mrs. Harrison's since childhood.

FRENCH FASHION DOLLS were originally used to style the queen's wardrobe. Dolls, like the one above, were dressed and sent in a group to the queen. From the fashions displayed on the dolls, the queen chose the dresses she wanted to add to her wardrobe and sent the dolls back to the tailors.

Ann Landers

Florida couple in 60's tired of live-ins,

Dear Ann Landers: May I say one word about the woman who breezes into the beauty shop 30 minutes early, plants herself at the elbow of her operator (who is running 30 minutes late) and proceeds to hand him snapshots of her trip and bends his ear with the hot gossip picked up at yesterday's canasta game.

While the operator tries to be polite he is inadvertently cutting some poor lady's hair a little shorter on one side or dripping dye in her eye.

I happen to be a paying customer who has been victimized for the third week in a row by an inconsiderate blabbermouth who obviously has a standing appointment that follows mine. Insensitive clod that she is, she does not see that I am frothing at the mouth. (Maybe she thinks it's soap). At any rate I'm sure this problem is not unique and I'd be ever so grateful if you would print it along with some advice. Is there a solution? --- Lady In Lafayette, Ind.

Dear Lady: There IS a solution. You are paying for the undivided attention of your operator and he sould provide it. It is up to him to tell the intruder that he's running late and needs to concentrate on his work -- but he'll be glad to look at her snapshots and listen to her when she's in his chair.

Dear Ann Landers: I did not agree with your views on signing "Love" to a letter. I also disagree about "Sincerely" sounding "trite." I believe "Love" should be reserved for those whom we truly love -- and not just those whom we like. "Sincerely," to me, is a very meaningful word and it should not be used indiscriminately.

The.e are far too few sincere people in this world. For example: How many times have you passed a friend on the street who asks, "How are you?" and then hurries on his way, without even listening to your reply. He does not have the slightest interest in how you are. Why then did he ask? Do you see what I mean?

So please, Ann, encourage your readers to keep things as close to the truth as they can. This world needs less phoniness and more honesty. --- Mexico, Missouri Teacher

Dear Teacher: Your point is well taken and while I do not agree, completely, I thank you for expressing it. The question, "How are you" is, in our society, more of a greeting than an inquiry. It's a shade friendlier than "hello" --- but I don't believe it means, "Please give me a detailed report on the state of your health."

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I retired two years ago and moved to Florida. He is 65 and I am 63. The problem is relatives. His mother and dad, who are in their 80's piled in on us less than three weeks after we arrived here. They stayed two months. Ten days after they left, my parents (also in their 80's) came down and moved in for four weeks. My mother is hard of hearing and she yelled at my father constantly. She also tried to take over my kitchen, which I resented. My father got into a political agrument with my husband everynight at the dinner table. He is still mad that Alf Landon was not elected president and insists that somebody "monkeyed with the votes."

We have gone through two winters of company and we can't take any more. Our little home has only one bathroom and 30 minutes is too long to wait. How does one tell parents who are in their 80's to stay home? -- Over Guested

Dear Over: You can't tell ANYBODY to stay home -- but you can tell anybody, including your parents, that your home cannot accommodate four people comfortable and they should not plan on staying with you.

SHS Cage Opener Friday

Just a step into the Field House on the Sikeston High School campus will tell you basketball season has arrived for the Bulldogs. The unrhythmatic pounding of basketballs, the stamping of running tennis shoes, and the yelling of directions by a coach kind of lays the hint on you, even if you are too slow to notice the change in seasons.

Other teams in the area have been seeing action for close to a month now, but Sikeston is traditionally a late starter because of football season. However, this year Sikeston isn't getting a late start by Bulldog standards, for the practicing for the upcoming season began about eight days earlier than ever before. Hoping to get better shooting percentages out the Dogs by the extended practice, Coach N. P. McDaniel, beginning his fifth year as the SHS basketball mentor, scheduled the earlier sessions. Also the fact that this Friday's opening contest with Malden is a week sooner than usual, the extra time was essential to prepare the Bulldogs for what is hoped is a profitable season.

"The early practices have helped a lot on the conditioning phase of our plans, as we are in better shape at this time than in previous seasons," noted Coach McDaniel. "We are also beginning to notice an improved floor game and our basic fundamentals and teamwork are getting sharper, too."

Defensive play is being concentrated on more than usual at SHS and, according to Coach Mac, "the fellows are making a determined effort to play a better brand of defensive ball. We have enough speed and shooting to stick with most schools, but still we are emphasizing a good defensive effort on everyone's part."

The coaches do have one area in which they lable as a great big question mark, and that's the all important rebounding game. All the way down the line the Bulldogs lack any ample heighth, so Coach Mac and assistant coach Larry Nickell say rebounding could be the key to the outcome and success of the Sikeston basketball season and that they "must get a lot tougher here to compete in Class L action." Richard Howard and Sam Tucker possess just about all the heighth the Dogs can muster, as Howard stretches 6'4 and Tucker 6'3.

The names of Fred Townes and Larry Lawrence are still remembered at Sikeston, for they were the big men offensively in the Dogs' past two seasons. But, this is a year when there are no big men or stars, and in the coaches opinion has helped bring about a better court morale. "Everyone feels better now, for they know that they have the green light to shoot if they want to. We're just going to play a balanced game and not worry about being a star, for everyone this year has the same rights as far as the court is concerned," commented Coach Mac.

The Bulldogs have a tough schedule this year, and this Friday's game with the Malden Greenwave is no exception. Although losing four of five starters from last year's successful season, plus having to find a new coach, the Greenwave still promise to be as tough as they come. Malden will have one thing over the Dogs before the contest begins, and that's in the experience department. Having already played two games so far this year, they will have had a chance to iron out a few of the early season mistakes before hosting the Bulldogs at Malden. Gideon fell prey to the Greenwave in their first outing 67-62 and last night's game with Dexter found the Wave losing by a score of 53-33.

Malden isn't the only toughie to be played this year, for a look anywhere on the schedule will find an easy game lacking. Fredricktown, with 6'6 Steve Cameran leading the way, and yet unbeaten Memphis Treadwell are new additions to the Bulldogs' season. Then there's always the dogfight in the SEMO conference, with Cape Central and Charleston being tabbed as the favorites to grab the crown. But don't single out anyone yet, for Sikeston, Bluff, Kennett, Perryville, -- all will be scrapping to upset the prediction man.

The Sikeston Freshmen get a jump on their varisty counterparts, as Coach Buddy Spears' squad journeys to Poplar Bluff Thursday night for an early tilt.

Mustangs Ride On Top Seeded Teams To Oran Semifinals

WARDELL — Spewing, sputtering and then unleashing a devastating attack, the North Pemiscot Mustangs ran their season record to 6-0 here Tuesday night at Ross gym with a 58-38 decision over the Kennett Indians.

The Mustangs spurted into the lead with a 35 point second half after the visiting Tribe moved ahead 25-23 at half but couldn't keep up with the pressing Mustangs in the second half as it scored only 13 points, three in the third period as the Mustangs of coach David McMahon spoiled Kennett's season opener.

Bobby McCulloch and Vernon Jennings teamed for 26 points to lead the victory for the Mustangs, netting 14 and 12 markers respectively while Larry Gilmer popped in 13 to lead Kennett.

North Pemiscot started the night with a narrow 46-45 B-game victory.

ORAN — Well, the Coaches are right so far in their seedings of the Oran invitational tournament, for all four seeded teams have made it past the quarterfinals without being upset. Monday night Kelly and Charleston moved into semifinal play with opening wins, and last night Oran tripped Chaffee 55-46 and Delta toyed with Illmo-Scott City as they demolished them 81-50.

The Oran-Chaffee opener was nip and tuck all the way, as Chaffee made a determined effort to show their neighbors that they hadn't read the seedings or predictions. The home-twon Eagles proved to be an ungracious host, however, as they stayed six on top throughout the fourth and came away with the opening round victory.

Otis Burley, Tom Sencibory, and Bradley Emerson were just about as nip and tuck for the Eagle high point honors as the contest. The trio dumped in 14, 13, and 12 respectively to lead the David Bone coached Eagles.

Scott Thomas managed to secure the games' high man honors, however, as he collected 17 in a Chaffee losing cause. Mike Ballard contributed 14 additional points for the Red Devils.

The Delta Bobcats proved in the night's late contest that they deserve the number one seeding handed them by the tournament's committee. Only six points separated the squads as the first period ended, but the Bobcats came back in the second to outscore the Rams 25-6. From then on the game was all Delta.

Steve Bock was once again the spark for the Bobcats as he poured in 28 big markers, with Mike Duncan and Lonny Mobley aiding him with 17 and 16 to their names. Bock, Duncan, and Bill O'Connor were also big in the rebounding department, as the trio time and time again pulled down a rebound.

Illmo-Scott City had eleven men break into the scoring column, with Huckstep and Amick leading the way for the Rams with 8 tallies each.

Action will be at a standstill tonight, but Thursday night swings into action again with three games. Two of the three will be in the loser's bracket, as Chaffee meets Scott Central at 6:30 and East Prairie takes on ISC at 9:30. Sandwiched in between these contests is one winner's bracket game as Delta battles with Kelly. Scoring:

Hornets , Bulldogs Move Toward Title

WOODLAND — No records were shattered, nor upsets recorded in the second night of tourney play here Monday night, as the Advance Hornets and the Notre Dame Bulldogs recorded victories that sent them even closer to the championship of the Woodland invitational tournament.

In last night's first game of the evening, it was Richard Hitt who once again led Advance down victory lane with a 24 point production. Assisting the six- two junior were teammates Gary Ridings and Terry Wills who provided the Hornets with 16 and 14 points respectively.

Defensively the Hornets were faced with the problem of Zalma's Ricky Simmer's, who twice this season has anchored Zalma victories with near 50 point totals. Finding himself covered where ever he walked on the court, Simmers did manage to pour in 31 big points for the floor's top honor. Simmer's only additional double figure assistance came in the person of Donnie Gowen, who scored 13.

Advance held only a slim three point lead as the two teams took the half time break, but came back in the final half to out score the Zalma five in each of the final frames.

Offensively the Hornets picked up 10 more field goals from the field than the Bulldogs, providing most of the difference in the contest.

In the second contest of the night, all but a contest resulted as the top seeded Notre Dame Bulldogs took little time to establish their sepremacy tonight on the floor as they recorded a 98-36 blasting of the Greenville Bears. A well balanced attack from the taller Bulldog squad handed the Notre Dame quintet an early 29-9 lead in the first quarter of play. It wasn't until the final quarter of play where the Bears recorded a quarter's total of more than 10 points, a total of 16 markers.

Combinations of scores ranging from four 10 point productions, a 15 and 25 point total marked the Bulldogs top scoring. In all, the Bulldogs recorded six players in the double figure scoring range. Mike Flaker led the Bulldogs with the top 25 total, while Paul Spaith finished with 15 total points. Four of the members tallied 10 points: Roger Schlitt, Mark Nenninger, Don Beussink, and Gary VanWelden.

Greenville had a single double figure scorer in the person of Shoemake, who hit 10 points for the Bear's honors.

Tonight's action finds three game on slate, beginning at 6:30 with Zalma and Bell City battling in a consolation game, only to be followed by Notre Dame and Oak Ridge inan 8:00 contest. The final game of the evening matches Meadow Heights against Greenville in a 9:30 consolation bracket battle.

Gideon Splits At Clarkton

CLARKTON — Holding the home court Reindeer to a mere 13 points in the first quarter of play, the visiting Gideon Bulldogs rolled to a 68-40 victory here Tuesday night.

Gideon perhaps got the thrill of the 28 point decision, but it was the home court Reindeer who collected a real thriller, in an earlier 37-40 overtime victory in the B-game.

Mark Littell paced the Bulldogs trio of twin igure scores with a total production of 17 points. Following in succession were Richard Whitehead with 16, and Dennis Coleman with 15.

Danny Stoelting and Johnny McGee anchored the Reindeer's scoring with 17 and 10 point totals.

Carl Morgan led the Clarkton JV's to their 40-37 overtime win with 16 points. Larry Hart was top scorer for Gideon with 18 final markers.

Alton Trips Host In Season Opener

WEST PLAINS — The visiting Alton Comets started the West Plains Zizzers out on a bad foot for the 1970-71 season, as they carried home a 56- 53 victory over the home- town squad. Alton is now 4-1 for the still young season, and West Plains is 0-1.

Big six- three Bo Presley was the top man for the streaking Comets, as he collected 15. Larry Tilson took the games high point honors, however, as he netted 24 big markers in the Zizzers' losing cause.

West Plains managed to record a win in the Junior Varsity game with a 55-35 triumph.

Chargers Top Tigers

DEERING — The Chargers of Delta C-7 ran their record to an unblemished 2-0 position last night as they defeated the Risco Tigers 69-51. But the win wasn't an easy battle for the Chargers as the visiting Tigers fought a stiff battle through most the game, before running into costly foul trouble late in the game.

Risco stood only eight points back at the mid way mark, and remained on the Charger's heels until late in the third quarter where the C-7 press moved the Chargers into a dominating lead.

Doc Conner anchored the flour attack for the Chargers with 24 points. Connor added 17 rebounds to his total for the evening. Teammates Paul Scott and EdgarGuyton each followed with similar 12 point additions.

The big difference in the game came in the final half where the Chargers tallied 21 total points in each of the final frames, while holding the Tigers to totals of 9 and 7 points.

Tiger top scorers were Wood and Perry, who combined for 44 of the total 51 points. Wood pumped in 28 points, while Perry added 14.

The Chargers made it a perfect night against the bengal opposition as they picked up a second win of the night in the JV contest with a 61-40 decision. Marvin Farmer and Lanny Young paced the JV Chargers with 16 each, while D. Wilson anchored the "B" Tigers with 15 markers.

Birch Tree Romps Past Summersville

SUMMERSVILLE — Birch Tree coasted to a 74-54 victory over Big Springs Conference for Summersville Tuesday night for an opening conference win of the season. Marshall Chowning paced the Bulldogs with 22 points, boosting them into the winner's column.

Assistance came in the persons of Junior Kelly and Stanley Kay who added 14 and 12 points respectively to the 74 point total.

The Summersville Wild Cats were paced on the floor by Hunt, who recorded almost half of the 'Cats' total with 23 markers.

The Bulldogs picked up wins in both the Varsity and JV competition with an earlier 41-39 victory.

MOUNTAIN VIEW — A see-saw contest sawed the wrong way for Mountain View fans here last night as the Ellington Whippets carried home a 76-73 win over the Mountain View Pirates. Ellington boosted its record to 4-1 with the victory, and Mountain View now sports an opening season loss on their record.

Tom Johnson and Rick Parker teamed to lead the Whippets as they tallied 19 and 17 respectively. Tom Orhcard turned in the night's most exciting performance, however, as the hot- hitting guard collected 33 in his first season game.

Mountain View's Junior Varsity squad picked up a victory, however, with a 38-34 win over the visitors.

All New Madrid County Final

BERNIE — The state is set and the cast is announced for Thursday night's semi-final round play of the 11th Annual Bernie invitational basketball tournament after second-seeded Parma bowled over Bloomfield 68-58 and third rated Lilbourn slaughtered Doniphan 73-37 Tuesday night.

Thursday's first game will pit Matthews and New Madrid at 7 p.m. and Parma against Lilbourn at 8:30 p.m. to make for an all New Madrid county tourney final.

Bloomfield couldn't keep up with the high jumping Pirates in the rebounding department and fell prey to the second-seeded squad who raced to an 18-11 first period lead and added to the margin in each quarter except the third when Bloomfield held a 15-13 advantage.

Parma fought off late bids by the Wildcats, who got within four points several times in the final quarter, but David Wright and David Williamson keep the Pirates ahead with key baskets.

Wright ended the game with high honors, netting 20, while Williamson contributed 19 and Joe White 16.

Lilbourn put 11 men in the scoring column, four with double figures as they raced past Doniphan who got only one player in the twin figure column.

Charles Blair led the Panthers scoring with 15 while Bill Stroud paced the Dons with 11.

The Bearcats will have four additional players off the football team which just completed its campaign by claming second in the state 3A football playoffs.

Cleveland Gibson netted 12 for the Green Wave's top scoring performance.

Dexter's B-team started the evening with a 56-37 win behind Bruce Bishop's 24 points. Bill Townes had nine for Malden.

CHANNEL work on Missouri streams has cost fishermen many thousands of acres of water and also has lessened fish populations in channelized parts of streams. (Department of Conservation photo).

Evidence Piles Up

WARRENSBURG-- Evidence continues to pile up that stream channelization in Missouri is lessening more than its announced purpose of flood threat--it is lessening fishing success as well.

Several agencies are involved, primarily in north Missouri in channeliing the rivers. Mostly, the work consists of straightening winding rivers so the water runs off faster and doesn't back up to create flooded areas.

The Corps of Engineers, private drainage districts and the Soil Conservation Service all have done channel work on north Missouri rivers, including the Chariton, the Grand and others.

Latest check of the effect of channelization on fish populations is a study by Larry Belusz, a fish biologist with the Department of Conservation.

Belusz made tests on three portions of Blackwater River in Johnson County. One area was unchannelized. Another had undergone some work, while a third was completely straightened.

Considering that this channel work was done nearly 50 years ago--in the 1920s--the effects clearly are long-lasting.

In the unchannelized portion, there were 565 pounds of fish per acre, in the lightly channelized portion, there were 449 pounds per acre and in the heavily channelized portion, only 131 pounds per acre.

Belusz went on to classify the fish by length. In the unchannelized portion of Blackwater River, the crop of fish 12 inches or longer was 403 pounds per acre. It was 298 pounds per acre in the lightly channelized portion of the river and only 12 pounds per acre in the completely channelized portion.

Species of fish included carp, channel and flathead catfish, bass, bullheads and green sunfish, as well as less desirable fishing species.

Estimates of how much water acreage has been lost are somewhat staggering. For example, estimates of the amount of acreage lost on the Missouri River alone run some 90,000 acres and it may be more.

This estimates is based on studies of old Corps of Engineers charts which pre-date channel work.

The 11 major impoundments built in Missouri in the last half century contain 162,000 acres. In that same span it is possible that the state has lost that much water acreage to channelization--meaning no net gain of public fishing water.

In 1948, there were 589,224 permits which allowed people to fish. In 1969, there were 792,256 permits. Fishing pressure is rising steadily, but river fishing waters are shrinking.

Channelization has become a matter of increasing concern to conservationists not only in Missouri, but in many other states. Southern states have suffered extensively.

The Department of Conservation expects damage to over 700 more miles of north Misssouri Rivers if all plans for straightening and damming those rivers are carried out.

A rough estimate of rivers already straightened in north Missouri estimates at least 400 miles of river length has been lost completely and another 600 miles has been damaged already.

Studies in North Carolina showed dredging and removal of natural cover along streams there reduced the fish population by 90 per cent. Some 40 years later, there was no appreciable return to former fish populations.

James Moseley led Monmouth Park's apprentice jockeys with 32 winners at the 1970 Oceanport, N.J., meeting.

Cape Upset in Farmington Event

FARMINGTON — Second seeded Cape Girardeau Central suffered the only upset of first round action of the Farmington invitational tournament Tuesday night as the Bengals dropped a 56-48 decision to Perryville.

Cape had a cold night shooting, starting the evening with only nine points in the first two quarters and netting only six free throws during the evening.

Perryville pressed the Tigers and kept them off guard on their shooting except for the second half when they out-scored the Pirates 30-23, but a 33-18 first half lead was too much to overcome.

Dean Breig and Mar Searlock scored 20 points each in leading the Pirates assault while Ron Wulfers netted 18 for Cape's top effort.

In the night's final, Flat River's Tom Gibson scored with five seconds to go to topple the host 45-44.

Mike Womble and Gary Myers teamed for 21 points in leading Central's victory, netting 11 and 10 points respectively while Royce Vessell led all scorers with 16 for Farmington.

Patterson Re-elected President

JEFFERSON CITY -- Sen. J. F. Patterson (Dem.), Caruthersville, was re- elected president pro - tem of the Missouri Senate in a squeaker vote Monday of Senate Democrats. He defeated Sen. William Waters of Liberty, 13 to 12.

The pro - tem post is important because he has control in the appointment of all committee posts in the Senate.

Sen. Earl Blackwell (Dem.), Hillsboro, said before the caucus vote:

"If they want the governor sitting in that chair)president pro-tem) then all they have to do is vote for Patterson."

Blackwell stayed somewhat in the background. He was taken out of the pro-tem position earlier this year by Patterson by a large majority.

This time opponents of the governor lined up with Blackwell and Waters and almost turned the trick. Sen. John Joynt of St. Louis was a candidate and withdrew, throwing his support to Waters.

Sen. Basey Vanlandingham of Columbia, worried about the governor's proposed tax increases, evidently went over to the Blackwell - Waters side. After the pro-tem vote, Vanlandingham was defeated in his bid for re- election as majority speaker by Sen. William Cason of Clinton.

Vanlandingham immediately resigned the post and turned it over to Cason.

This means Cason will have to carry the ball for Governor Hearnes on the Senate floor for any tax increase in this special session. The other officers were elected for the up- coming regular session that starts in January.

"I'm no longer responsible for the governor's tax program," Vanlandingham said after the vote.

Sen. Jasper Brancato of Kansas City was re- elected caucus chairman over Sen. Edward Linehan of St. Louis. Sen. Raymond Howard of St. Louis was elected caucus chairman.

The caucus was held up more than an hour because of the absence of Senator - elect John Schneider of St. Louis. The highway patrol was sent to Kingdom City to pick him up where his car had broken down.

With Schneider, the Blackwell - Waters forces thought they hadthe 1-vote majority they needed.

The caucus vote is by secret ballot and the meetings are closed to the press.

The only indication of a switched vote was in the hallway after the caucus. Sen. Jack Gant of Independence, in Jackson County, had been counted on by both sides. He would not say how he voted. But a political backer of his, Harvey Jones, Jackson County engineer, said:

"For once we are united in Jackson County."

Gant just smiled.

Rare Paranoia Form Diagnosed For Mendoza

MANILA (AP) — The Volivian painter who tried to stab Pope Paul is suffering from systematized paranoia, a rare form of insanity that subjects him to delusions but in which behavior is frequently normal, a government psychiatrist said today.

Dr. Rodolfo O. Laserna, chief psychiatrist of the National Bureau of Investigation, told newsmen 35-year-old Benjamin Mendoza y Amor should be isolated in the National Mental Hospital. Mendoza's illness puts him in a private world with his own ideas of right and wrong, the doctor said.

Mendoza does not believe in God, Laserna said, and he thought by killing the head of the Roman Catholic Church he would save the world from a superstitition and doctrine that had caused wars and poverty.

Government officials say the man has no record of criminal or antisocial behavior. The doctor said seemingly normal behavior is common to systematized paranoics and that possibly the announcement of the Pope's arrival had supplied an outlet for his views.

A newsman asked if the man said he thought his attack on the Pope would bring him fame or power. The psychiatrist said it was his understanding that Mendoza only wanted to eliminate the head of the Church, then "go back to being a simple painter."

The man indicated to Dr. Laserna that he acted on his own. Police said they have investigated the possibility of links to other persons but have found no evidence that anyone else was involved.

Leader of Raid On Viet Prison Camp MU Grad

WASHINGTON (AP) — Col. Arthur D. Simons who led the commando - type raid on a prisoner of war camp west of Hanoi, was graduated from the University of Missouri and his wife comes from Normandy, Mo.

The Army guerilla warfare expert, 52, received the Distinguished Service Cross from President Nixon in White House ceremonies Wednesday.

Although the raid was unsuccessful, because American prisoners previously held at the site had been moved, Nixon said "What these men have done is to send a message to the prisoners of war that they are not forgotten."

Simons, a native of New York, was graduated from the Missouri School of Journalism in 1941.

"I went to Missouri because I heard it was the best journalism school in the country. But I never got a chance to get into the newspaper business. At that time I felt sure there was a war coming on so I went into the Army."

Col. Simons was commissioned through the ROTC program at Missouri.

First Returned Hijacker Ruled Unfit for Trial

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — The first accused airplane hijacker to be returned to the United States by the Cuban government was ruled mentally unfit to stand trial Monday.

U.S. District Judge Jesse E. Eschbach ruled Army Pvt. Robert J. Labadie, 27, Nahma, Mich., unable to understand the nature of charges against him and unable to assist in his defense. Eschbach cited reports by examining psychiatrists at the Medical Center for Federal Prisons, Springfield, Mo.

Labadie was indicted by a federal grand jury in CFort Wayne of forcing a Trans-World Airlines passenger plane, en route from Chicago to Philadelphia, to Cuba Aug. 24. The government charged that Labadie, a Vietnam veteran, moved against the plane's crew over Fort Wayne.

Labadie, at the time of the hijacking, was on convalescent leave from Valley Forge General Hospital, Phoenixville, Pa., where he had been under psychiatric treatment.

Labadie, who is in the Springfield medical center, was ordered brought hee Dec. 28 for a formal ruling. Eschbach also ordered two of the examining psychiatrists to be present.

Pilot Use of Alcohol Factor in 15 Air Crashes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pilot use of alcohol caused or contributed to the cause of 15 light plane crashes that resulted in fatalities last year, the National Transportation Safety Board said Monday.

One of the crashes, at Beaver, Okla., Nov. 3, 1969, followed unwarranted low flying on a flight from Carthage, Mo., to Guymon, Okla., killing the 30-yearold pilot and his passenger, the NTSB reported.

In another, at Brentwood, Ark., Sept. 17, 1969, the 46-yearold pilot, flying alone, was killed when his plane struck trees en route from Fayetteville, Ark., to Fort Smith, Ark.

Coffee Corner

by Cherie

Direct quotes made by my two fellas when taken on a trip to Memphis by their grandparents, to view their new cousin for the first time.

Brete, age eight who was consuming a sizable portion of chocolate milk with his Aunt, who is breast feeding, "Does the baby get it chocolately too?" (I've always heard that silly joke, but never did I dream to a child it would make good sense).

Lee, age ten upon first view of naked infant, "There's something wrong with him, he has a shriveled black stick where 'is belly button goes."

(Little did he remember losing his shriveled navel cord on a lady's lap who had come to call and how mortified I was over the entire incident).

Brete, who saw out the window some of those white cranes and was told by his Grandmother, "See Brete, there's a stork like the ones who bring the babies."

"Sure Grandmama, baby storks!"

(They just don't make them dumb anymore like they were in the "good ole" days — wonder what his response would have been to being found in a cabbage patch.)

The one comment that was my favorite and Grandmamas, was made by Brete on the return trip. I had threatened them both with life and limb if they weren't good and told them if they had any fights they couldn't ever go with their Grandparents again and I must have been very emphatic, for when nearing Sikeston the first scuffle broke out and after Mother had quieted them down she said, "Well, you've done so well today we won't tell your Mother about this, after all, you're probably just getting tired."

Whereupon Brete piped up with, "We sure are tired Mama Mickey, we're tired of being good!" (No comment.)

Ozark Carries More Passengers

ST. LOUIS — Ozark Air Lines carried 221,986 passengers during October according to Thomas L. Grace, president, thus marking a four per cent increase over the same month last year. The total during October, 1969, was 214,366.

At the same time Ozark reached a new high of 2,022,321 passengers enplaned during the first 10 months of the year. This was also a four per cent increase over the same period last year, when 1,947,009 passengers were enplaned January through October, 1969.

Cargo traffic also marked an increase for the first 10 months of the year, despite a decline during October.

Ozark introduced new service to cities during October. This included new nonstop service between Chicago and Des Moines, and increased service between St. Louis, Marion and Cape Girardeau.

Burglary, Holdup at Popular Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF — Three band instruments, valued at $1,000, were stolen in a burglary at junior high school over the weekend.

Principal Frank Wilkinson discovered the entry when he went to the school Sunday afternoon. His office had been entered. The loss of the instruments wasn't discovered until students went to band class Monday.

Listed as stolen was a Conn tenor saxaphone owned by Scott Harrell and valued at $400. It was gold color and had serial 96431. A gold colored alto saxaphone of Mike Buschhorn, valued at $300 was stolen. A Conn alto saxaphone of Mary Muschhorn, valued at $300 was stolen. A Conn alto saxaphone of Mary Musbach, valued at $300 was the third instrument stolen. It had serial K07801.

All three instruments were in blue- gray carrying cases.

A total of $1,463 was taken in a robbery of the Howell Fina Service Station, at 7:45 p.m. Monday as Mrs. Revelle Howell was closing the station.

The woman told police and sheriffs members that she was starting to check the cash register when two men came into the station. Each had ladies stockings over their face. One was about six feet and was wearing gray work clothes and work shoes. The other was about 5'6" and was wearing a pair of dirty dress slacks and a tan jacket.

The tall man approached Mrs. Howell and said "we are armed and we don't want to hurt you. Just hand over the money and you won't get hurt." Mrs. Howell said she was hit in the face by the bigger man when she didn't do as told. She was forced into the rest room and told "stay there and you won't get hurt."

Mrs. Howell told officers she was in the room about a minute or two before coming out. The station was empty. The telephone had been torn up. She flagged a motorist who notified police.

Mrs. Howell stated a brown State Bank bag with $1200 was below the cash register in a drawer and it was unlocked. She had just taken it from the safe and placed it in the drawer. She told police there were $263 taken from the cash register.

More Listings in New Phone Book

Sikeston and Morehouse Southwestern-Bell Telephone customs are receiving new 1970 telephone directories, John Donoho, manager, announced today.

Donoho points out that growth in the Sikeston and Morehouse area is reflected in an increase in number of listings and new number assignments.

Last year Sikeston nd Morehouse had 11,925 telephones. Today they have 12,500, an increase of 575.

New central office equipment has been added in the Morehouse exchange. This equipment calls for some numbers to be changed Thursday at Midnight.

Customers with number changes have been notified and a new number plate for their telephone has been sent to them.

Bomb Explosion Damages Club

CAIRO — An explosion which caused heavy damage to the interior of Club 18 about 9:35 a.m. Monday was probably the result of a "pipe- bomb," state police investigators believe.

Such a bomb is made by filling a section of metal pipe with powder and sealing both ends. The explosion of a pipe bomb is much like that of a grenade, resulting in much metal shrapnel.

There was no one in the tavern at the time of the explosion, police said. Club 18 is located at the corner of 18th and Commercial.

Investigators couldn't determine whether the bomb was thrown through a window, or was placed inside the building.

The force of the explosion seemed to be centered in front of the bar, about halfway down it. There was a hole in the floor about two feet in front of the bar, and also a hole in the bar itself.

Most of the ceiling tiles in the front part of the building were knocked down by the blast. There were pieces of shrapnel imbedded in the wall opposite the bar.

There seemed to be little damage done to the tavern's liquor supply, which was shielded from the blast by the bar.

Club 18 is operated by J. D. Bearden. Two years ago, Bearden was seriously injured in Charleston when a dynamite bomb wired to the ignition of his car exploded when he started the engine.

Fire Chief Arlie Seawright said the Cairo Fire Department was called to the scene of the explosion, but added that there was no fire.

Last Friday, a bomb consisting of five sticks of dynamite failed to explode after it was put inside the office of the Lawyer's Committee for Civil Rights Under the Law.

Kiwanians Told Of Rail Plight

Martin M. Pomphrey, Cape Girardeau, assistant to the president of the Frisco railroad, told the Kiwanis club Tuesday. "Unless there is some aid coming from government, the railroads may have to throw in the towel and be nationalized, because of the 100 per cent regulation by the government."

He was introduced by Jim Cornett, program chairman, who also introduced Nicholas P. Powers, agent for Frisco railroad at Cape Girardeau.

President Pat Lea presided, and Bob Meyers led the group singing.

Pomphrey told the club members: "Railroads cover 6,355 miles in Missouri; have 19,300 employes, and pay $14,500,000 in taxes. The railroads are the biggest haulers of freight, two times as much as any other hauler, and the only transportation that can handle increased loads.

"We are regulated 100 per cent, while trucking is regulated 39 per cent and waterways but 13 per cent. With trucking receiving $305.3 billion in government aid; air freight $21.6 billion and waterways $14.6 billion, but the railroads receive nothing. Railroads cannot fight competition with one hand tied behind its back.

"For the government to take over the railroads, it would take $60 billion, and everyone of us would help pay for it. The American Sound Transportation review organization is making a study to bring railroad regulations up to date. A recommendation has been made for state and local taxes be removed, and a research program be made for intermodel transportation system and the end of discrimination.

"Due to heavy loss for passenger service under present conditions, railroads cannot afford to continue the service.

"The railroad problem is alarming and the word should be passed all the way to Washington."

Man Sentenced On Drug Charge

BLOOMFIELD — Special Judge Roy W. McGhee Monday sentenced Michael Thomas Geoghegan to a year in prison and handed down a $1,000 fine after a Stoddard county circuit court jury returned a verdict of guilty against the 22-year-old St. Louis man charged with possession of LSD and marijauna.

Geoghegan was charged following his arrest in Cape Girardeau Aug. 24. The case was transferred to Stoddary county on a change of venue.

Geoghegan's attorney said he will file a motion for a new trial. Meanwhile, the accused remains free on original bail.

Geoghegan is facing two charges of possession of mariguana. He was arrested by Cape Girardeau police after they posted a stakeout along North Sprigg Street Road and later uncovered two bags of marijuana in his car and harvested marijuana in a nearby field in which he allegedly was growing the plant.

Cape County Prosecuting Attorney A. J. Seier contends that police also uncovered about 20 LSD tablets in his car.

The jury, which was empaneled after nearly four hours of interrogation by the defense, consisted of nine men and three women. Cape Girardeau policemen who were along when Geoghegan was arrested, gave testimony Monday.

Wire-Cutting Tie-in With Bomb Slaying Doubted

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — St. Louis County Police say they doubt there was any tie-in between the bomb slaying last July 24 of Continental Telephone Co. President Philip J. Lucier, 49, and a wire-cutting incident eight weeks later at company headquarters.

The wire-cutting, although professionally done, was probably done by Continental employes to embarrass a company switchboard operator, police said Saturday.

Dozens of leads have proved fruitless in the investigation into the death of Lucier, who was killed by a bomb as he entered his car in a Clayton parking lot.

Continental continues to offer a $50,000 reward for information leading to conviction of his slayer.

Fisher Replaces Ryan as American Party Chairman

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A former St. Louis mayor candidate, Gerald Fischer, has become chairman of the Missouri American party succeeding Ed Ryan of Dixon, who resigned.

Fischer, son of former Missouri Republican Committeeman Ted Fischer, ran unsuccessfully as the GOP candidate for St. Louis mayor in 1969.

He was named chairman at a state central committee meeting Saturday. Ryan, elected to the post in September, gave the press of personal business as the reason for his resignation.

Glance At Poetry

By Charles Francis Brady

Today's column contains only one poem due to a lack of poetic material. There will be no column in next week's Standard unless an ample supply of poems is sent in. Poems should be addressed to: Charles Brady, poetry editor, Sikeston Standard, 205 S. New Madrid, Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Our poetess today, sami, once again treats us to an inside look to a self of pensive thought and deep, tranquil love coupled with an easy, almost immortal, touch of hurting.

"Love gives nothing but itself, and seeks nothing but to fulfill this giving." Kahlil Gibran, THE PROPHET

I spent an hour staring
at the empty sheet of paper
in my typewriter
before deciding i might have the courage to write the thoughts that drag me down

i was caught up
in the game we played
knowing it was a game,
that i cared too much,
but you are practical,
a logical, orderly libra

i am an impulsive leo
probably in love with love
instead of in love with you.
but we fit together
for a while and shared
happiness with each other

you removed yourself abruptly
from my life because you cared
more about another.
my life goes on.
the memories are good
and the grieving is almost over

Aide Denies Kennedy Went Nightclubbing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy denied Monday as preposterous the report of a British weekly newspaper that the Massachusetts Democrat went nightclubbing with an Italian princess the night before he attended the memorial service for Charles de Gaulle.

The newspaper, The People, published a picture it said showed Kennedy and an unidentified man escorting Princess Maria Pia.

"It's preposterous, and it's a phony," said Richard C. Drayne, press assistant to Kennedy. Kennedy was in Boston, and was not available for comment.

Drayne said Kennedy does not know Maria Pia, and was not dancing with anybody.

He said Kennedy attended in Paris a small dinner arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Gauthier, whom he identified as old friends of the senator. Drayne said about a dozen people were in the dinner party, but the Gauthiers were the only ones Kennedy knew.

The newspaper said Kennedy, the unidentified man and Princess Maria Pia were shown in the picture "leaving one of Paris's swankiest restaurants" to go "to a club where they danced until 5 a.m."

It said the French government was shocked, "but for diplomatic reasons asked the French press to print neither picture nor story of Ted's night out."

Neither Kennedy nor the princess was available for comment. An aide of the Massachusetts senator in Washington said Kennedy had been in Brussels at a NATO conference when De Gaulle died and went to Paris with the congressional delegation to the memorial service. He said Kennedy's wife was with him in Brussels and Paris.

The 36-year-old princess is the estranged wife of Prince Alexander of Yugoslavia and the mother of two sets of twins.

Otis Hicks Injured While Unloading Grain

While loading a car of corn from the Steele Bros. warehouse at Matthews last Thursday morning, Otis Hicks suffered serious injuries, which necessitated his removal to a hospital at Cairo for treatment. The accident was caused by the breaking of the run-board. Mr. Hicks was thrown violently to the ground, a distance of about seven feet, with his face down, and 15 sacks of grain fell on him. His right leg was broken above the knee and the left was broken in two places oncenear the hip and once near the knee.

The members of the executive committee of the Southeast Missouri High School Football League met at Morley last Saturday to award the 1920 championship honors. However, no championship honor was awarded, since it was shown that neither Sikeston, Jackson, Cape Girardeau, Perryville nor Kennett had paid membership dues on time and all were thus disqualified from claiming honors. Charleston was also ruled out when it was shown that the team had not sent in the required eligibility lists. By these rulings Caruthersville became the 1920 champion, but its representative refused the honor, as he did not believe the team deserved it on account of poor playing by the team this season.

The new mixing plant of the Scott County Milling Co., in Sikeston was started yesterday on its first real run, several short test runs having been made during the past few days. This new plant is located near the big 550,000 bushel concrete elevator in the west part of Sikeston and construction was started on it last August. The purpose of the plant is to mix feeds for live stock and the ingredients it will use are corn, oats, sunflowers, alfalfa and molasses.

The Baptist congregation of Sikeston has bought the lot adjacent to and immediately west of the church building and will add it to the church lawn. The small building which stood on the lot was bought by Alf Carr, who has removed it to a vacant lot in the south part of town.

The City Council met Wednesday night and unanimously awarded the contract to Fairbanks Morse and Co., for a complete light plant, distribution system and white way. The sum involved is $123,600. Satterfield and Weltecke, contractors for the building, will probably start construction within 10 days or two weeks, weather permitting.

The six -year -old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Demaris was injured Thursday afternoon at the intersection of Stoddard street and Malone avenue, when he avoided being struck by a train only to find himself wedged between two automobiles. One of the cars could not stop and knocked the child to the pavement, causing one fractured rib and possible internal injuries.

Gently Lifting Wallet Cannot Be Robbery

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Rupert hoisted one too many in the Dry Gultch Saloon and wobbled off to a corner where, despite the hubbub in the pub, he fell asleep Before long, fidgety Freddy spotted him and nonchalantly sat down beside him. And, after making sure that Rupert was slumbering soundly and as defenseless fate could arrange, Freddy lifted Rupert's bulging wallet from his pocket with the deftness of a harpist. His skill, however, did not go unnoticed. Two police officers oversved the scene from an exterior window and promptly collared Freddy and charged him with robbers.

"Believe me," Freddy fidgetted in court, "I'm no robber. To be a robber, you've got to be big and tough. You've got to be forceful and able to threaten people. As for myself, I'm as gentle a soul as you can find. Infact, even television commercials intimidate me. When the announcer says go out and buy something, I do it immediately."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict gently Freddy of robbery?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that robbery requires the use of force. In this case, noted the judge, no force was used since no force is required to take a wallet from an unconscious person.

Based upon a 1962 Washington Supreme Court Decision.

Nixon Cabinet Changes Likely

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — Mid-term changes in the President's cabinet are almost as inevitable as mid=term elections for Congress. While no department heads have rolled yet, rumors of departures and replacements abound. Capital pundits have tabbed Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy and Agricutlure Secreatary Clifford M. Hardin as those mostl likely to leavePresident Nixon's official family by the end of the year.

Hickel, of course, has been in Nixon's doghouse since he complained last May that the administrattion was turning its back on youth and that he and other cabinet members had scant access to the President. Continuing economic troubles and Republican election losses in the farm belt have made Kennedy and Hardin expendable.

A cabinet-level post guarantees its occupant a $60,000 salary, a line in the World Almanac, and little else. Being Secretary of State still carries a certain cachet, but the prestige of other cabinet members is likely to depend more on the man than the position.

Thus, Attonry General John N. Mitchell is the acknowledged strong man of the Nixon cabinet, as was Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey under Eisenhower and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara under Kennedy and Johnson.

The cabinet system may have reached its apogee during the first term of its founder, George Washington. The first President had a cabinet of three — Thomas Jefferson at State, Alexander Hamilton at Treasury, and Henry Knox at War — and he used it as a forum for joint consideration of policy. At the same time, however, Washington regualarly sought counsel from other advisers, including Rep. James Madison and Chief Justice John Jay.

Andrew Jackson did away with the custom of regarding the cabinet as a group of "constitutioal advisers" to the President. In the Jackson administration, Rexford Tugwell wrote, cabinet members "were not much better off than the lowliest clerk so far as (job) security went." For example, Old Hickory had five Treasury Secretaries in eight years. He told one of them, William J. Duane, that "A secretary, sir, is merely an executive agent, a subordinate."

The Jacksonian View is still very much alive. Many Presidents have had reason to believe, as Jackson did, that a strong-willed cabinet member might use his post to further his political ambitions. Not the least of Abraham Lincoln's troubles was the fact that both his Secretary of State, William H. Seward, and his first Treasury Secretary, Salmon P. Chase, thought they should have been nominated for President in 1860.

The most serious clash between a President and a cabinet member involved Lincoln's successor, Andrew Johnson, and Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton. When Johnson sought to force Stanton from office against the express wishes of Congress, the House adopted a resolution of impeachment. The President avoided conviction by the Senate by only a single vote.

Accordingly, modern Presidents have staffed their cabinets, for the most part, with persons lacking a political constituency of their own. Five of the first 10 Secretaries of State later became President. But in the past 100 years, only Herbert Hoover managed to advance from the cabinet to the White House. Cabinet appointments, in sum, are now used primarily to pay off political debts and to reward party stalwarts. The reward often is of dubious value. Besides, what the President gives can as easily be taken away.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 2, the 336th day of 1970. There are 29 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1823, President James Monroe made a speech in Congress in which he outlined the U.S. Monroe Doctrine against European expansion in the Western Hemisphere.

On this date:

In 1804, Napoleon Bonaparte crowned himself Emperor of France.

In 1805, Napoleon's armies were victorious in the Battle of Austerlitz in what is now Czechoslovakia.

In 1859, John Brown, the abolitionist who had led the historic raid at Harper's Ferry, va., was hanged at Charles Town, W.Va.

In 1927, Henry Ford put his Model A on sale. The sticker price for the roadster was $385.

In 1956, Fidel Castro began the Communist revolution in Cuba as he landed with 82 men on the coast of Oriente Province. Most of his followers were wiped out, but he escaped to the mountains.

In 1964, Pope Paul VI flew to India on the longest trip a Pontiff ever had undertaken until that time.

Ten years ago: In the Congo, deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba was captured, four days after escaping from his guarded house in Leopoldville.

Five years ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson predicted another record year for the U.S. economy.

One year ago: Arrests were being made in the murder of actress Sharon Tate and six other persons in the Hollywood hills.

Army Reports High Drug Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army today released results of a survey indicating more than half of the enlisted men in Vietnam who were polled may have used marijuana at least once and that one in six is an habitual user, smoking the drug 200 times or more a year.

A team of Army psychiatrists also told a Senate subcommittee that the use of opium by troops in Vietnam tripled when compared to those who used it before reaching the Southeast Asian country.

The figures, were reported to the Senate's alcoholism and narcotics subcommittee by Capt. Morris D. Stanton, chief of the psychology section at Ft. Meade, Md.

Stanton's survey was conducted, he testified, at the 22nd Replacement Battalion in Cam Ranh Bay in November 1969 among 2,372 Army personnel, about half of them arriving and about half of them departing Vietnam.

Stanton reported these major results:

—Of the 994 outgoing enlisted men 53.2 per cent said they had tried marijuana at some time in their lives. About half said they used marijuana in Vietnam and 31.4 per cent said they used it before entering the country.

—"One out of six of the 994 or 17.7 per cent was a habitual user in Vietnam, using marijuana 200 or more times during the year or more often than once every other day."

—Nearly half of the outgoing enlisted men favored legalization of marijuana.

—Twenty-two per cent of those coming into the country and 27 per cent leaving it said they planned to continue marijuana use.

—The survey revealed "a slightly greater incidence of marijuana use in area where combat is heaviest."

Another witness, Maj. Kenneth E. Nelson, chief of the psychiatric consulting service at Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco, confirmed Stanton's figures.

It was believed the first time the Army has released such survey results for public distribution.

Gunner Says He Saw Civilians Shot by Calley

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — A machinegunner in Lt. William L. Calley's platoon testified today that a group of Vietnamese people "went in willingly" — on Calley's orders—into a ditch near My Lai where they were shot to death.

"Was there force applied to get people to go in?" Judge Raid W. Kennedy asked the witness, Robert Maples.

"No," they just went in willingly."

"Who told them to go in?" the judge asked.

"Lt. Calley" Maples answered.

Maples opened his direct testimony by saying he saw Calley —on trial for the premeditated killing of 102 unresisting Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in March 1968—herd a group of people into a ditch and shoot them; that the lieutenant even asked him to use his weapon on the unarmed men, women and children.

"I refused," the 22-year-old soldier from Freehold, N.J. said.

On cross-examination, Maples was asked:

"You can't say that at any time Lt. Calley gave you an order to shoot people?"

"He never gave me an order to shoot people," Maples said.

He said he saw Calley and Pfc. Paul Meadlo fire into the ditch—Maples called it a hole, and that he saw Meadlo crying.

Another member of Calley's platoon, Lenny B. Laguney, a 26-year-old Hawaiian from Waiphu, also testified that he saw Calley and Meadlo at the ditch.

"I heard some shots; some single, some bursts of automatic shots," Lagunoy said.

"Did you see people?"

Lagunoy testified that Meadlo, who has publicly admitted shooting 35 to 40 people that day, was crying during the shooting.

Chief prosecution lawyer Aubrey Daniel III estimated today that the government will rest its case Dec. 9.

Maples' testimony Tuesday—that Calley asked him to use his weapon on the unarmed men, women and children—swung the court-martial into a new phase. It was the first time any witness —of 26 who had appeared—said he actually saw the diminutive lieutenant turn his gun on civilians.

The 27-year-old Calley sat unmoving in his seat, his eyes never leaving the witness. At times he made notations on a pad before him, but mostly he sat forward, hands folded, looking straight at Maples.

Maples said he and others had moved through the village and had come to a big ditch.

"Calley came over to the ditch," Maples told the court. "He herded the rest of them Vietnamese to a hole where him and Paul Meadlo was firing into the hole. Meadlow was crying." Asked to describe the people, Maples said: "There were women, babies, and a couple of men."

How did he know Meadlow was crying? "I saw him."

Meadlow, 23, of Terre Haute, Ind., has publicly admitted killing 35 to 40 people.

It was at the ditch that the government charges Calley shot at least 70 people.

House Panels Study State Building Needs

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Subcommittees of the House Appropriations Committee continued their tour of state institutions today, studying the building needs at each site.

Pending before the full committee is a capital improvement bill totaling $250 million in construction projects at universities and colleges, clinics and hospitals, prisons and state office buildings.

The bill is conditioned on approval by the legislature and the state's voters of a $250 million bond issue plan.

Meanwhile, both houses are in recess until Monday when the House plans to take up an income tax bill that would boost revenues an estimated $55 million a year, instead of the $68.8 million called for in the original administration bill.

Monday, also, the Senate Appropriations Committee will begin its own study of the $14 million emergency appropriation bill already passed by the House.

Before it quit Tuesday, the Senate gave first round approval to a bill that would put a $25 minimum on corporate franchise taxes. In the form it was advanced sponsors said it would increase revenue by only $400,000 a year.

Brown Shoe Co. Reports Record Net Sales Year

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Brown Shoe Company, Inc., announced Tuesday consolidated net sales for the fiscal year ending Oct. 31 increased to a record high of $429.4 million.

The sales, the company reported, were up 7.5 per cent over 1969's figure of $399.6 million, producing net earnings of $17.4 million compared to $16.4 million a year earlier.

Brown Shoe earnings per share during the fiscal year were $2.50 compared to $2.57 in 1969. W.L.H. Griffin, chief executive officer, attributed the gains to more favorable market conditions, expansion of retail divisons and increases in wholesale shipments.

Dont worry about your vanadium. You need it for your health, says Dr. Walter Mertz, director of vitamin and mineral research for USDA. However, vanadium deficiency doesn't occur until vanadium in your diet drops below one part per billion.

If every bite held a thousand parts, each one would be about as big as a small speck. If one speck in one bite were vanadium, you'd get one part per billion by eating a bite with that vanadium speck once every nine years.

In practice you need far less vanadium than that per bite.

Instead, you need a tiny, tiny wisp of vanadium at much more frequent intervals.

If you were to ask how an Iowa farm boy got to the Nobel Peace Prize in Mexico by way of the University of Minnesota, a simple answer might be he used a map. Dr. Norman E. Borlaug was given this year's peace prize for his successful development of short strawed, high yielding, widely adapted varieties of wheat.

We didn't ask Dr. Borlaug what map he used to get to this pinnacle of success. We do know it was Dr. E. R. Sears of UMC who mapped the genes of the wheat plant. This work makes it possible for plant breeders to know which genes control which tendencies and traits in this very important food grain.

Your fears that we may someday run out of useable water supplies may be groundless, says a Pennsylvania State University geologist. It has long been known that abundant sources of unpolluted water flow below the ground in water-bearing strata called aquifers. The difficulty has been to find them in an economical manner.

Phillip J. O'Brien has developed a method for trained geologists to detect aquifers with a thermometer. The temperature of the ground above the aquifers is several degrees different than the ground elsewhere. And with rapidly growing sensitivity of airborne infrared devices, it is not impossible that such temperature differentials could be spotted from the air.

Your milk is a lot better, and it's better for you than it was in the days when the entire sanitation procedure consisted of wiping Bossy's "faucets" with a wet rag. With today's standards of cleanliness and the problem of water pollution from organic materials and detergents, cleanliness becomes a major problem for Missouri dairymen.

Our UMC scientists in ag engineering, dairy, and food science and nutrition, are attempting to work our cleaning procedures that not only take care of these problems but also reduce the time and costs involved.

Dr. Dee Graham reports that plans are being studied now in which the small amount of water that is flushed through a pipeline milking system picks up a majority of the organic matter that is to be cleaned out. This polluted water can be set aside for treatment. After that, large amounts of water can be flushed through the system and into the sewers, carrying a very light load of organic matter. Then non-polluting cleaners can finish the job.

When it is done this way, none of the pipeline systems needs to be disassembled. Such "Clean in place" pipelines are among the labor-saving efforts that engineer Don Brooker and others are working on. When they have completed their work, they will know exactly what temperatures, what detergents, and how long a rinse cycle is needed to clean milk solids from flat plates and pipelines.

An apple a day is to doctors as what is to dentists?

The answer, at least in some communities, is fluoride in drinking water. Scientists at the Fifth International Water Quality Symposium in Washington, D.C., were told recently that the dental bill for children in communities where the water supply has fluoride -- either natural or added -- has been shown over the past twenty-five years to be half what it is in communities without fluoride.

Dr. David B. Aft reported on a study of Newburgh, N. Y., one of three cities where controlled testing of fluoride began in 1945. He compared it with the non-fluoride city of Kingston, where parents have had to pay substantially higher dental bills in recent years.

Direction of Special Session Remains Cloudy

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — It is not yet possible to see what kind of revenue program will emerge from the present special legislative (session, barely) over a week old.

Like any other session, this one is shrouded in a general fog of confusion, misinformation (sometimes deliberate) and the self interest of the members.

But some yellow caution lights already are blinking in the fog. Doubts have arisen on both Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' income tax proposal and on his $250 million bond issue recommendation.

On the income tax, designed to raise $19.6 million in the last six months of the fiscal year, some legislators hark back to last April, when the voters rejected a bill that would have had the same rates as the present one.

But this time the issue is a little more clear cut. The current recommendation does not include the so- called "reform" provisions which were widely misunderstood during the referendum campaign last spring.

Actually the reforms would have saved money for most of the small taxpayers but this fact was lost in the general confusion.

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, the deposed president pro tem of the Senate, led the referendum fight. At the time he informed the Senate he would take any future tax increase to the people. He was angry that his own play for a broad scale utility tax had been rejected.

Now he is being quoted again as saying that he might mount another referendum campaign if the governor's income tax proposal is passed. The only way to forestall that would be for both houses to pass the plan with an emergency clause, requiring a two- thirds vote in each house.

As a possible compromise, Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R - Clayton, Senate minority leader has suggested that the tax be approved on an emergency one-year basis so as not to foreclose a possible later referendum.

Comptroller John C. Vaughn, the governor's revenue spokesman, said he would go along with that. Such an approach would at least bail the state out of its financial crisis during the fiscal year ending next June 30.

There seems to be less doubt than before among the legislators that the money is needed. They have felt the protests of their local schools, many of which have had to raise property taxes because state aid did not come up to legislate promises after the income tax was defeated at the polls.

Some also have heard the poignant but disorganized appeals of welfare recipients who face lower monthly checks if more money is not forthcoming before spring. And some may have been importuned by relatives of the unfortunates who have had to be shifted from nursing homes back to state mental hospitals where patient costs are higher.

The referendum idea is a sacred thing in a democracy, going back as far as Thomas Jefferson. He often said he was confident the people would do the right thing to preserve their government and their freedoms if they were properly informed.

Missouri's state capital's official title is "the city of Jefferson." But even here, in this helter- skelter world of today, it cannot be said that citizens are always informed, even though they are the closest to the seat of the state government.

Doubts also have been expressed in both houses about the advisability of the $250 million capital improvements bond issue recommended by the governor -- a catch - up program to help make up for two years of virtual standstill in tate construction.

The Senate Resolutions Committee deferred action until it could find out more about the possible costs of a 25- year-bond issue. The House Appropriations Committee plans to look at the governor's recommended building projects more closely.

Rep. R. J. "Bus" King, R-Clayton, minotiry leader, expressed doubt the special session would have time to consider the proposal properly. He suggested this program could be put off until the regular session starting in January.

In his message to the special session, the governor made it clear that it would be the legislature's job under the Missouri Constitution to raise the necessary revenue to meet the crisis he outlined. He also opened the door for legislators to think up new ways of solving the problem and several such bills already have been introduced.

One of the imponderables in the current session is what the "lame ducks" will do - - the legislators who did not run for re- election or were defeated.

Hearnes said he recognized solution of the revenue problem would be up to the individual consciences of those who will not be back in January.

But he warned that the problem "is like a toothache -- it's something that won't go away."

That leaves the responsibility up to the legislators, and everyone knows their self-interest sometimes gets in the way of objective judgments. Some have financial interests at stake. Some already are running for office in 1972. Some havypersonal convictions that prevail.

As Jefferson put it in his "Autobiography";

"All know the influence of interest on the mind of man, and how unconsciously his judgement is warped by that influence."

Suspension of Electric Rate Hike Extended

JEFFERSON CITY — The date for filing testimony of Missouri Utilities Company of Cape Girardeau in support of its request for a $975,000 electric rate increase was changed today by the Missouri Public Service Commission to Dec. 30.

The company had been directed earlier to file its testimony on Nov. 30. Missouri Utilities said unanticipated delays and causes beyond its control prompted its request for the extension.

Because of the change in date, the commission extended by 30 days the length of the period during which the proposed rates are suspended and the deadline for intervention, which will be 10 days prior to the December 30 hearing.

Missouri Utilities provides electric service to 58 communities located in 13 central and Southeast Missouri counties.

Malden Enters MCB Program

MALDEN — Arnold Mantle, Missouri Community Betterment Specialist, Division of Commerce and Indsutrail Development, Jefferson City, outlined plans Tuesday for Malden's participation in the Missouri Community Betterment Program.

Mantle spoke to a group of interested business and professional people at a meeting held Tuesday morning at the Chamber of Commerce office. Efforts to enroll Malden in the 5-Star Community Betterment Program on both the state and national levels, were inaugurated recently by the local Chamber of Commerce.

Bill Johnson, Chamber manager, stated that the goal of the Chamber was to get Malden involved in the Missouri Community Betterment Program for the purpose of entering competition with other Missouri communities on both the state and national levels. The purpose of the goal, he explained, was to being the profile of Malden up to the standard accepted by M.C.B.P., as this plays an important role in attracting industry to a community.

Mantle outlined the five-star program which must include: Education: Utilities; Transportation; Community Planning; and Community Service.

The group present, which included Mrs. Raymond Dunscombe, Business and Professional Womens Club; Phil Shelton, ExecutiveDirector, B.E. D.C.; Joe Mosley, Chamber President; and Johnson, Chamber manager, agreed to take the first steps in enrolling Malden in the M.C.B. 5-Star Program, and since Malden is so engaged, as the program develops more information will be released by the Chamber office as to the progress of community improvements and the efforts in this direction.

Manufacturing Firm Finds 4-Day Work Week Popular

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — Paul Patterson's Jeep is parked outside, ready for three days of "snow-busting" in the high Rockies overlooking this fashionable Denver suburb. Lori Coffelt is looking forward to three days with her children. Executive George Gregory has a golf date Friday, and plans to finish paneling his basement playroom the rest of the weekend.

"Rest of the weekend?" Right.

Come 4 p.m. every Thursday, Paul, Lori, George and 450 other employes of C. A. Norgren Co., walk out of their modern plant, drive through the landscaped grounds and begin a three-day weekend.

Norgren's employes put in 37 hours a week at work. But it's spread over four work days, not five.

A United Steelworkers union survey shows Norgren is one of at least 27 companies—employing a total of some 6,500 people —that now have a four day work week in one form or another.

The four-day week, a dream of most every working man and the goal of many unions, is just one of many innovations adopted by Norgren, a manufacturer of air processing systems which prides itself as a long-time leader in industrial relations.

Profit sharing came 25 years ago. Pleasant working conditions and music piped through the airy lunchroom are other innovations. So's the landscaping around the sprawling two-story brick and stone building.

The $15-million-a-year family-owned company instituted the four-day week on Aug. 31. It meant going from a traditional 40-hour week to 37 hours, and amounted to an hourly salary increase of 7½ per cent.

The company says applications for employment jumped 300 per cent the week after the announcement, and have held at that level since.

"It's kind of early to tell just what economic effect it's having on us," said George Gregory, head of Norgren's advertising and marketing. "We get the general feeling we will be able to maintain or increase our production." He said a detailed study of the economic impact had not been completed.

The great majority of the employes like it, he said, although "there were a few grumbles about the long hours."

The plant runs two shifts, the day shift from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, and 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday. That's 37 hours, with a half hour for lunch. The night shift comes on at 5 p.m. and works through 3 a.m. except on Thursday when the shift ends at 2 a.m.

With a degree of pride, Gregory said unions had attempted to establish themselves at Norgren twice in the past. "They weren't successful," he said.

One immediate asset from the innovation, he said, was the problem of shipping.

"Now," Gregory said, "we are ready to ship Thursday afternoon, instead of Friday." The crates of valves, filters and other products which Norgren makes to protect air operated equipment, are picked up from the loading dock Thursday and reach the express agency in downtown Denver that evening. "That means they leave town early Friday," Gregory said, "and frequently are delivered to our customers by Monday."

Befor the four-day week, he said, shipments did not leave the city until Monday. Most of Norgren's domestic customers are on the East Coast or in California, he said, "and that two days makes a difference."

Suppliers, on the other hand, have found that they must make deliveries Monday through Thursday.

Employes agreed generally that the third day off was expensive. "It cost me money," Gregory said, noting he had purchased two suits on a recent Friday. "We have more time to spend money," Patterson explained.

Alumni Alliance Formed

COLUMBIA — A unique alumni organization, designed to serve the needs of individual campuses as well as the total university, has been established by the alumni associations of the four campuses of the University of Missouri.

The organization is the Alliance of Alumni Associations of the University of Missouri, which officially came into being during a meeting of alumni representatives from each of the four campuses -- Columbia, Kansas City, Rolla dn St. Louis. The organizational meeting, held last weekend in Columbia, culminated a period of study and planning which stretched over a period of about two years.

The University of Missouri has about 160,000 alumni. While most are in Missouri, many reside throughout the United States and in all parts of the world.

"Formation of the alliance is going to permit a new dimension of service to the University of Missouri by its alumni," according to G. H. Entsminger, Vice President for Development. "It in no way will intrude on the independency of the individual campus alumni associations. But the alliance will allow the alumni to speak as a single voice on many vital matters which affect the total University and thus pertain to all four campuses."

Entsminger cited an example already calling for action by the alliance. It is the naming of an alumni representative to the search committee being created by the Board of Curators to help in finding a new President of the University to replace Dr. John C. Weaver. At its meeting over the weekend, the alliance designated a 4-man committee to select the alumni representative who will aid in the search.

Entsminger said that, as far as he knows, the alliance now functioning at the University of Missouri is the first alumni organization of its type in America for a multi-campus university. He praised the campus associations for their willingness and wisdom to work for both the entire University and the individual campuses.

The alliance is made up of five alumni representatives from each of the four campuses, with officers being a Chairman and a Vice Chairman elected by the representatives from the 20 members.

Officers elected last weekend are Cullen Coin, Chairman, an attorney from Jefferson City, and Patrick J. Nash, Vice Chairman, who is commercial property manager for J. C. Nichols Co. in Kansas City. Coil is a graduate of the University of Missouri- Kansas City

Terms of office for the Chairman and Vice Chairman are two years and the officers cannot succeed themselves. Under rules of the alliance, the chairmanship must rotate to a different campus represntative each two years so that each campus association will hold the top position on a regular basis.

While the alliance is officially organized and operating under a broad outline of goals and guidelines, specific functions now are in the process of being formulated. Basically, they will revolve around providing whatever measure of coordination that will be helpful to each individual campus association and the total University of Missouri.

James W. Stephens of Kansas City has served as temporary chairman during the planning and study period which preceded formation of the alliance. A graduate of the University of Missouri - Rolla. Stephens is Vice President for Community Services of the Missouri Public Service Co. in Kansas City.

Transogram Reports Loss

NEW YORK — Transogram Company, Inc. New York, has reported a net loss, largely non-recurring, of$2,328,000 for the nine months ended Sept. 30, as compared with a loss of $293,000 for the nine months a year ago. Sales for the nine month period were $21,642,000 compared with $17,938,000 last year.

Joseph Bruna, recently elected president of Transogram, stated that the 1970 loss is largely non-recurring, arising from operations being discontinued. He said when the sale of the company's toy and game division and one other unprofitable operation is completed in the near future, continuing operations for the company would be profitable.

Bruna said that the personal bankruptcy petition filed by Lammot duPont Copeland, Jr., board chairman of Transogram, took the management of the company by surprise.

"We have been able to cope with the direct effects but the indirect effects of this adverse publicity will take some time to over come," Bruna said.

He reported that the generally difficult economic conditions prevailing throughout the country this year and other factors had adversely affected Transogram. "The toy and game divsion suffered heavy losses in the past few years and has failed to show any material improvement," Bruna said. "The company is presently negotiating for the sale of most of the assets of the division to Miner Industries for cash and notes. The toy division will continue on a much smaller scale utilizing the liquidity from the sale to Miner."

Following an evaluation of all the other divisions management has concluded that the sale of certain elements of the company would improve both liquidity and future profitaility, he said.

Of the new acquisitions, Quaker Masonry Company displayed notable long-run earnings potential with relatively low employement of capital funds, Mr. Bruna reported. "Quaker's operations during 1970 reflected the usual problems of rapidly expanding business, but it is now structured to make meaningful contributions to the over-all operating results of the company. Its backlog of contracts indicates a probable volume of business of about $12,000,000 in 1971," he said.

Souther Precision Industries, a manufacturer of barbecues, cookers and other leisure time products, is negotiating a sale for cash of its chain link fence fittings division as well as the sale, also for cash, of a subsidiary, a chain link fence weaver. The proceeds of these sales will be used for the expansion of Southern Precision Industries' leaisure products line.

He said that a "small but aggressive" toy import business, Frankonia Products, acquired this year, will be retained in conjunction with the other toy activities.

Bruna said, "Our objective is to consolidate the operations of the company into proven, profitable and stable activities mostly in the leisure products field, Quaker Masonry being the only exception. This restructuring will increase the company's liquidity and enable us to accomplish our objective. However, it is producing a substantial, non-recurring loss, as reported. While these losses might hurt for the moment, they will strengthen the company for the future."

Key to Economic Shift May be in Nixon Speech

By EDITORIAL RESEARCH REPORTS

NEW YORK — President Nixon will address the National Association of Manufacturers in New York City Friday in what has been billed as a major speech on the U.S. economy.

The nation's economic mix in 1970 has featured uncontrolled inflation, creeping recession, growing joblessness, high interest rates, declining stock prices, rising budget deficits, and a grumpy public. After reading the election returns, President Nixon's political instincts tell him it is time for a change.

All signs point to a shift from fine tuning to vigorous manipulation. Even the conservative National Association of Manufacturers might welcome steps designed to end a long period of uncertainty about the direction of national economic policy.

At a minimum, President Nixon is prepared to start putting the heat on labor to hold down wage demands and on business to curb price increases. The methods are variously known as "jawboning', or "national incomes policy," but the aim is the same: to bring presidential pressure on two major contributors to inflation.

Nixon has been moving away from the hands off policy on jawboning that he followed in his first 17 months in office. He took an intermediate step on June 17 -- his last major economic pronouncement -- when he established a 23-member National Commission on Productivity. The Commission was directed to publish periodic "Inflation Alert" reports prepared by the Council of Economic Advisers highlighting excessive wage and price rises.

The commission's first inflation alert, issued Aug. 7, showed a caution bordering on timidity. The document identified several price and wage increases important in raising price levels, but it pointed no finger of blame. The White House promises a more direct and tougher line in a second inflation alert due to be issued shortly. The new posture was disclosed a few hours after the Labor Department reported, Nov. 24, that consumer prices rose five - tenths of one per cent in October. Consumer prices are 5.9 per cent higher than a year ago at this time.

The Committee for Economic Development, for one, has called on the government to influence private wage and price decisions, though not by mandatory controls. To go with the stick of more moral suasion, President Nixon may have a carrot to offer in the form of a more expansionary fiscal and monetary policy.

How far is the Nixon administration willing to go in an effort to turn the economy around and get it moving again? According to one report, the revised administration game plan calls for a moderately faster growth of money and credit, a substantial rise in federal spending and, in extremis, tax reductions.

Lowering taxes in the face of a possible $15 billion federal deficit this fiscal year would be expansionary indeed. Combined with projected higher federal spending and easier money, the new mix could turn the tide against unemployment.

Of course, it also might fan inflation -- to the discomfort of the international bankers who have it in their power to attack the dollar. And a strategy of expansion written in red ink would get a cool reception from Wilbur Mills, chairman of the tax- writing House Ways and Means Committee.

Mills contends that chronic deficits are "the cause of much of our inflationary dilemma today." Yet it is a measure of the growing panic in Washington that President Nixon may be willing to take on the gnomes of Zurich and Wilbur Mills, too.

Khrushchev Memoirs Say Ike's Generosity Aided Soviet Role

NEW YORK (AP) — The second installment of Nikita S. Khrushchev's reminiscences says that if Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower hadn't let the Russians take Berlin in 1945, the Soviet position in postwar Europe "might have turned out quite a bit worse."

The installment published in the Dec. 4 issue of Life magazine says Stalin had a great respect for Eisenhower's "decency, generosity and chivalry" and enjoyed a rapport with him that the Soviet dictator had with no other allied leader except President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"Stalin said that if it hadn't been for Eisenhower, we wouldn't have succeeded in capturing Berlin," the article says. "The Americans could have been there first. Eisenhower held his troops back and halted their offensive, thus allowing our troops to take Berlin.

"If he hadn't done this, the question of Germany might have been decided differently, and our own position might have turned out quite a bit worse."

As the German army was being crunched between the Americans and British on the west and the Soviets on the east, the article continues, "they moved west to surrender to the Americans. Stalin addressed himself to Eisenhower, saying that Soviet troops had shed their blood to crush the Germans and now the Germans were surrendering to the Americans.

"Eisenhower ordered the commander of the German army to surrender to the Russians."

Khrushchev said it was "difficult to judge what the intentions of the Allies were toward the end of the war. I wouldn't exclude the possibility that their desire to postpone an assault on Hitler's Western Front was dictated by their desire to put a still greater burden on the shoulders of the Soviet Union and to bleed us even more ...

"The Western Allies were certainly not interested in strengthening us. England and America, from their class positions, knew they had to help us to an extent, but they still wanted the Soviet Union to be considerably weaker after the war so that they could dictate their will to us ...

"Nevertheless, we must still give credit to the Allies for their contribution to the common cause ... Unfortunately our historical works about World War II have perpetrated an illusion. They have been written out of a false sense of pride and out of a fear to tell the truth about our allies' contribution—all because Stalin himself held an incorrect, unrealistic position. He knew the truth, but he admitted it only to himself in the toilet."

The article speaks of Stalin in softer tones than the first one in the Nov. 27 edition of Life. In it Stalin was depicted as murderer of thousands who became unbalanced during the war.

"Khrushchev Remembers: Part II" continues in the derogatory vein, however. It says "Stalin's nerves cracked when he learned about the fall of France."

After the successful defense of Moscow in December 1941, Khrushchev says he found Stalin "a new man. He had pulled himself together and was acting like a real soldier.... But I knew what sort of hero he was. I'd seen him when he had been paralyzed by his fear of Hitler, like a rabbit in front of a boa constrictor. And my opinion of him hadn't changed."

Although the Soviet press published a statement over Khrushchev's signature repudiating the memoirs, reliable sources in Moscow said last week the former premier probably had taped the reminiscences. These sources said the Kremlin probably leaked the memoirs to Life before they could be edited and checked for accuracy, hoping that they would be discredited by errors Khrushchev made due to faulty memory and lack of access to official records.

Science Award To Cape State

WASHINGTON, D.C. --United States Representative Bill D. Burlison today announced a National Science Foundation $7,000 award for Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Giradeau.

Burlison pointed out that the institutional grant, awarded annually by the Foundation, is designed to help maintain a strong academic base for science. Their purpose is to assist institutions of higher education in carrying out their own plans and priorities through use of these funds for direct costs of science activities.

Congressman Burlison stated that the size of each individual institutional grant was based on the amount of Federal research awards received during the last fiscal year.

Winds of Change Begin To Blow in Portugal

By EDITORAL RESEACH REPORTS

WASHINGTON —Portugal's National Assembly meets Wedneday to consider reform legislation.

Portuguese has been called the "clandestine language" because much of the world doesn't know it exists. Somewhat in the same position is Portugal itself. Tucked away in a remote corner of Western Europe and dreaming of past imperial glory, the country, seems hardly touched by the 20th century.

But since Dr. Antonio de Oliverira Salazar, the iron- fisted dictator for 40 years, was forced to step down from the premiership by a stroke in 1968, feeble and uncertain winds of change have begun to stir. And the death of Salazar on July 27 opened the way for Dr. Marcello Caetano, his successor, to make necessary shifts in Portugal's economic and political life.

So far, reports Richard Mowrer of the Christian Science Monitor, Caetano "has eased press censorship -- somewhat. He has curbed the political police-- somewhat." There has been a turn toward a more vigorous economic policy to improve living standards, now among the lowest in Europe. The new session of the National Assembly is expected to receive a law abolishing press censorship and make other revisions of the constitution.

No one expected a whirlwind of change after the 63- year- old Caetano took over the premiership. After all, he helped Salazar build the "New State" that has kept Portugal in a straitjacket. Caetano is a conservative Catholic who dislikes attempts to question authority. Like Salazar, he believes in the corporate state, with consensus rather than party politics.

The regime is more liberal than it was, however. The authorities have shown new tolerance for films and plays that would have been banned or cut in the old days. The Moscow Circus was recently permitted to play in Lisbon for the first time.

To opponents of the regime, Caetano is merely opening a safety valve in a society that remains basically closed. Mario Soares, an opposition leader freed from detention by Caetano but later exiled, has charged that the premier used the presence of Salazar on the scene for nearly two years after his stroke as an excuse not to make reforms. He "no longer has an alibi," Soares declares.

Two major problems confront the Caetano regime -- Portugal's lagging economy and the continuing guerrilla war in its African colonies. An estimated 140,000 Portuguese troops are tied down in Angola, Mozambique and Guinea with no end in sight. Caetano was the architect of much of the policy for the African colonies and is not expected to adopt a more moderate position, writes Douglas L. Wheeler in Foreign Affairs.

Portugal spends twice as much for defense as does Spain with an economy that is even less robust. Under Caetano, there has been a switch to a more expansionist approach to encourage investment. But conservative, family - based groups still dominate banking and commerce. Some 130,000 people a year are emigrating, mainly to Europe, Brazil and the United States, although the government has tried to limit the exodus.

In 1928, Salazar was summoned from his university classroom to work for "the moral and material regeneration" of Portugal. He did not turn the clock back so much as he tried to hold the hands still. His successor may not be able to do so much longer.

Caroline Becoming Teenager

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON--To persons of a certain age, the realization that Caroline Kennedy is about to enter her teens will serve as a vaguely depressing reminder of the passage of time. It seems only yesterday that John F. Kennedy's daughter was photographed astride his shoulders or romping in the President's White House office. Still, the inescapapble fact is that Caroline was 13 years old Friday.

She is described as charming, bright, pretty, shy and sensitive. In a recent interview, she said she had given thought to joining the Peace Corps if it is "still...going on by the time I could join."

Caroline and her brother, John, who will be 10 years old on Wednesday, have been carefully shielded from publicity by their mother. Like many other presidential children, however, they arelikely to retain celebrity status for many years. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Theodore Rossevelt's daughter, remains a leading light of Washington society at age 86. Mrs. Longworth probably is the only daughter of a President to have had a color -- Alice blue -- named after her.

Relatively few sons of Presidents have taken up carreers in national politics. The exception that proves the rule was, of course, John Quincy Adams, who served both house of Congress and as President. Robert A. Taft was the only other son of a President to be elected senator; five presidential sons served in the House. Robert Todd Lincoln adamantly refused to exploit his father's name for political ends, and it was only with reluctance that he accepted the post of Secretary of War in the Garfield and Arthur administrations.

White House children attract more attention nowadays than in former years. One reason may be that there are fewer of them. With the exception of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who had five boys and a girl, no President since Theodore has had more than three offspring. The all-time presidential champion in this respect was John Tyler, who sired eight boys and seven girls. Tyler's youngest daughter, Pearl, lived until 1947 -- more than a century after her father was President.

Jack Anderson Special

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Party Line; AMA tries to Dictate next top U.S. Health Official.

WASHINGTON--Nikita Khrushchev, the old shoe thumper, is back in the news.

His memoors, which he has disowned in a statement out of Moscow but which Life Magazine insists are authentic, are being serialized in the West.

The best sources available to this column say that Khrushchev dictated his memoirs all right. However, some of his reminiscences go against the current Kremlin line, and he obediently repudiated them.

For the wart-nosed, baggy-pants former ruler of all of the Russians understands the politics of power. When he was a rising commissar, Dictator Josef Stalin ordered him to entertain top officials by dancing the Gopak--a dance that required the pudgy Khrushchev to squat on his heels and kick out his legs.

He performed the dance, grinning through the sweat. Afterward he told a colleague: "When Stalin says dance, a wise man dances." Khrushchev still considers it wise to do the Kremlin's bidding.

His own preciptious fall from power in 1964 was a traumatic experience for him. He was banished to a dacha that formerly had been occupied by his finance minister.

KHRUSHCHEV'S TRAUMA

For six months, Khrushchev moped around the house. He lost his famour embullience, his earthy humor and 32 pounds. His downfall was so painful to the old man that his wife, Nina, banned all mention of the subject in his presence.

He slowly began to snap out of it, however, and to take comfort in recallin his days of glory. Increasingly, he babbled to his grandchildren about past struggles and triumphs, and he browsed among the trinkets and trophies of the past--a radio from Egypt's late President Nasser, a replica of the Taji Mahal from India's late Prime Minister Nehru, a collection of pottery from Britian's ex-Prime Minister Harold Mac[illegible].

The old man also began taking daily strolls, weather permitting, through the countryside with no company but his dog and a transistor radio. He took up photography, and his wife joked about his switch to the other end of the camera. He even did his own darkroom work.

The deposed Khrushchev suffered no hardships. He and his wife were attended by two maids, two cooks, a gardener and two chauffeurs, all paid by the state. The doctor who had watched over him in the Kremlin continued to be available. He was hospitalized briefly for inflammation of the gall bladder, is now back in ths hospital with a heart ailment.

But to the 225 million people whom he once bossed, Nikita Khrushchev became a nonetity. His name was purged out of publications that once praised him. His face, the most familiar in all Russia, was suddenly deleted or blurred out of pictures and movies. Soviet textbooks ignored him. Students weren't allowed to mention him.

OUT OF OBSCURITY

He was partially rescued from obscurity by Parade magazine's enterprising editor, Jess Gorkin, who in 1965 began to seek out the story of Khrushchev in retirement. It took Gorkin until 1967 finally to put the story together.

Krushchev, in his statement for Parade, accurately summed up his place in Russia. "I am a pensioner," he said simply. His pension: 550 rubles a month (the official exchange rate is one ruble to $1.).

Meanwhile, the onetime Cock of the Kremlin eagerly reads the Russian newspapers to keep up with events, grumping over names he doesn't recognize and developments he doesn't like.

The flap over the Soviet submarine facility at Cienfuegos, Cuba, brings back memories of his own Cuban crisis in 1962. The late President John F. Kennedy forced him to withdraw Soviet missiles from Cuba.

Yet Krushchev regards Kennedy as his favorite American and looks back upon the showdown as a triumph instead of a humiliation. In return for pulling out the missiles, he tells friends, the U.S. agreed not to invade Communist Cuba.

Even his old humor is returning. With a mischievous chortle, Khruschev tells how he slept on a Kremlin couch in his clothers throughout the Cuban crisis, because he had hear of a British official who had been caught in bed by the 1956 Suez crisis. This official, who prided himself on his correct dress, dashed around in his shorts until the emergency had abated. Khrushchev explains that he wasn't going to be caught with his pants down.

Now in the hospital whether with or without his pants, the 76-year-old pensioner is going to tell it the way his former subordinates in the Kremlin direct.

DOCTORS: CHOICE

The politically powerful American Medical Association, which blocked the appointment of Stanley Knowles as the nations's top health official, is now trying to dictate who should get the job next.

Because of the AMA's opposition to Knowles, Roger Egeberg was appointed Assistant Secretary of the Health, Education, and Welfare Department in charge of health. He raised such a ruckus in the backrooms over the Nixon administration's neglect of health problems, however, that he has now been asked to resign.

The three leading contenders for his job are Food and Drug Commissioner Charles Edwards, Mental Health Director Vernon Wilson and Maryland's Public Health Director Neil Solomon. The AMA has run its own FBI-like check on all three contenders. Last week, the doctors' lobby paid a private call upon Secretary Elliot Richardson to discuss with him who his choice should be.

Fire Razes Noranda Sheds

NEW MADRID — At the Noranda Plant on St. Jude Industrial Park Nov. 19, siding on the south side of the huge potline building was melted and framing on the interior was burned from a flame in small sheds adjacent to the building.

A security man told the fire department there was an explosion in one of the sheds preceding the fire in the late afternoon.

Workmen at the plant and the fire department got that flame under control and damage to the pot- line building was held to a minimum.

The sheds were destroyed.

Bills Introduced To Regulate Sports

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Two new revenue producing measures reached the Missouri House Tuesday.

One, by Rep. Paul Simon, D-St. Louis, would license and regulate all sporting events, not just boxing and wrestling.

Each event would have to have a $10 license and pay the state 5 per cent of the gross receipts. There was no indication from Simon as to how much he thought the plan would bring the state.

The other bill would require all retailers of fireworks, including those little roadside stands, to have a regular retailers' license, charge the 3 per cent sales tax and turn it over to the state. It was offered by Rep. Tom Ryan, D-Kansas city.

Meat Inspection Standards Law Effective Tuesday

WASHINGTON — The consumer crusade is about to score a major victory - three years after it was originally won. Regulations requiring the states to establish meat inspection standards for local slaughter houses and packing plants equal to those of the federal government go into effect Tuesday.

The Wholesome Meat Act of 1967 was approved by Congress amid considerable fanfare only after a bitter struggle by consumer groups. It gave the states three years to come up with acceptable programs. Now the grace period has run out. Federal inspectors will fan out on Dec. 15 to see if the regulations are being met. If not, federal inspection standards will apply.

Department of Agriculture officials told Editorial Research Reports that only nine states--California, Maryland, Florida, New Mexico, Idaho, Washington, Tennessee, Kansas and South Carolina -- have met these standards as the deadline approaches. North Dakota has already said it cannot, and federal regulations will apply there. The remaining 40 states were said to be making progress but have yet to qualify.

The nation was shocked three years ago to learn that about 15,000 of the some 17,000 slaughter houses and meat packing plants operating in the country did not come under the Meat Inspection Act of 1907. That act established federal standards of inspecting for meat crossing state lines. The purely in- state operations -- mostly small and seasonal -- produce about 15 per cent of the meat consumed by Americans, especially the poor.

Because they were not involved in interstate commerce, these plants had to satisfy only state inspection regulations. This meant that in seven states they had to meet no standards at all. Those states had no inspection requirements of any kind. Twenty- nine states had mandatory regulations of varying degrees of strictness. Another 12 states had voluntary inspection. Two had very limited laws.

Sickening revelations about conditions in the state- regulated slaughter houses and packing plants rivaled those made by Upton Sinclair in The Jungle -- the book which brought about the 1907 inspection law. Describing one such plant, an Agriculture Department report stated: "The operation is located in an old building that is falling apart. It is infested with flies, cockroaches and rodents... The whole place smells bad, the stench is terrible."

Sinclair's modern counterpart may have been Ralph Nader. A series of articles he wrote for The New Republic focused attention on conditions in local meat producing operations. Although Rep. Neal Smith (D-Iowa) had been trying since 1961 to improve standards, the public was not aroused until Nader pointed out that significant portions of the uninspected meat "are diseased and are processed in grossly unsanitary conditions, and its true condition is masked by the latest preservatives, additives and coloring agents."

Imposition of federal inspection standards on local meat processors does not mean consumers can afford to let down their guard. The General Accounting Office reported in June 1970 that either unsanitary conditions or contaminated meat was found in 44 of 48 Midwestern plants inspected last year. Forty were federally inspected and eight were in the process of changing over to federal inspection. The conditions have since been remedied, but the agency recommended more vigilant enforcement of the law.

Frankly Speaking

A BAD FARM BILL

Despite the "no" votes of most farm-state Senators -- including me -- the Senate last week approved the conference report on the Agriculture Act of 1970.

I voted against it because it is a bad farm bill.

With parity now at its lowest level in the last 37 years -- 70 per cent -- it was astounding that the Administration asked he Congress for authority to further reduce farm prices and farm income levels.

Yet that is exactly what they did, and their wishes were reflected in the final legislation, which contained few of the Senate provisions.

TOO MUCH AUTHORITY

Never before in the history of farm legislation has an Administration demanded such broad authorities for setting price support and production control levels for farm commodities.

Under this bill the Secretary of Agriculture will have, in effect, a signed blank check to fill in as he sees fit. The esteemed chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, Senator Ellender, aptly labeled it a "legislative monstrosity."

As a presidential candidate in September, 1968, Richard Nixon called 74 percent of parity "intolerable" for farmers. "Farmers are entitled to better," candidate Nixon proclaimed, "and I pledge that in my Administration they will have better." Now that this bill has passed, we can only pray that the Administration will use its broad authority to make good on its promises.

COULD BE DISASTROUS

Without full and proper use of the authorities it would grant to the Secretary, this bill could be disastrous to farmers and the farm economy -- the bulwark of our national economy. It could be especially disastrous to farmers in Missouri, since its worst provisions are those relating to cotton and feed grains.

Some argue that this bill is somewhat better than the one we had in 1958. It may well be, but all the cosmetics in the world cannot make this bill look pretty.

Hopefully when this bill expires in 1974 we will have an Administration -- either this one or a new one -- which will help Congress write a farm bill that better assists farmers and the farm economy.

The output of harvesting machines of all kinds increased from 60,000 in 1880 to 250,000 in 1885, according to New Holland, the farm equipment division of Sperry Rand.

Law Students Help Solve Legal Problems

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — University of Michigan law students have lent their expertise to a gun control ordinance for Ann Arbor, an antipollution measure for Delta County and a bill regulating the distribution of abandoned property in Grand Rapids.

Through an organization formed about eight months ago and called the Legislative Aid Bureau—LAB—the students provide their services without pay.

The program is handled by student volunteers who work in their spare time, without academic credit.

"Students have tremendous ideas on ways to solve problems," said Thomas Brown of Shawnee Mission, Kan., a second-year law student and LAB chairman.

The program is under the guidance of Prof. William Pierce, director of the law school's legislative research center.

Pierce said in an interview the program fills a gap for many municipalities which have neither the resources nor the money to research proposed ordinances on their own. In most cases, when a city or county needs help in drawing up legislation, an official will visit the students on the Ann Arbor campus to discuss the problem.

The student lawyers receive more requests than they can fill.

Most times, three or four students work on a project togethmore requests than they can fill.

Most times, three or four students work on a project together, completing their research and drafting the legislation in from 10 to 100 working hours.

The student volunters worked closely with Ann Arbor city offcials in drafting a gun control bill adopted by the city last spring.

They also have drawn up a proposed ordinance which would require local retailers to cooperate in the collection of nonreturnable bottles, which the city would distribute to glass recycling centers.

Sometimes we may feel that it is beyond our human power to help another person, but it is never beyond God's power. There is no need that is too great for Him to fulfill, no distance that is too great for Him to span. We express our love for all those dear to me by freeing them from overconcern. We release them into God's loving care.

KERSHNER-ROWE COMMENTARY

By Howard Kershner and Edward Rowe

Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia has said:

"I believe in a meritocracy. Our policy is a government in Rhodesia based on merit, where people won't worry whether you are African or European. Our policy is that people eventually won't look at you and say you are a Black Rhodesian or a White Rhodesian, but that you are the best man for the job."

This doesn't look like white domination and oppression. It looks like recognition of ability as rapidly as it develops. It is a common-sense program of recognizing quality wherever it appears and entrusting it with responsibility and recognition.

An increasing number of the blacks vote every year. Their incomes are rising and many of them are now paying substanial sums in taxes.

The black votes on exactly the same qualifications as the whites, namely, ownership of a minimum of property, a steady job paying around $100 a month or four years of common school education. Who would want the voting qualifications to be lower for blacks or white ? Who can doubt that as blacks gain more education and more skill, they will participate more and more in the affairs of government. No job is barred to them by reason of race. Quality is the only standard.

The Rhodesian government is very intelligent in maintaining certain minimal standards for both blacks and whites as a necessary qualification for holding responsible positions in government, educational and cultural activities.

Higher Sales, Earnings for Wal-Mart Stores

BENTONVILLE, Ark. -- Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. reported higher sales and earnings for the third quarter and the first nine months of the fiscal year ending October 31, 1970. According to Sam M. Walton, president of the discount department store chain, earnings for the first nine months ending Oct. 31, were up 32 per cent over the comparable period of 1969 while third quarter figures showed an increase of 31 per cent over last year.

Net earnings for this year's nine months period totalled $1,041,275, or 79 cents per common share compared with last year's total of $789,122, or 60 cents a share. For the third quarter of 1970, earnings were $483,512 equal to 36 cents a share compared with $368,818 or the 28 cents a share earned in 1969.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Avoid Scraping Knuckles In Grating Lemon Peel

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Jeanne who has trouble grating orange and lemon peel that she should grate such fruit while it is whole and have no more trouble with scraped knuckles. Grate all around the lemon or orange but be sure not to go down to the pulp. She can then cut the fruit and squeeze out the juice.—DOT

DEAR POLLY—Jeanne will have no more trouble grating lemon peel if she cuts the lemon, or an orange, in half and then squeezes out the juice. Put the outer skin in a plastic container and store in the freezer compartment of the refrigerator. It is well to keep some on hand but, if not, do this a day ahead of the time needed. When frozen the peel grates much faster and easier. I keep an inexpensive toothbrush in my kitchen drawer to use for cleaning the grater so I have no problems. I never discard lemon or orange rinds and always have some frozen ones on hand.—CONNIE

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I find the writing I do with many ballpoint pens is splotchy. I hope some reader can tell me what causes this and what I can do to prevent it.—MRS. P. L. B.

DEAR POLLY—When I saw patterned queen-sized sheets advertised as a "special," I bought four to use as top sheets for double-beds but, lo and behold, the crazy-quilt pattern of these sheets was just darling as a spread. I dug out some old ruffled pillow shams which matched perfectly even though the sheets were long enough to tuck in under the pillows. Such sheets were cheaper than spreads, washable, no-iron, lighter weight. So many pretty prints are available that it is no trouble to find a pattern appropriate for any bedroom decor. I would advise anyone trying this idea to get the king size for double beds and queen size for twin beds.—SUE

DEAR POLLY—Hope you don't object to a man commenting for your column. (Polly's note—We love it.) I like to cook but hate cleaning up. When trying to clean crusted or burned surfaces I have found that one of those ammoniated household cleaners cuts through quicker and easier than soaking in a dishwashing detergent.—A. G. H.

SANTA CLAUS—DUTCH STYLE. A young boy has a private word with the white-bearded character he knows so well. It's St. Nicholas, friend of all believing children, in Amsterdam for his traditional visit.

Embargo Put On K.C. Grain Shipments

KANSAS CITY (AP)—An embargo has been placed on all grain shipments requiring inspection in Kansas City because of a strike by grain inspectors.

William Mahoney, district transportation officer for the Association of American Railroads, said the embargo will continue until the dispute is settled. He said it was ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The embargo applies only to railroad yards in Kansas City, Mo., and does not affect Kansas City, Kan.

All six Kansas City, Mo., inspectors and a trainee turned in their licenses Friday, demanding higher pay. Twelve other state employes among the 73 in the grain inspection department went out with them.

Robert C. O'Brien, president of the Kansas City Board of Trade, said about 400 carloads of wheat, corn and soybeans were expected to arrive today, most of them destined for the Missouri yards.

Three out-of-town inspectors sent to Kansas City won't be able to handle all the work, O'Brien said. He said some shipments might be diverted elsewhere.

A spokesman for the inspectors said "Missouri inspectors get $650 a month and in Kansas they get from $704 to $856. The five-year man in Kansas also draws $10 an hour for overtime. Our man would just get his straight salary."

Dexter Davis, Missouri agriculture commissioner, spent the weekend in Kansas City trying to negotiate a settlement.

Plea Ruling Hints New Court Turn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has given its first clear indication that President Nixon may be able to count on his kind of criminal law decisions.

A 6-3 ruling Monday on the first important criminal case of the term upheld guilty pleas from defendants who insist they are innocent.

In what may become a pattern, the three solid liberals remaining from the Warren court found themselves in a losing bloc. They are William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall.

The case was the first important vote for Justice Harry A. Blackmun, who sided with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and the five other justices.

The ruling dealt with a Winston-Salem, N.C., man, Henry C. Alford, who pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in 1963 rather than face a jury and a possible death sentence on first-degree murder charges.

Alford insisted he was innocent but was pleading guilty only to rule out a death penalty. He was sentenced by the judge to 30 years.

The Supreme Court decision keeps him on a North Carolina prison farm instead of in a courtroom fighting at a new trial for his freedom. The U.S. Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., had held Alford was entitled to a new trial.

Plea bargaining is a useful technique for cutting down on trials and the bother they cause. Whether such pleas are really voluntary is a subject that has divided lower courts.

Brennan, Douglas and Marshall said pleas like Alford's are a product of duress and should not be accepted. But the majority, through Justice Byron R. White, called that argument "an exercise in arid logic."

The ruling appears to run counter to a 1968 decision invalidating the federal kidnaping law's death penalty provision. Then, by a 6-2 vote, the court said defendants were being forced to plead guilty since only a jury could sentence them to death.

Two members of that majority, Earl Warren and Abe Fortas, are gone. Two others, Potter Stewart and John M. Harlan, teamed up with the 1968 dissenters, White and Hugo L. Black, and with the two Nixon men, Burger and Blackmun, to produce the guilty plea decision.

Volpe Proposes 14-City Rail Passenger Network

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe Monday proposed 14 cities for service from the new quasi-government corporation set up to rescue failing rail passenger lines.

The cities included form a national network but exclude from mandatory service such major metropolitan areas as Denver, Minneapolis, Atlanta and Phoenix.

"We have made what I think are rational reductions in the existing and unintegrated passenger train service," Volpe said. "But we have done this with the view toward organizing it into a cohesive system and making it a financial success."

The cities recommended would be served by the National Railroad Passenger Corporation, commonly called Railpax. It will assume management May 1, 1971 of medium and long distance passenger runs unwanted by the nation's railroads.

Congress, the Interstate Commerce Commission, state railroad commissions, and representatives of railway management and labor have 30 days to comment on the proposed national system. Volpe must designate a final system 30 days later.

Volpe recommended the following city-pairs for service: Boston to New York, Washington to New York, New York to Buffalo, Detroit to Chicago, Chicago to Cincinnati, St. Louis to Chicago, New York to Miami, Chicago to Miami, New York to New Orleans, New York to Chicago, Washington St. Louis, Chicago to Houston, Chicago to New Orleans, Seattle to Chicago, San Francisco to Chicago, and Los Angeles to Chicago.

Carl L. Lyon, acting chief of the Federal Railroad Administration, said the new corporation will improve services but reduce the number of trains.

"Railpax is a way of revitalizing passenger service at a lower level than now but saving something we can build on in the future.

"There will be fewer intercity trains than the current 376 but those remaining will be a great deal better," he said in an interview.

The trains, Lyon said, will be cleaner and newer, run faster and on time and include more sleeping and dining accommodations.

In addition, he said, the national system will allow better connecting service and computerized ticketing, information and reservations.

"We hope to attract some of those who are now flying or driving between cities by the comfort and high speed," Lyon said.

Congress patterned Railpax after the successful Communications Satellite Corp., to take over passenger routes for creation of a national system.

NATO Allies Pledge $1 Billion Outlay for European Defense

BRUSSELS (AP) — Ten European members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization announced plans today to spend about $1 billion in European defense over the next five years, in addition to the $24 billion a year they are spending now.

The 10 NATO members said their decision was made "on the basis that the United States, whose forces in Europe are of critical political and military significance for the common security of the whole NATO area, would for its part maintain those forces at substantially current levels."

The defense ministers of the 10 nations, presenting their plan to U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, called it a "special and wide-ranging European defense program."

Also on the agenda for the meeting today of NATO's defense planning committee was a general defense plan for the 1970s—a new document known as AD-70—drawn to chart how the Atlantic alliance will meet the challenge of the Soviet Union and its allies during the decade.

As NATO's annual four-day winter meeting went into its second day, the leaders of the seven Warsaw Pact nations were gathering in East Berlin, seeking to agree on a common position toward the overtures of the West German government for better relations with Eastern Europe.

The extra effort agreed on by the 10 European allies, to be spread over five years, is only a start, NATO Secretary-General Manlio Brosio told newsmen. But the Europeans felt that the program at least displays a willingness to share some of the extra load being borne by the Americans. They hope it will give the Nixon administration ammunition to use against demands in the U.S. Congress for a reduction in the 295,000 American troops in Europe.

Laird said on his arrival in Brussels Wednesday night that he was not familiar with the entire package, but "we are very pleased our European allies are recognizing the importance of changes as far as the whole question of burden sharing."

The 10-nation program calls for:

—Setting up an integrated military communications system and a network of air raid shelters for aircraft. This is to cost at least $420 million, but a snag has arisen because Britain is refusing to contribute cash.

—An increase of $450 million to $500 million in operational and capital expenses by the individual European allies.

—A gift by West Germany to Turkey of 16 new transport planes costing $79 million.

West Germany will bear about half of the total cost of the package, and West German Defense Minister Helmut Schmidt pressed Britain to contribute about $90 million in cash over the next five years for the communications system and the aircraft shelters.

Britain's Lord Carrington refused, since his government is trying to cut costs. He said Britain already bears a relatively heavy share of the military burden and is increasing its contribution to NATO about $366 million over the next 10 years by keeping the aircraft carrier Ark Royal operational and by supplying more fighter squadrons and a new reserve unit.

British refusal to spend more could influence some of the smaller countries to hold up their contributions.

In addition to Britain and West Germany, participants in the package are Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Norway, Denmark, Greece and Turkey.

France takes almost no part in NATO military activities, and Portugal can't participate because it is fighting rebels in its African territories. Iceland makes no direct military contribution to the alliance.

Enlarged Food Mart Opens

The grand opening of Marks and Stearnes Food Mart continues a partnership of two men, who have 61 years in the food business.

Enlargement of the food mart at 700 North Main, was necessary by increased patronage. The store opened Aug. 28, 1963.

The partners are Roy Marks and Charles Stearnes.

The original building was increased from 66 by 88 feet to 85 feet by 118 feet. There is a large parking lot.

Departments enlarged: the meat and dairy departments more than doubled; The shelving area, increased one and One-half times; the frozen food department, more than doubled.

There are wide aisles, 12 or more feet.

Added at the rear of the building is an anti smog furnace that burns all discarded items except metal. The new unit, which passes all state regulations for air pollution, is five feet wide and 35 feet high. The furnace destroys fly ash and eliminates smoke.

Marks began his career as butcher for the Kroger company in 1946, and worked in Illinois cities. He came to Charleston as a Korger manager in 1954, where he remained one year. He then came to Sikeston, where he remained another three years with Kroger.

In 1957 Marks purchased the old Boston grocery store, across from the highway department building.

Stearnes began his career in Sikeston as a butcher for Kroger stores on Front street and Malone on May 2, 1933.

After serving the two stores for 28 years, he became a partner in the Boston store, Aug. 1, 1960, beginning the partnership.

THE DEANS OF MARKS AND STEARNES FOOD MART are, Roy Marks, left, and Charles Stearnes, owners of the enlarged store at, 700 Main St.

Reds Unleash Heavy Siege Of Shellings

SAIGON (AP) — Communist gunners unleashed a series of shelling attacks up and down South Vietnam Tuesday night, firing rockets and mortars into three air bases, three provincial capitals and two district towns.

It was one of the biggest nights for the enemy gunners in two months. Allied military spokesmen said over-all casualties and damage were light. But an unspecified number of Americans was killed at the big Cam Ranh Bay air base 193 miles northeast of Saigon, and more Americans were wounded at the Phu Cat air base 100 miles up the coast from Cam Ranh Bay.

Enemy rockets also hit Holloway air field in the central highlands, where both U.S. and South Vietnamese personnel are stationed; the provincial capitals of Pleiku City and Ban Me Thuot in the central highlands and Quang Ngai on the central coast, and two district towns in the Mekong Delta.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said there were no casualties or damage at Holloway field, but two Vietnamese civilians were killed and 16 were wounded in the attacks on the cities and towns.

Quotas on Shoe Imports Reinstated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee has ended work on foreign trade legislation by voting for import quotas on shoes.

The vote Tuesday brought into agreement Senate and House versions on the most sensitive provisions of the protectionist bill which is expected to reach the Senate floor within two weeks.

The committee vote was 9 to 8 in favor of quotas on imported shoes. The tentative vote taken Monday was 8 to 6 against such restrictions, but three senators who were absent—Albert Gore of Tennessee, Vance Hartke of Indiana and Harry F. Byrd Jr. of Virginia—voted for quotas.

As a result, the bill limits imports of shoes and woolen and synthetic textiles to the 1967-69 average with increases of no more than 5 per cent a year after 1971.

Although most attention has been focused on the bill's quota system, the Senate and House versions still differ on tax breaks for U.S. exporters and on a series of tests to trigger relief for industries damaged by imports.

Approximately 50 percent of all physically fit males between 15 and 49 years of age in South Vietnam are in military service.

Expanded Air Attacks Indicate Tougher Policy Toward Hanoi

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has expanded its policy on air attacks against North Vietnam in what appears to be a deliberate strategy of increasing pressure on the enemy while continuing U.S. troop withdrawals.

Officials report a toughening attitude by administration leaders toward North Vietnam over the past months. The reasons appear to include frustration over lack of progress in the Paris Peace talks, the prisoner of war issue, and a determination to prevent Hanoi from taking advantage of declining American troop strength in Southeast Asia.

The United States ended bombing of North Vietnam Oct. 31, 1968 and until earlier this year air strikes against the North were explained as retaliation for attacks on unarmed U.S. reconnaissance planes.

In recent months, however, Defense Department spokesmen have expanded the reasons to include "protective reaction" against North Vietnamese rocket batteries firing at planes over neighboring Laos, interdiction of supplies moving down to South Vietnam, Cambodia or Laos and retaliation for terror shellings of South Vietnamese cities.

Furthermore, officials privately confirm the policy of expanding retaliatory strikes when possible to include other targets in the general area to destroy supply buildups.

Officials have also made clear that American combat planes flying protection for bombers operating against enemy positions in Laos can fire at missile bases in North Vietnam when they detect enemy radar locking on the bomber.

Neither President Nixon nor his spokesmen have pulled all these reasons together into any formal new policy statement on bombing the North.

And no responsible informant in the administration suggests that Nixon has any intention of resuming the bombings President Lyndon B. Johnson finally brought to an end after bitter and sometimes violent public controversy.

On the other hand, those familiar with the President's thinking on his broad policy of withdrawal from combat in Southeast Asia say he is following simultaneously two principles.

One is Vietnamization, involving replacement of withdrawing U.S. forces by American trained, armed, and financed South Vietnamese forces.

The other principle is sometimes expressed by insiders as "don't let the enemy take us for granted."

Together these principles mean that from time to time Nixon can be expected to strike heavy blows against enemy positions in Southeast Asia, including North Vietnam, depending on what actions Hanoi itself takes.

In practical terms Nixon is said to be determined to keep the North Vietnamese from taking important military advantage of the situation while the United States withdraws and turns the battle over to the South Vietnamese.

The basic policy line was set forth by Nixon in a speech last April 30 to which some diplomatic officials now direct attention.

He accused the North Vietnamese of intransigence in the peace negotiations, "massive military aggression" in Laos and Cambodia and an increase in attacks in South Vietnam to raise the American casualty rate.

He then said:

"I again warn the North Vietnamese that if they continue to escalate the fighting when the United States is withdrawing its forces I shall meet my responsibility as commander in chief of our armed forces to take the action that I consider necessary to defend the security of our American men."

Almost immediately Nixon's words were reinforced by action. The North Vietnamese had shot down a plane escorting a U.S. reconnaissance plane, which also was damaged.

By May 4 about 500 U.S. fighters and bombers carried out what the Defense Department called "protective reaction strikes" against North Vietnam.

Two weeks ago a second massive raid was carried out against North Vietnamese targets after a lapse of six months. Again an American plane had been shot down and a series of U.S. raids resulted on Nov. 20-21.

Then on Nov. 30 a U.S. pilot flying patrol on the Laos-North Vietnamese border attacked a missile site in North Vietnam after determining through his electronic gear that it was tracking an American combat plane over Laos.

There was a similar attack last September on a North Vietnamese radar-controlled antiaircraft missile base. And last August the U.S military headquarters in Saigon announced a Navy plane carried out a "protective reaction" attack against a North Vietnamese antiaircraft missile base in southern North Vietnam.

Some informed officials agree these strikes, ranging from single plane to 500-plane actions, define the slow development of a policy which could stop where it is, revert to only punitive attacks for shooting down reconnaissance aircraft, or expand further into frequent selective operations against North Vietnamese positions.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

With the national and international news so filled today with unpleasant events, it does the heart good to note one dispatch with a very happy ending.

On a cold, wet, rainy day just outside Petersburg, West Virginia, a car bearing Mr. David Urey of McLean, Virginia; his wife, Donna, four months pregnant; and his 2- year- old son, slid off the road and rolled down a steep embankment. His wife critically injured and his son unconscious, Urey crawled up the bank to the highway and tried to flag down a car. None would stop until finally a man in a pickup truck stopped, took the small boy to the nearest house he could find and called for help, while Urey remained in the rain with his wife.

But when medical help did arrive, it was found that Mrs. Urey was so badly hurt- with fractures in her spine and skull- that she would need the immediate care of a neurosurgeon if she was to live. But the nearest help was at least 75 miles away, and it was feared that she would not survive the long ride.

Urey telephoned for helicopter service- but none would fly in the storm. Finally, he called Andrews Air Force Base, where he was told that they had a helicopter available, but that they didn't have the authority to fly; it was the President's.

So Urey called the White House, where he reached Mr. Nixon's chief military attache, who said he would call back. In fifteen minutes the call was returned with the message that the aircraft was on its way with a doctor and medical corpsman.

In a flash they were whisked to the flare- lighted football field at Georgetown University where doctors and nurses waited in the rain.

Recently - five months after the accident — David Urey drove home from Georgetown University Hospital with Donna, now well, and his brand- new, nine- pound baby boy, to join their two- year- old, now a healthy "grown- up" three.

David Urey knows that he is not only a lucky man, but that the happy ending to what would have been a tragic story was made possible through the help of many people, all the way from the driver of a pickup truck to the office of the President.

WE'VE COME A LONG WAY

It was considerably less than 100 years ago that the rule of consumer merchandising was: "Let the buyer beware!" You paid your dollar (worth considerably more than now) and you took your chances. But by the turn of the century, and particularly after World War I, growing competition forced manufacturers to make a radical change in policy — and how far we have come from then can be seen in the great lengths to which some companies now go to keep customers happy - not just before they buy, but long after the original purchase was made. This is reflected in simplified warranties, centralized handling of consumer complaints, improved labeling practices, more quality control testing. Firms such as Corning Glass Works have pioneered shortened and simplified language in warranties, spelling out precisely the guarantee for parts and labor when and if service repairs are required.

But what if something still goes wrong in spite of everything? After all, there is nothing perfect on earth— including newspapers!

That's when it is important for the consumer to know when a company will stand behind its product and what kind of service to expect— and that's where responsible business firms go the extra mile. If, for example, you should purchase one of those new- fangled "Counter That Cooks" cooktops or other Corning appliances, and anything should go wrong, the company has set up an authorized service system with trained, independent repair services throughout the country. These are local people, who are paid prevailing labor rates by Corning for any repair made on its product in warranty. Every woman knows how frustrating it can be for a stove or a range to go out, and it is good to know that the appliance can be serviced regardless of where the homemaker may live or move.

No other "system" in history has provided so much to the people as that which we have in the United States today. Those who attack and say that they must "destroy the system" are not only wrong; they are apparently blind to the real world which is about them.

FLU SHOT TIME

If you were down with the flu last winter your body may have built up an immunity that will protect you this time around. But don't count on it. If you've had or plan a flue shot, that might also help keep you healthy. But don't count on that either. Will this be a bad year for flu? "We simply don't know," says Dr. Alan Brodsky of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta. The U.S. Public Health Service has decided against making a prediction.

All these uncertainties point up the fact that medicine has only an imperfect understanding of influenza viruses and what will stop them. Several varieties have been isolated and several vaccines are available. But the vaccine for one type -- says the relatively mild B variety -- is useless against the others, like the virulent Hong Kong strain of the Asian flu variety. Polyvalent vaccines offer protection against several strains but in reduced measure. None of the vaccines is any good once you have the flu. The approved cure is still as simple as it is unsatisfactory: aspirin, bed rest and time.

Despite the drawbacks, flu shots are advised at this time of year, especially for the aged and infirm. Worldwide, the flue claims thousands of persons in these categories each year. Thanks to antibiotics, which reduce the danger of secondary complications, it is unlikely there will ever be another pandemic like the one in 1918-19 which claimed an estimated 20 million lives.

The search for an effective anti- flu agent is now shifting to chemotherapy. Science News reports (Aug. 22, 1970) that tilorone hydrochloride, known as inteferon, may some day provide a first line of defense against most virus diseases, just as antibiotics are effective against bacterial diseases. Soviet researcher Dr. A. A. Smorodintsev, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association (Aug. 31, 1970), reports that the drug amantadine hydrochloride was 51 per cent effective in preventing artifically induced A2 influenza in 404 volunteer medical students. These developments offer hope -- but a sure- fire preventative and cure for influenza still appears years away.

THE SCENT OF BONDAGE

A unique advertisement over the name of an investor-owned power company has appeared in Western Farm Life. It contains no word about electric energy, nor does it discuss rates, taxes, or the invasion of private business by government competition or bureaucratic regulation. It talks about wild horses, and it is entitled "The Free Breed." However, only the extremely myopic will miss the point

Speaking of the wild horse, it says, "There still lives a breed unvanquished and untempted by the relief of surrender. Efforts to tame it have only made it more wary and wise to the ways of oppressors. The scent of their bondage has only made the smell of freedom sweeter to its nostrils. Again and again it has tossed off their frayed fetters with a proud snort of contempt, and it has eluded their dogged pursuit like a mocking phantom. The free breed survives on the instincts created and strengthened by the relentless threat of subjection. Only when the memory of that threat fades does the smell of freedom seem stale. Hopefully, one day that memory will be strong enough that it needn't be revived by danger."

The people of the Unites States have lived in freedom and security for so long that they have become amenable to strictures and controls that would have been unacceptable a few years ago. Like the wild horse, we have been a free breed, but if the time comes when we can no longer distinguish between the scent of bondage and the smell of freedom, we may find ourselves wearing a halter with a lead rope fast in the iron grip of government. Many of the controls that are proposed today in the name of such things as electric power reliability, economic security, safety and law and order, have the smell of danger to those who value freedom.

DEFINING CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTION

Conscientious objection has been a legitimate, if not always an approved, method of avoiding combat service in every American war. Until this century, COs with enough money could provide a substitute or pay a commutation fee. In World War I, anyone receiving CO status was exempt from bearing arms but not from serving in a medical or other capacity with the armed forces. During World War II, those who "by reason of religious training or belief" opposed war could avoid all military service. In the Universal Military Training Act of 1948, CO classification was limited to "an individual's belief in relation to a Supreme Being." On June 15, the U.S. Supreme Court broadened the qualifications for conscientious objection. In a 5-3 decision, the Court reaffirmed its unanimous 1965 judgment that non-theistic ethical or moral opposition to war was as valid a reason for CO classification as traditional religious belief.

In issuing guidelines to local draft boards early this month, Selective Service Director Curtis Tarr specified that "the primary test... is a test of sincerity... The belief upon which conscientious objection is based must be the primary controlling factor in a man's life." Applicants also must demonstrate a foundation for their belief in "training, study, contemplation, or other activities." The educated are thus at a distinct advantage in applying for CO status. In an attempt to clarify the new draft rules, the Practicing Law Institute will hold its second two- day seminar for lawyers active in defending conscientious objectors. Col. Roy Bartlett of the Selective Service System will address the attorneys in Boulder, Colo., beginning Thursday, July 30.

Historically, about 1 per cent of eligible Americans have applied and qualified for CO status and at least 50 per cent of these have served with the armed forces in a non- combat capacity. As opposition to the Viet Nam war has grown, the number of COs has increased at the same time that local draft boards have made it more difficult for young men to obtain these exemptions. COs now comprise about 4 per cent of the 900,000 men classified 1-A. While the number of CO applicants and appeals is expected to increase with the Supreme Court ruling, Selective Service personnel are sure that the increases will be manageable. The real problem will come in the fall, when the Court is expected to decide whether men who object to a particular war-- but not to all wars -- are eligible for CO classification.

THE NEEDS OF THE INDUSTRY

The public interest requires that tomorrow's railroads be thoroughly modernized-- not only to expand capacity but to improve performance. But high quality service and impoverished railroads are not natural companions.

Between 1970 and 1980, more than $36 billion must be spent on plant and equipment. This greatly exceeds the entire net investment in the railroad industry today.

Almost half the targeted amount-- $18.6 billion-- should go for new and rebuilt freight cars. A beefed- up locomotive program will cost another $5.9 billion. Rail and tie replacements and other roadway needs will require another $11.9 billion.

The annual cash needed for these programs will go from $2.4 billion in 1970 to $4.5 billion in 1980. The average in the past three years has been less than $2 billion. And these projected figures do not take into account the effect of any possible further inflation.

DEPLORABLE 'HOLE' IN HISTORY

It doesn't happen just on television. The very newspaper you are holding in your hands will self - destruct — not in five seconds but in about 50 years.

Now the average newspaper reader may consider this to be an admirable thing, depending upon his opinion of the newspaper or the the news it prints. But it is distressing to scholars researching historical documents dating from around World War I and before to have those documents crumble before their eyes.

It seems that the nation had another information explosion about 100 years ago and the demand for more paper for books, magazines and newspapers began outrunning the supply of linen and cotton rags. It wasn't until the 1880s that a new process for making paper from chemically processed wood pulp was introduced on a commercial scale.

Unfortunately, the life expectancy of this wood -based paper was and is 50 years. By comparison, the rag paper in existing copies of the Gutenberg Bible, printed more than 500 years ago, is in nearly perfect condition.

Microfilming is one solution to the case of the disappearing documents, but this is expensive, time- consuming and, in many cases, too late.

A similar problem has afflicted the cinematography profession, reports American Heritage magazine. Masterpieces of the first 60 years of motion pictures have already disappeared because of the deterioration of the nitrate-based film they were photographed on. The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has discovered that it cannot assemble a complete file of Academy Award - winning films.

A "hole" has developed in the continuity of history between the latter part of the 19th century and our own time. A lot of valuable things will be lost through that hole before it is plugged.

Whenever anyone tells you that the modern homemaker has it easy compared with grandmother, don't you believe it. The Department of Labor claims that there are well over 20 million working women today. Three out of five are married, and more than 10 million have children under 18.

That means that at least half of our working gals have a double - work schedule that would have staggered grandma. One set of statistics says that in addition to the time spent on the job and traveling to and from it, today's working mothers put in an average of 5.3 hours per day on housekeeping and with childcare.

Might make you think today's career woman looked like a harried drudge. Not so. Grandma would have gasped, no doubt, over miniskirted moms with frosted hair and false eyelashes, but she would have applauded the freedom of spirit, ease of movement, and lack of pretense shown by today's young homemakers.

Another surprising note is the amount of home sewing that is done today. According to the sewing machine industry, nearly half of all homes in the country own an electric sewing machine.

Some 41 million women sew at home, and 55 percent of them are under 40 years of age. In fact, a recent survey shows that 85 percent of our teenagers love to sew — in 1968 they made more than 82 million items for themselves.

Incidentally, if you are one of the homemakers who starts half a dozen things at one time when you houseclean, don't let anyone say you are being inefficient.

It now turns out that household fatigue is caused by sticking at one task too long a time. Experts now recommend that you vary your tasks frequently. For example, iron or sew for 15 minutes, then dust a room or two, or make a bed, then come back to ironing for another 15 minutes or so. You'll have less fatigue that way.

Stopping for a short bit of exercise or a good stretch is healthy for muscles and nerves, too. Loosening up neck and shoulder tension makes you feel better and your work easier.

PROTECTING THE CONSUMER

The president of a large food processing concern has expressed some timely thoughts on the consumer protectionism movement. He declares, "I believe that business accepts the fact of deeper involvement by government in consumer affairs. I regret, however, that this involvement is being lumped under the heading of consumer protectionism. First of all, protectionism, by definition, assumes the presence of an adversary. When legislation is enacted to protect the consumer, the adversary becomes the producer, or supplier -- in short, business. Furthermore, legislation and regulation in the consumer's interests implies that business has been remiss in its responsibilities and that government has had to step in as the agency of last resort."

This food industry leader rightly believes that the best way to protect consumers -- and the businessman -- is to appreciate that both have a common objective, and that the objective can best be reached by a course of moderation rather than harassment. He believes that differences should be worked out before consumer protective regulation or legislation is formally proposed. Above all, he believes the best form of consumer protectionism is in the area of information wthat will help consumers make intelligent buying decisions.

As the food industry spokesman points out, "If we work together toward a more informed public, I feel certain that much of the legislation and regulation of the kinds now being proposed would be unnecessary and even distasteful .... " His proposals suggest a way toward both protecting the consumer and preserving the free market, which of itself is the greatest protection the consumer has.

LOUIS W. MENK, president of the Northern Pacific Railway, in a recent edition of Progressive Railroading magazine, expressed the following viewpoint about the railroad industry:

"I believe the railroad industry has now approached a point where it can capitalize on the progress of the past five years in modern management and operating techniques, research and marketing programs and its wide - spread adoption of electronics to move freight traffic more efficiently and with greater speed.

"Never in the past decade has the industry been as well fitted to compete more effectively with other modes of transportation and should in 1969 and in succeeding years recapture a growing share of the total transportation market."

RED ROVER ON THE MOON

Russia's "Red Rover" mobile moon machine is hard at work, or will be when its batteries are recharged, prowlin the Sea of Rains and gathering lunar specimens for analysis. Moscow proudly trumpets its accomplishment of successfully rocketing the unmanned Lunokhod 1 to the cold surface of our space neighbor and predicts that similar unmanned mobile laboratories will be projected on Mars, Mercury, and Venus.

While the Soviet feat lacks the glamour of our manned space flights to the moon, they do represent accomplishment in man's determination to learn more about space and heavenly bodies and provide information that eventually will benefit mankind on earth. Basically, the Russians remain coldly secretive about their technology in rocketry and sophistication in landing equipment. But their have been a few chinks in the scientific blackout of outer space effort. Their cosmonauts have visited in this country and our astronauts have made trips to Russia.

Perhaps, it is too much to hope that some day there will be a vital exchange of information between all nations who have space=shot capability. If joint efforts in this field are ever launched, it could mean a big saving in national budgets.

At present, we are cutting back on some of our efforts and communities near the big space centers are hurting. We can't afford to cut back too much, not just to keep people on government subsidies, but to keep on a par or ahead of the Russian effort. Space is vital. It could be the futur of all manking.

Peaceful use of rocketry in space is preferable to its destructive use on this planet. HLH

NEW YORK (AP) — While everyone else is out rushing around doing his shopping early to avoid the Christmas rush, I've decided to steal a march on them by making my New Year's resolutions early.

There are a couple of advantages in getting this done a month before the deadline.

For one thing you can make your good resolutions with a clear mind and a steady hand, which is not always true of those who wait to perform this chore until the morning of Jan. 1.

For another, you are free to pick and choose from a complete stock of good resolutions. There is nothing more pitiful than the harried, procrastinating fellow who comes late to the scene and finds the best resolutions have already been made —and has to settle for second-or third-rate ones.

The problem with most New Year's resolutions is that people who make them accentuate the negative rather than the positive. They vow to quit doing bad things instead of pledging themselves to do more good things. This year, for a change, I'm going to try to do both.

For example, I'm promising myself I will cease—

Oppressing women.

Burying dead horses.

Polluting the atmosphere with any more hot air.

Giving free advice to people who aren't worth two cents anyway.

Playing poker for keeps after midnight.

Opening savings accounts at banks just to get a free electric blanket or hearing aid.

Goring the other fellow's ox. Ox goring isn't much fun at best, and at the worst it can be terribly fatiguing.

Well, that's enough things I'm going to quit doing. On the more constructive side—the better things I'm going to start doing —I hereby resolve to—

Get more exercise by opening more junk mail.

Write down all the memorable things I hear said at cocktail parties and file them in my snuffbox.

Get an unlisted telephone number, so that all the people who never bothered to call me before won't be able to now in case they change their minds.

Punch anybody in the nose who greets me on Monday morning with such remarks as, "Tell me all about it. Were you in a train wreck over the weekend?"

Reread an old Bobbsey Twins book every month to restore my faith in the belief that neither sex nor money is everything.

Listen to the opinions of others—just to assure myself that my ideas aren't the only nutty ones on earth.

Bury all these good resolutions in a time capsule, then dig them up and use them all over again on Jan. 1, 1981.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Relief money, intended for the burned-out victims of Northern Ireland's civil strife, has gone to arm Irish revolutionaries.

Most Irish aid collected in this country has been used for charitable purposes, but some money has been spent on arms.

From talks with U.S. officials, Irish revolutionary contacts in American and diplomats from both countries, this column can now report some of the conduits by which charitable gifts become rifles.

Most of the gun purchases have been traced to two rival organizations which raided the money in this country in the name of relief. They are:

1. The National Association for Irish Justice, a radical group, which has ties with the Black Panthers and other extremist organizations. For a time, Black Panther members operated out of the Irish Justice Headquarters on New York's East 23rd street.

The Irish Joan of Arc, Bernadette Devlin, came to the U.S. to collect money, sponsored by this faction.

2. The Irish Northern Aid Committee, a more moderate group, which supports the romantic, often violent old wing of the Irish Revolutionary Army. This group is sponsoring a fund-raising U.S. tour for two of the IRA's old heroes, Sean Keenan of Derry and Joe Cahill of Belfast.

The fiery Miss Devlin raised a reported $42,000 in New York City during her emotional tour. Sources inside the Irish revolutionary movement say she wanted all the money distributed to the victimized families of Northern Ireland. Some of her American sponsors, however, thought the money should be spent on guns.

DONATIONS DIVERTED

The inside word is that the sponsors withheld thousands of dollars from Miss Devlin and slipped it secretly to Irish militants for arms purchases. The Irish Justic leaders deny the charge.

In contrast, leaders of Irish Northern Aid concede that some of their collections may have gone for firearms. Says one leader, Michael Flannery, a tough, articulate New Yorker: "We deliver the money in Ireland. We don't earmark it for anything."

Pressed for specifics, he told my associate, Les Whitten with Hibernian fierceness: "Look, if you want the truth, the people have to be armed for their own protection."

Both of the Irish-American groups have close ties with the Northern Defense Committees, which recently sent Capt. James Kelly on a gunbuying mission to West Germany. There is sworn evidence that the arms money was collected for the relief of the homeless.

It was deposited instead in a branch of the Munster and Leinster Bank in Dublin where it was turned over to Kelly. The handsome Irish intelligence office delivered 10,000 pounds ($24,000) to a German munitions merchant, who was supposed to ship a load of arms to Ireland from either Antwerp or Trieste. In this case, the deal fell through.

But other charity money, according to reliable information, has been successfully squandered on weapons. Although these arms were intended for use in Northern Ireland, some have been diverted to SDS—style revolutionaries in the southern Republic of Ireland.

Footnote: The British, Irish and U.S. governments can't officially recommend safe charities to Americans who want to help impoverished Northern Irish families. But our own investigation indicates that recognized church charities and the Ancient Order of Hibernians have been successful in getting contributions to deserving families.

$182 INCIDENT

A Romanian-born American with 20 years of highly praised work behind him in the PX system is all but destitute now because he tried to make his Air Force boss pay for a $182 dishwahser.

A few months ago, Louis Paulmann, 58, was the $19,000-a-year manager of a handsome PX at an American Air Force Base in Bitburg, Germany. Today, he has hardly enough money for rent and medical care.

Paulmann's ordeal began on January 30, according to Air Force files obtained by this column. Co. Edwin Robertson II, the squarejawed commander of the 36th Tactical Fighter Wing, wanted a dishwasher as soon as possible. Paulmann said in an official statement that he had to juggle maintenance crews and wink at the lack of a purchase order to make the delivery.

For a week, Paulmann tried to locate Robertson to get cash payment or a purchase order. But 25 days later, Paulmann was still waiting for the money.

Rather than let the $182 be charged off against himself or one of his employees, Paulmann wrote a full memorandum to the base commander. The strange "Purchase" by Robertson "is putting me in the position of committing an illegal transaction," Paulmann explained.

Withing hours after the Base Commander got the memo, Colonel Robertson came through with a check for $182. At about the same time, Paulmann learned that Robertson had insisted that Paulmann be ousted from his job.

Paulmann was demoted and remained in limbo at Bitburg for almost three months. Then he was transferred to a job in Frankfurt with far less prestige. Eventually he came to the U.S. with the promise of a new military job.

All he has gotten from the Defense Department, however, is a run-around.

Footnote: At the time of the incident, the Air Force claimed, Robertson thought the machine should be paid for by the government. Despite Paulmann's exemplary record, therfore, the Air Force decided the PX in Bitburg "could be upgraded more effectively" without him.

BEAUTIFUL EYES are the most easily recognized trademark of the dolls made by Jumeau and the son of Jumeau of France in the middle and late 1800's. These dolls, in the collection of Mrs. Rosemarye Harrison, are dressed in authentic, period costumes made of pure cloth (silks primarily). Mrs. Harrison, a professional seamstress, reproduced the costumes for many of her dolls.

Collector of dolls

Mrs. Rosemarye Harrison of Sikeston began collecting dolls when she was in high school. She is building her second collection. Her first was given to a niece and this one is being built for another neice.

Mrs. Harrison is a native of Walla Walla, Wash. She is a professional seamstress, an orchid grower and a doll collector.

"A lot of research and work goes into reproducing the costumes of period dolls. They must be authentic. Everyone who collects dolls has to look up everything he wants to know." Therefore, Mrs. Harrison finds her own library of history about dolls indispensible.

Hair for wigs (which she makes) comes from beauty parlors when they cut hair. Costumes are made by Mrs. Harrison with real cloth she finds at antique shops. The costumes are reprodutions of the period clothing, either from her research library or the doll's original costume.

Jumeau of France designed dresses for the French fashion dolls, but bought his doll heads from Germany. In the middle 1860's, Jumeau freed his business from Germany and went up and up in fame. A business associate, Bru, whose dolls now are the most expensive, designed dolls and made only two or three of a design. The son of Jumeau continued the business with great success until the French doll makers were all bombed out in World War I.

In the 1930's, people seemed to realize an era had ended and the doll collecting business began.

Mrs. Harrison sometimes spends more than a year collecting the right amount of the right materials to make authentic costumes with laces and osterich and silks.

"I have wax dolls, tin dolls, and many other kinds stored. Almost every cabinet or drawer in the house has a doll or a doll part in it."

So it is with true doll collectors.

JENNIE LIND'S wedding dress was reproduced in miniature by Mrs. Rosemarye Harrison and placed upon this 32" doll which belonged to Mrs. Harrison's sister- in- law. The doll at the right wears a dress which was cut to doll size from a real dress found in an attic trunk. The doll's dress is an exact copy of the antique wedding gown. The doll has been Mrs. Harrison's since childhood.

FRENCH FASHION DOLLS were originally used to style the queen's wardrobe. Dolls, like the one above, were dressed and sent in a group to the queen. From the fashions displayed on the dolls, the queen chose the dresses she wanted to add to her wardrobe and sent the dolls back to the tailors.

EARLY AMERICAN dolls carved from hard maple and jointed at the neck, waist, shoulders, elbows, wrists, hips, knees and ankles are typical of Joel Ellis's doll craft in the early 1800's. The dolls are assembled with wooden pegs, hence' peg wooden dolls' such as Herman (in front of carriage). The carriage is by Joel Ellis and his doll seated in rocker, has pewter feet and hands. The doll in the carriage is French bisque with wooden hands and feet. These dolls are in Mrs. Rosemarye Harrison's collection.

Florida couple in 60's tired of live-ins,

Dear Ann Landers: May I say one word about the woman who breezes into the beauty shop 30 minutes early, plants herself at the elbow of her operator (who is running 30 minutes late) and proceeds to hand him snapshots of her trip and bends his ear with the hot gossip picked up at yesterday's canasta game.

While the operator tries to be polite he is inadvertently cutting some poor lady's hair a little shorter on one side or dripping dye in her eye.

I happen to be a paying customer who has been victimized for the third week in a row by an inconsiderate blabbermouth who obviously has a standing appointment that follows mine. Insensitive clod that she is, she does not see that I am frothing at the mouth. (Maybe she thinks it's soap). At any rate I'm sure this problem is not unique and I'd be ever so grateful if you would print it along with some advice. Is there a solution? — Lady In Lafayette, Ind.

Dear Lady: There IS a solution. You are paying for the undivided attention of your operator and he sould provide it. It is up to him to tell the intruder that he's running late and needs to concentrate on his work -- but he'll be glad to look at her snapshots and listen to her when she's in his chair.

Dear Ann Landers: I did not agree with your views on signing "Love" to a letter. I also disagree about "Sincerely" sounding "trite." I believe "Love" should be reserved for those whom we truly love -- and not just those whom we like. "Sincerely," to me, is a very meaningful word and it should not be used indiscriminately.

The.e are far too few sincere people in this world. For example: How many times have you passed a friend on the street who asks, "How are you?" and then hurries on his way, without even listening to your reply. He does not have the slightest interest in how you are. Why then did he ask? Do you see what I mean?

So please, Ann, encourage your readers to keep things as close to the truth as they can. This world needs less phoniness and more honesty. — Mexico, Missouri Teacher

Dear Teacher: Your point is well taken and while I do not agree, completely, I thank you for expressing it. The question, "How are you" is, in our society, more of a greeting than an inquiry. It's a shade friendlier than "hello" — but I don't believe it means, "Please give me a detailed report on the state of your health."

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I retired two years ago and moved to Florida. He is 65 and I am 63. The problem is relatives. His mother and dad, who are in their 80's piled in on us less than three weeks after we arrived here. They stayed two months. Ten days after they left, my parents (also in their 80's) came down and moved in for four weeks. My mother is hard of hearing and she yelled at my father constantly. She also tried to take over my kitchen, which I resented. My father got into a political agrument with my husband everynight at the dinner table. He is still mad that Alf Landon was not elected president and insists that somebody "monkeyed with the votes."

We have gone through two winters of company and we can't take any more. Our little home has only one bathroom and 30 minutes is too long to wait. How does one tell parents who are in their 80's to stay home? -- Over Guested

Dear Over: You can't tell ANYBODY to stay home -- but you can tell anybody, including your parents, that your home cannot accommodate four people comfortable and they should not plan on staying with you.

SHS Cage Opener Friday

Just a step into the Field House on the Sikeston High School campus will tell you basketball season has arrived for the Bulldogs. The unrhythmatic pounding of basketballs, the stamping of running tennis shoes, and the yelling of directions by a coach kind of lays the hint on you, even if you are too slow to notice the change in seasons.

Other teams in the area have been seeing action for close to a month now, but Sikeston is traditionally a late starter because of football season. However, this year Sikeston isn't getting a late start by Bulldog standards, for the practicing for the upcoming season began about eight days earlier than ever before. Hoping to get better shooting percentages out the Dogs by the extended practice, Coach N. P. McDaniel, beginning his fifth year as the SHS basketball mentor, scheduled the earlier sessions. Also the fact that this Friday's opening contest with Malden is a week sooner than usual, the extra time was essential to prepare the Bulldogs for what is hoped is a profitable season.

"The early practices have helped a lot on the conditioning phase of our plans, as we are in better shape at this time than in previous seasons," noted Coach McDaniel. "We are also beginning to notice an improved floor game and our basic fundamentals and teamwork are getting sharper, too."

Defensive play is being concentrated on more than usual at SHS and, according to Coach Mac, "the fellows are making a determined effort to play a better brand of defensive ball. We have enough speed and shooting to stick with most schools, but still we are emphasizing a good defensive effort on everyone's part."

The coaches do have one area in which they lable as a great big question mark, and that's the all important rebounding game. All the way down the line the Bulldogs lack any ample heighth, so Coach Mac and assistant coach Larry Nickell say rebounding could be the key to the outcome and success of the Sikeston basketball season and that they "must get a lot tougher here to compete in Class L action." Richard Howard and Sam Tucker possess just about all the heighth the Dogs can muster, as Howard stretches 6'4 and Tucker 6'3.

The names of Fred Townes and Larry Lawrence are still remembered at Sikeston, for they were the big men offensively in the Dogs' past two seasons. But, this is a year when there are no big men or stars, and in the coaches opinion has helped bring about a better court morale. "Everyone feels better now, for they know that they have the green light to shoot if they want to. We're just going to play a balanced game and not worry about being a star, for everyone this year has the same rights as far as the court is concerned," commented Coach Mac.

The Bulldogs have a tough schedule this year, and this Friday's game with the Malden Greenwave is no exception. Although losing four of five starters from last year's successful season, plus having to find a new coach, the Greenwave still promise to be as tough as they come. Malden will have one thing over the Dogs before the contest begins, and that's in the experience department. Having already played two games so far this year, they will have had a chance to iron out a few of the early season mistakes before hosting the Bulldogs at Malden. Gideon fell prey to the Greenwave in their first outing 67-62 and last night's game with Dexter found the Wave losing by a score of 53-33.

Malden isn't the only toughie to be played this year, for a look anywhere on the schedule will find an easy game lacking. Fredricktown, with 6'6 Steve Cameran leading the way, and yet unbeaten Memphis Treadwell are new additions to the Bulldogs' season. Then there's always the dogfight in the SEMO conference, with Cape Central and Charleston being tabbed as the favorites to grab the crown. But don't single out anyone yet, for Sikeston, Bluff, Kennett, Perryville, -- all will be scrapping to upset the prediction man.

Mustangs Ride On Top Seeded Teams To Oran Semifinals

WARDELL — Spewing, sputtering and then unleashing a devastating attack, the North Pemiscot Mustangs ran their season record to 6-0 here Tuesday night at Ross gym with a 58-38 decision over the Kennett Indians.

The Mustangs spurted into the lead with a 35 point second half after the visiting Tribe moved ahead 25-23 at half but couldn't keep up with the pressing Mustangs in the second half as it scored only 13 points, three in the third period as the Mustangs of coach David McMahon spoiled Kennett's season opener.

Bobby McCulloch and Vernon Jennings teamed for 26 points to lead the victory for the Mustangs, netting 14 and 12 markers respectively while Larry Gilmer popped in 13 to lead Kennett.

North Pemiscot started the night with a narrow 46-45 B-game victory.

ORAN — Well, the Coaches are right so far in their seedings of the Oran invitational tournament, for all four seeded teams have made it past the quarterfinals without being upset. Monday night Kelly and Charleston moved into semifinal play with opening wins, and last night Oran tripped Chaffee 55-46 and Delta toyed with Illmo-Scott City as they demolished them 81-50.

The Oran-Chaffee opener was nip and tuck all the way, as Chaffee made a determined effort to show their neighbors that they hadn't read the seedings or predictions. The home-twon Eagles proved to be an ungracious host, however, as they stayed six on top throughout the fourth and came away with the opening round victory.

Otis Burley, Tom Sencibory, and Bradley Emerson were just about as nip and tuck for the Eagle high point honors as the contest. The trio dumped in 14, 13, and 12 respectively to lead the David Bone coached Eagles.

Scott Thomas managed to secure the games' high man honors, however, as he collected 17 in a Chaffee losing cause. Mike Ballard contributed 14 additional points for the Red Devils.

The Delta Bobcats proved in the night's late contest that they deserve the number one seeding handed them by the tournament's committee. Only six points separated the squads as the first period ended, but the Bobcats came back in the second to outscore the Rams 25-6. From then on the game was all Delta.

Steve Bock was once again the spark for the Bobcats as he poured in 28 big markers, with Mike Duncan and Lonny Mobley aiding him with 17 and 16 to their names. Bock, Duncan, and Bill O'Connor were also big in the rebounding department, as the trio time and time again pulled down a rebound.

Illmo-Scott City had eleven men break into the scoring column, with Huckstep and Amick leading the way for the Rams with 8 tallies each.

Action will be at a standstill tonight, but Thursday night swings into action again with three games. Two of the three will be in the loser's bracket, as Chaffee meets Scott Central at 6:30 and East Prairie takes on ISC at 9:30. Sandwiched in between these contests is one winner's bracket game as Delta battles with Kelly. Scoring:

Hornets , Bulldogs Move Toward Title

WOODLAND — No records were shattered, nor upsets recorded in the second night of tourney play here Monday night, as the Advance Hornets and the Notre Dame Bulldogs recorded victories that sent them even closer to the championship of the Woodland invitational tournament.

In last night's first game of the evening, it was Richard Hitt who once again led Advance down victory lane with a 24 point production. Assisting the six- two junior were teammates Gary Ridings and Terry Wills who provided the Hornets with 16 and 14 points respectively.

Defensively the Hornets were faced with the problem of Zalma's Ricky Simmer's, who twice this season has anchored Zalma victories with near 50 point totals. Finding himself covered where ever he walked on the court, Simmers did manage to pour in 31 big points for the floor's top honor. Simmer's only additional double figure assistance came in the person of Donnie Gowen, who scored 13.

Advance held only a slim three point lead as the two teams took the half time break, but came back in the final half to out score the Zalma five in each of the final frames.

Offensively the Hornets picked up 10 more field goals from the field than the Bulldogs, providing most of the difference in the contest.

In the second contest of the night, all but a contest resulted as the top seeded Notre Dame Bulldogs took little time to establish their sepremacy tonight on the floor as they recorded a 98-36 blasting of the Greenville Bears. A well balanced attack handed the Notre Dame quintet an early 29-9 lead in the first quarter of play. It wasn't until the final quarter of play where the Bears recorded a quarter's total of more than 10 points, a total of 16 markers.

Combinations of scores ranging from four 10 point productions, a 15 and 25 point total marked the Bulldogs top scoring. In all, the Bulldogs recorded six players in the double figure scoring range. Mike Flaker led the Bulldogs with the top 25 total, while Paul Spaith finished with 15 total points. Four of the members tallied 10 points: Roger Schlitt, Mark Nenninger, Don Beussink, and Gary VanWelden.

Greenville had a single double figure scorer in the person of Shoemake, who hit 10 points for the Bear's honors.

Tonight's action finds three game on slate, beginning at 6:30 with Zalma and Bell City battling in a consolation game, only to be followed by Notre Dame and Oak Ridge inan 8:00 contest. The final game of the evening matches Meadow Heights against Greenville in a 9:30 consolation bracket battle.

Chargers Top Tigers

DEERING — The Chargers of Delta C-7 ran their record to an unblemished 2-0 position last night as they defeated the Risco Tigers 69-51. But the win wasn't an easy battle for the Chargers as the visiting Tigers fought a stiff battle through most the game, before running into costly foul trouble late in the game.

Risco stood only eight points back at the mid way mark, and remained on the Charger's heels until late in the third quarter where the C-7 press moved the Chargers into a dominating lead.

Doc Conner anchored the flour attack for the Chargers with 24 points. Connor added 17 rebounds to his total for the evening. Teammates Paul Scott and EdgarGuyton each followed with similar 12 point additions.

The big difference in the game came in the final half where the Chargers tallied 21 total points in each of the final frames, while holding the Tigers to totals of 9 and 7 points.

Tiger top scorers were Wood and Perry, who combined for 44 of the total 51 points. Wood pumped in 28 points, while Perry added 14.

The Chargers made it a perfect night against the bengal opposition as they picked up a second win of the night in the JV contest with a 61-40 decision. Marvin Farmer and Lanny Young paced the JV Chargers with 16 each, while D. Wilson anchored the "B" Tigers with 15 markers.

Alton Trips Host In Season Opener

WEST PLAINS — The visiting Alton Comets started the West Plains Zizzers out on a bad foot for the 1970-71 season, as they carried home a 56- 53 victory over the home- town squad. Alton is now 4-1 for the still young season, and West Plains is 0-1.

Big six- three Bo Presley was the top man for the streaking Comets, as he collected 15. Larry Tilson took the games high point honors, however, as he netted 24 big markers in the Zizzers' losing cause.

West Plains managed to record a win in the Junior Varsity game with a 55-35 triumph.

Birch Tree Romps Past Summersville

SUMMERSVILLE — Birch Tree coasted to a 74-54 victory over Big Springs Conference for Summersville Tuesday night for an opening conference win of the season. Marshall Chowning paced the Bulldogs with 22 points, boosting them into the winner's column.

Assistance came in the persons of Junior Kelly and Stanley Kay who added 14 and 12 points respectively to the 74 point total.

The Summersville Wild Cats were paced on the floor by Hunt, who recorded almost half of the 'Cats' total with 23 markers.

The Bulldogs picked up wins in both the Varsity and JV competition with an earlier 41-39 victory.

MOUNTAIN VIEW — A see-saw contest sawed the wrong way for Mountain View fans here last night as the Ellington Whippets carried home a 76-73 win over the Mountain View Pirates. Ellington boosted its record to 4-1 with the victory, and Mountain View now sports an opening season loss on their record.

Tom Johnson and Rick Parker teamed to lead the Whippets as they tallied 19 and 17 respectively. Tom Orhcard turned in the night's most exciting performance, however, as the hot- hitting guard collected 33 in his first season game.

Mountain View's Junior Varsity squad picked up a victory, however, with a 38-34 win over the visitors.

All New Madrid County Final

BERNIE — The state is set and the cast is announced for Thursday night's semi-final round play of the 11th Annual Bernie invitational basketball tournament after second-seeded Parma bowled over Bloomfield 68-58 and third rated Lilbourn slaughtered Doniphan 73-37 Tuesday night.

Thursday's first game will pit Matthews and New Madrid at 7 p.m. and Parma against Lilbourn at 8:30 p.m. to make for an all New Madrid county tourney final.

Bloomfield couldn't keep up with the high jumping Pirates in the rebounding department and fell prey to the second-seeded squad who raced to an 18-11 first period lead and added to the margin in each quarter except the third when Bloomfield held a 15-13 advantage.

Parma fought off late bids by the Wildcats, who got within four points several times in the final quarter, but David Wright and David Williamson keep the Pirates ahead with key baskets.

Wright ended the game with high honors, netting 20, while Williamson contributed 19 and Joe White 16.

Lilbourn put 11 men in the scoring column, four with double figures as they raced past Doniphan who got only one player in the twin figure column.

Charles Blair led the Panthers scoring with 15 while Bill Stroud paced the Dons with 11.

Dexter Settles Waves

DEXTER — Coach Jim Hall's Dexter bearcat basketballers opened their campaign Tuesday night with an impressive 53-33 victory over Malden behind Francis Guethle's 22 point leadership.

Dexter's defense checked Malden under 10 points in each quarter while it raced to a 29-16 first period lead and breezed to the opening season win.

The Bearcats will have four additional players off the football team which just completed its campaign by claming second in the state 3A football playoffs.

Cleveland Gibson netted 12 for the Green Wave's top scoring performance.

Gideon Splits At Clarkton

CLARKTON — Holding the home court Reindeer to a mere 13 points in the first quarter of play, the visiting Gideon Bulldogs rolled to a 68-40 victory here Tuesday night.

Gideon perhaps got the thrill of the 28 point decision, but it was the home court Reindeer who collected a real thriller, in an earlier 37-40 overtime victory in the B-game.

Mark Littell paced the Bulldogs trio of twin igure scores with a total production of 17 points. Following in succession were Richard Whitehead with 16, and Dennis Coleman with 15.

Danny Stoelting and Johnny McGee anchored the Reindeer's scoring with 17 and 10 point totals.

Carl Morgan led the Clarkton JV's to their 40-37 overtime win with 16 points. Larry Hart was top scorer for Gideon with 18 final markers.

CHANNEL work on Missouri streams has cost fishermen many thousands of acres of water and also has lessened fish populations in channelized parts of streams. (Department of Conservation photo).

Evidence Piles Up

WARRENSBURG-- Evidence continues to pile up that stream channelization in Missouri is lessening more than its announced purpose of flood threat--it is lessening fishing success as well.

Several agencies are involved, primarily in north Missouri in channeliing the rivers. Mostly, the work consists of straightening winding rivers so the water runs off faster and doesn't back up to create flooded areas.

The Corps of Engineers, private drainage districts and the Soil Conservation Service all have done channel work on north Missouri rivers, including the Chariton, the Grand and others.

Latest check of the effect of channelization on fish populations is a study by Larry Belusz, a fish biologist with the Department of Conservation.

Belusz made tests on three portions of Blackwater River in Johnson County. One area was unchannelized. Another had undergone some work, while a third was completely straightened.

Considering that this channel work was done nearly 50 years ago--in the 1920s--the effects clearly are long-lasting.

In the unchannelized portion, there were 565 pounds of fish per acre, in the lightly channelized portion, there were 449 pounds per acre and in the heavily channelized portion, only 131 pounds per acre.

Belusz went on to classify the fish by length. In the unchannelized portion of Blackwater River, the crop of fish 12 inches or longer was 403 pounds per acre. It was 298 pounds per acre in the lightly channelized portion of the river and only 12 pounds per acre in the completely channelized portion.

Species of fish included carp, channel and flathead catfish, bass, bullheads and green sunfish, as well as less desirable fishing species.

Estimates of how much water acreage has been lost are somewhat staggering. For example, estimates of the amount of acreage lost on the Missouri River alone run some 90,000 acres and it may be more.

This estimates is based on studies of old Corps of Engineers charts which pre-date channel work.

The 11 major impoundments built in Missouri in the last half century contain 162,000 acres. In that same span it is possible that the state has lost that much water acreage to channelization--meaning no net gain of public fishing water.

In 1948, there were 589,224 permits which allowed people to fish. In 1969, there were 792,256 permits. Fishing pressure is rising steadily, but river fishing waters are shrinking.

Channelization has become a matter of increasing concern to conservationists not only in Missouri, but in many other states. Southern states have suffered extensively.

The Department of Conservation expects damage to over 700 more miles of north Misssouri Rivers if all plans for straightening and damming those rivers are carried out.

A rough estimate of rivers already straightened in north Missouri estimates at least 400 miles of river length has been lost completely and another 600 miles has been damaged already.

Studies in North Carolina showed dredging and removal of natural cover along streams there reduced the fish population by 90 per cent. Some 40 years later, there was no appreciable return to former fish populations.

James Moseley led Monmouth Park's apprentice jockeys with 32 winners at the 1970 Oceanport, N.J., meeting.

Cape Upset in Farmington Event

FARMINGTON — Second seeded Cape Girardeau Central suffered the only upset of first round action of the Farmington invitational tournament Tuesday night as the Bengals dropped a 56-48 decision to Perryville.

Cape had a cold night shooting, starting the evening with only nine points in the first two quarters and netting only six free throws during the evening.

Perryville pressed the Tigers and kept them off guard on their shooting except for the second half when they out-scored the Pirates 30-23, but a 33-18 first half lead was too much to overcome.

Dean Breig and Mar Searlock scored 20 points each in leading the Pirates assault while Ron Wulfers netted 18 for Cape's top effort.

In the night's final, Flat River's Tom Gibson scored with five seconds to go to topple the host 45-44.

Patterson Re-elected President

JEFFERSON CITY — Sen. J. F. Patterson (Dem.), Caruthersville, was re- elected president pro - tem of the Missouri Senate in a squeaker vote Monday of Senate Democrats. He defeated Sen. William Waters of Liberty, 13 to 12.

The pro - tem post is important because he has control in the appointment of all committee posts in the Senate.

Sen. Earl Blackwell (Dem.), Hillsboro, said before the caucus vote:

"If they want the governor sitting in that chair)president pro-tem) then all they have to do is vote for Patterson."

Blackwell stayed somewhat in the background. He was taken out of the pro-tem position earlier this year by Patterson by a large majority.

This time opponents of the governor lined up with Blackwell and Waters and almost turned the trick. Sen. John Joynt of St. Louis was a candidate and withdrew, throwing his support to Waters.

Sen. Basey Vanlandingham of Columbia, worried about the governor's proposed tax increases, evidently went over to the Blackwell - Waters side. After the pro-tem vote, Vanlandingham was defeated in his bid for re- election as majority speaker by Sen. William Cason of Clinton.

Vanlandingham immediately resigned the post and turned it over to Cason.

This means Cason will have to carry the ball for Governor Hearnes on the Senate floor for any tax increase in this special session. The other officers were elected for the up- coming regular session that starts in January.

"I'm no longer responsible for the governor's tax program," Vanlandingham said after the vote.

Sen. Jasper Brancato of Kansas City was re- elected caucus chairman over Sen. Edward Linehan of St. Louis. Sen. Raymond Howard of St. Louis was elected caucus chairman.

The caucus was held up more than an hour because of the absence of Senator - elect John Schneider of St. Louis. The highway patrol was sent to Kingdom City to pick him up where his car had broken down.

With Schneider, the Blackwell - Waters forces thought they hadthe 1-vote majority they needed.

The caucus vote is by secret ballot and the meetings are closed to the press.

The only indication of a switched vote was in the hallway after the caucus. Sen. Jack Gant of Independence, in Jackson County, had been counted on by both sides. He would not say how he voted. But a political backer of his, Harvey Jones, Jackson County engineer, said:

"For once we are united in Jackson County."

Gant just smiled.

Rare Paranoia Form Diagnosed For Mendoza

MANILA (AP) — The Volivian painter who tried to stab Pope Paul is suffering from systematized paranoia, a rare form of insanity that subjects him to delusions but in which behavior is frequently normal, a government psychiatrist said today.

Dr. Rodolfo O. Laserna, chief psychiatrist of the National Bureau of Investigation, told newsmen 35-year-old Benjamin Mendoza y Amor should be isolated in the National Mental Hospital. Mendoza's illness puts him in a private world with his own ideas of right and wrong, the doctor said.

Mendoza does not believe in God, Laserna said, and he thought by killing the head of the Roman Catholic Church he would save the world from a superstitition and doctrine that had caused wars and poverty.

Government officials say the man has no record of criminal or antisocial behavior. The doctor said seemingly normal behavior is common to systematized paranoics and that possibly the announcement of the Pope's arrival had supplied an outlet for his views.

A newsman asked if the man said he thought his attack on the Pope would bring him fame or power. The psychiatrist said it was his understanding that Mendoza only wanted to eliminate the head of the Church, then "go back to being a simple painter."

The man indicated to Dr. Laserna that he acted on his own. Police said they have investigated the possibility of links to other persons but have found no evidence that anyone else was involved.

Leader of Raid On Viet Prison Camp MU Grad

WASHINGTON (AP) — Col. Arthur D. Simons who led the commando - type raid on a prisoner of war camp west of Hanoi, was graduated from the University of Missouri and his wife comes from Normandy, Mo.

The Army guerilla warfare expert, 52, received the Distinguished Service Cross from President Nixon in White House ceremonies Wednesday.

Although the raid was unsuccessful, because American prisoners previously held at the site had been moved, Nixon said "What these men have done is to send a message to the prisoners of war that they are not forgotten."

Simons, a native of New York, was graduated from the Missouri School of Journalism in 1941.

"I went to Missouri because I heard it was the best journalism school in the country. But I never got a chance to get into the newspaper business. At that time I felt sure there was a war coming on so I went into the Army."

Col. Simons was commissioned through the ROTC program at Missouri.

First Returned Hijacker Ruled Unfit for Trial

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — The first accused airplane hijacker to be returned to the United States by the Cuban government was ruled mentally unfit to stand trial Monday.

U.S. District Judge Jesse E. Eschbach ruled Army Pvt. Robert J. Labadie, 27, Nahma, Mich., unable to understand the nature of charges against him and unable to assist in his defense. Eschbach cited reports by examining psychiatrists at the Medical Center for Federal Prisons, Springfield, Mo.

Labadie was indicted by a federal grand jury in CFort Wayne of forcing a Trans-World Airlines passenger plane, en route from Chicago to Philadelphia, to Cuba Aug. 24. The government charged that Labadie, a Vietnam veteran, moved against the plane's crew over Fort Wayne.

Labadie, at the time of the hijacking, was on convalescent leave from Valley Forge General Hospital, Phoenixville, Pa., where he had been under psychiatric treatment.

Labadie, who is in the Springfield medical center, was ordered brought hee Dec. 28 for a formal ruling. Eschbach also ordered two of the examining psychiatrists to be present.

Pilot Use of Alcohol Factor in 15 Air Crashes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pilot use of alcohol caused or contributed to the cause of 18 light plane crashes that resulted in fatalities last year, the National Transportation Safety Board said Monday.

One of the crashes, at Beaver, Okla., Nov. 3, 1969, followed unwarranted low flying on a flight from Carthage, Mo., to Guymon, Okla., killing the 30-yearold pilot and his passenger, the NTSB reported.

In another, at Brentwood, Ark., Sept. 17, 1969, the 46-yearold pilot, flying alone, was killed when his plane struck trees en route from Fayetteville, Ark., to Fort Smith, Ark.

5 Golden Rings
Give a golden ring this Christmas . . . it's as traditional as a partridge in a pear tree and much easier to keep! Have the world's finest Christmas with the world's finest ring.
John Roberts

Coffee Corner

by Cherie

Direct quotes made by my two fellas when taken on a trip to Memphis by their grandparents, to view their new cousin for the first time.

Brete, age eight who was consuming a sizable portion of chocolate milk with his Aunt, who is breast feeding, "Does the baby get it chocolately too?" (I've always heard that silly joke, but never did I dream to a child it would make good sense).

Lee, age ten upon first view of naked infant, "There's something wrong with him, he has a shriveled black stick where his belly button goes."

(Little did he remember losing his shriveled navel cord on a lady's lap who had come to call and how mortified I was over the entire incident).

Brete, who saw out the window some of those white cranes and was told by his Grandmother, "See Brete, there's a stork like the ones who bring the babies."

"Sure Grandmama, baby storks!"

(They just don't make them dumb anymore like they were in the "good ole" days — wonder what his response would have been to being found in a cabbage patch.)

The one comment that was my favorite and Grandmamas, was made by Brete on the return trip. I had threatened them both with life and limb if they weren't good and told them if they had any fights they couldn't ever go with their Grandparents again and I must have been very emphatic, for when nearing Sikeston the first scuffle broke out and after Mother had quieted them down she said, "Well, you've done so well today we won't tell your Mother about this, after all, you're probably just getting tired."

Whereupon Brete piped up with, "We sure are tired Mama Mickey, we're tired of being good!" (No comment.)

Ozark Carries More Passengers

ST. LOUIS — Ozark Air Lines carried 221,986 passengers during October according to Thomas L. Grace, president, thus marking a four per cent increase over the same month last year. The total during October, 1969, was 214,366.

At the same time Ozark reached a new high of 2,022,321 passengers enplaned during the first 10 months of the year. This was also a four per cent increase over the same period last year, when 1,947,009 passengers were enplaned January through October, 1969.

Cargo traffic also marked an increase for the first 10 months of the year, despite a decline during October.

Ozark introduced new service to cities during October. This included new nonstop service between Chicago and Des Moines, and increased service between St. Louis, Marion and Cape Girardeau.

Burglary, Holdup at Popular Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF — Three band instruments, valued at $1,000, were stolen in a burglary at junior high school over the weekend.

Principal Frank Wilkinson discovered the entry when he went to the school Sunday afternoon. His office had been entered. The loss of the instruments wasn't discovered until students went to band class Monday.

Listed as stolen was a Conn tenor saxaphone owned by Scott Harrell and valued at $400. It was gold color and had serial 96431. A gold colored alto saxaphone of Mike Buschhorn, valued at $300 was stolen. A Conn alto saxaphone of Mary Muschhorn, valued at $300 was stolen. A Conn alto saxaphone of Mary Musbach, valued at $300 was the third instrument stolen. It had serial K07801.

All three instruments were in blue- gray carrying cases.

A total of $1,463 was taken in a robbery of the Howell Fina Service Station, at 7:45 p.m. Monday as Mrs. Revelle Howell was closing the station.

The woman told police and sheriffs members that she was starting to check the cash register when two men came into the station. Each had ladies stockings over their face. One was about six feet and was wearing gray work clothes and work shoes. The other was about 5'6" and was wearing a pair of dirty dress slacks and a tan jacket.

The tall man approached Mrs. Howell and said "we are armed and we don't want to hurt you. Just hand over the money and you won't get hurt." Mrs. Howell said she was hit in the face by the bigger man when she didn't do as told. She was forced into the rest room and told "stay there and you won't get hurt."

Mrs. Howell told officers she was in the room about a minute or two before coming out. The station was empty. The telephone had been torn up. She flagged a motorist who notified police.

Mrs. Howell stated a brown State Bank bag with $1200 was below the cash register in a drawer and it was unlocked. She had just taken it from the safe and placed it in the drawer. She told police there were $263 taken from the cash register.

More Listings in New Phone Book

Sikeston and Morehouse Southwestern-Bell Telephone customs are receiving new 1970 telephone directories, John Donoho, manager, announced today.

Donoho points out that growth in the Sikeston and Morehouse area is reflected in an increase in number of listings and new number assignments.

Last year Sikeston nd Morehouse had 11,925 telephones. Today they have 12,500, an increase of 575.

New central office equipment has been added in the Morehouse exchange. This equipment calls for some numbers to be changed Thursday at Midnight.

Customers with number changes have been notified and a new number plate for their telephone has been sent to them.

Bomb Explosion Damages Club

CAIRO — An explosion which caused heavy damage to the interior of Club 18 about 9:35 a.m. Monday was probably the result of a "pipe- bomb," state police investigators believe.

Such a bomb is made by filling a section of metal pipe with powder and sealing both ends. The explosion of a pipe bomb is much like that of a grenade, resulting in much metal shrapnel.

There was no one in the tavern at the time of the explosion, police said. Club 18 is located at the corner of 18th and Commercial.

Investigators couldn't determine whether the bomb was thrown through a window, or was placed inside the building.

The force of the explosion seemed to be centered in front of the bar, about halfway down it. There was a hole in the floor about two feet in front of the bar, and also a hole in the bar itself.

Most of the ceiling tiles in the front part of the building were knocked down by the blast. There were pieces of shrapnel imbedded in the wall opposite the bar.

There seemed to be little damage done to the tavern's liquor supply, which was shielded from the blast by the bar.

Club 18 is operated by J. D. Bearden. Two years ago, Bearden was seriously injured in Charleston when a dynamite bomb wired to the ignition of his car exploded when he started the engine.

Fire Chief Arlie Seawright said the Cairo Fire Department was called to the scene of the explosion, but added that there was no fire.

Last Friday, a bomb consisting of five sticks of dynamite failed to explode after it was put inside the office of the Lawyer's Committee for Civil Rights Under the Law.

Kiwanians Told Of Rail Plight

Martin M. Pomphrey, Cape Girardeau, assistant to the president of the Frisco railroad, told the Kiwanis club Tuesday. "Unless there is some aid coming from government, the railroads may have to throw in the towel and be nationalized, because of the 100 per cent regulation by the government."

He was introduced by Jim Cornett, program chairman, who also introduced Nicholas P. Powers, agent for Frisco railroad at Cape Giradeau.

President Pat Lea presided, and Bob Meyers led the group singing.

Pomphrey told the club members: "Railroads cover 6,355 miles in Missouri; have 19,300 employes, and pay $14,500,000 in taxes. The railroads are the biggest haulers of freight, two times as much as any other hauler, and the only transportation that can handle increased loads.

"We are regulated 100 per cent, while trucking is regulated 39 per cent and waterways but 13 per cent. With trucking receiving $305.3 billion in government aid; air freight $21.6 billion and waterways $14.6 billion, but the railroads receive nothing. Railroads cannot fight competition with one hand tied behind its back.

"For the government to take over the railroads, it would take $60 billion, and everyone of us would help pay for it. The American Sound Transportation review organization is making a study to bring railroad regulations up to date. A recommendation has been made for state and local taxes be removed, and a research program be made for intermodel transportation system and the end of discrimination.

"Due to heavy loss for passenger service under present conditions, railroads cannot afford to continue the service.

Man Sentenced On Drug Charge

BLOOMFIELD — Special Judge Roy W. McGhee Monday sentenced Michael Thomas Geoghegan to a year in prison and handed down a $1,000 fine after a Stoddard county circuit court jury returned a verdict of guilty against the 22-year-old St. Louis man charged with possession of LSD and marijauna.

Geoghegan was charged following his arrest in Cape Girardeau Aug. 24. The case was transferred to Stoddary county on a change of venue.

Geoghegan's attorney said he will file a motion for a new trial. Meanwhile, the accused remains free on original bail.

Geoghegan is facing two charges of possession of mariguana. He was arrested by Cape Girardeau police after they posted a stakeout along North Sprigg Street Road and later uncovered two bags of marijuana in his car and harvested marijuana in a nearby field in which he allegedly was growing the plant.

Cape County Prosecuting Attorney A. J. Seier contends that police also uncovered about 20 LSD tablets in his car.

The jury, which was empaneled after nearly four hours of interrogation by the defense, consisted of nine men and three women. Cape Girardeau policemen who were along when Geoghegan was arrested, gave testimony Monday.

Wire-Cutting Tie-in With Bomb Slaying Doubted

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — St. Louis County Police say they doubt there was any tie-in between the bomb slaying last July 24 of Continental Telephone Co. President Philip J. Lucier, 49, and a wire-cutting incident eight weeks later at company headquarters.

The wire-cutting, although professionally done, was probably done by Continental employes to embarrass a company switchboard operator, police said Saturday.

Dozens of leads have proved fruitless in the investigation into the death of Lucier, who was killed by a bomb as he entered his car in a Clayton parking lot.

Continental continues to offer a $50,000 reward for information leading to conviction of his slayer.

Fisher Replaces Ryan as American Party Chairman

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A former St. Louis mayor candidate, Gerald Fischer, has become chairman of the Missouri American party succeeding Ed Ryan of Dixon, who resigned.

Fischer, son of former Missouri Republican Committeeman Ted Fischer, ran unsuccessfully as the GOP candidate for St. Louis mayor in 1969.

He was named chairman at a state central committee meeting Saturday. Ryan, elected to the post in September, gave the press of personal business as the reason for his resignation.

Glance At Poetry

By Charles Francis Brady

Today's column contains only one poem due to a lack of poetic material. There will be no column in next week's Standard unless an ample supply of poems is sent in. Poems should be addressed to: Charles Brady, poetry editor, Sikeston Standard, 205 S. New Madrid, Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Our poetess today, sami, once again treats us to an inside look to a self of pensive thought and deep, tranquil love coupled with an easy, almost immortal, touch of hurting.

"Love gives nothing but itself, and seeks nothing but to fulfill this giving." Kahlil Gibran, THE PROPHET

I spent an hour staring
at the empty sheet of paper
in my typewriter
before deciding i might have the courage to write
the thoughts that drag me down

i was caught up
in the game we played
knowing it was a game,
that i cared too much,
but you are practical,

i am an impulsive leo
probably in love with love
instead of in love with you.
but we fit together
for a while and shared

from my life because you cared
more about another.
my life goes on.
the memories are good
and the grieving is almost over

Aide Denies Kennedy Went Nightclubbing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy denied Monday as preposterous the report of a British weekly newspaper that the Massachusetts Democrat went nightclubbing with an Italian princess the night before he attended the memorial service for Charles de Gaulle.

The newspaper, The People, published a picture it said showed Kennedy and an unidentified man escorting Princess Maria Pia.

"It's preposterous, and it's a phony," said Richard C. Drayne, press assistant to Kennedy. Kennedy was in Boston, and was not available for comment.

Drayne said Kennedy does not know Maria Pia, and was not dancing with anybody.

He said Kennedy attended in Paris a small dinner arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Gauthier, whom he identified as old friends of the senator. Drayne said about a dozen people were in the dinner party, but the Gauthiers were the only ones Kennedy knew.

The newspaper said Kennedy, the unidentified man and Princess Maria Pia were shown in the picture "leaving one of Paris's swankiest restaurants" to go "to a club where they danced until 5 a.m."

It said the French government was shocked, "but for diplomatic reasons asked the French press to print neither picture nor story of Ted's night out."

Neither Kennedy nor the princess was available for comment. An aide of the Massachusetts senator in Washington said Kennedy had been in Brussels at a NATO conference when De Gaulle died and went to Paris with the congressional delegation to the memorial service. He said Kennedy's wife was with him in Brussels and Paris.

The 36-year-old princess is the estranged wife of Prince Alexander of Yugoslavia and the mother of two sets of twins.

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — Mid-term changes in the President's cabinet are almost as inevitable as mid-term elections for Congress. While no department heads have rolled yet, rumors of departures and replacements abound. Capital pundits have tabbed Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy and Agricutlure Secreatary Clifford M. Hardin as those mostl likely to leavePresident Nixon's official family by the end of the year.

Hickel, of course, has been in Nixon's doghouse since he complained last May that the administrattion was turning its back on youth and that he and other cabinet members had scant access to the President. Continuing economic troubles and Republican election losses in the farm belt have made Kennedy and Hardin expendable.

A cabinet-level post guarantees its occupant a $60,000 salary, a line in the World Almanac, and little else. Being Secretary of State still carries a certain cachet, but the the prestige of other cabinet members is likely to depend more on the man than the position.

Thus, Attonry General John N. Mitchell is the acknowledged strong man of the Nixon cabinet, as was Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey under Eisenhower and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara under Kennedy and Johnson.

The cabinet system may have reached its apogee during the first term of its founder, George Washington. The first President had a cabinet of three – Thomas Jefferson at State, Alexander Hamilton at Treasury, and Henry Knox at War – and he used it as a forum for joint consideration of policy. At the same time, however, Washington regualarly sought counsel from other advisers, including Rep. James Madison and Chief Justice John Jay.

Andrew Jackson did away with the custom of regarding the cabinet as a group of "constitutioal advisers" to the President. In the Jackson administration, Rexford Tugwell wrote, cabinet members "were not much better off than the lowliest clerk so far as (job) security went." For example, Old Hickory had five Treasury Secretaries in eight years. He told one of them, William J. Duane, that "A secretary, sir, is merely an executive agent, a subordinate."

The Jacksonian View is still very much alive. Many Presidents have had reason to believe, as Jackson did, that a strong-willed cabinet member might use his post to further his political ambitions. Not the least of Abraham Lincoln's troubles was the fact that both his Secretary of State, William H. Seward, and his first Treasury Secretary, Salmon P. Chase, thought they should have been nominated for President in 1860.

The most serious clash between a President and a cabinet member involved Lincoln's successor, Andrew Johnson, and Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton. When Johnson sought to force Stanton from office against the express wishes of Congress, the House adopted a resolution of impeachment. The President avoided conviction by the Senate by only a single vote.

Accordingly, modern Presidents have staffed their cabinets, for the most part, with persons lacking a political constituency of their own. Five of the first 10 Secretaries of State later became President. But in the past 100 years, only Herbert Hoover managed to advance from the cabinet to the White House. Cabinet appointments, in sum, are now used primarily to pay off political debts and to reward party stalwarts. The reward often is of dubious value. Besides, what the President gives can as easily be taken away.

While loading a car of corn from the Steele Bros. warehouse at Matthews last Thursday morning, Otis Hicks suffered serious injuries, which necessitated his removal to a hospital at Cairo for treatment. The accident was caused by the breaking of the run-board. Mr. Hicks was thrown violently to the ground, a distance of about seven feet, with his face down, and 15 sacks of grain fell on him. His right leg was broken above the knee and the left was broken in two places oncenear the hip and once near the knee.

The members of the executive committee of the Southeast Missouri High School Football League met at Morley last Saturday to award the 1920 championship honors. However, no championship honor was awarded, since it was shown that neither Sikeston, Jackson, Cape Girardeau, Perryville nor Kennett had paid membership dues on time and all were thus disqualified from claiming honors. Charleston was also ruled out when it was shown that the team had not sent in the required eligibility lists. By these rulings Caruthersville became the 1920 champion, but its representative refused the honor, as he did not believe the team deserved it on account of poor playing by the team this season.

The new mixing plant of the Scott County Milling Co., in Sikeston was started yesterday on its first real run, several short test runs having been made during the past few days. This new plant is located near the big 550,000 bushel concrete elevator in the west part of Sikeston and construction was started on it last August. The purpose of the plant is to mix feeds for live stock and the ingredients it will use are corn, oats, sunflowers, alfalfa and molasses.

The Baptist congregation of Sikeston has bought the lot adjacent to and immediately west of the church building and will add it to the church lawn. The small building which stood on the lot was bought by Alf Carr, who has removed it to a vacant lot in the south part of town.

The City Council met Wednesday night and unanimously awarded the contract to Fairbanks Morse and Co., for a complete light plant, distribution system and white way. The sum involved is $123,600. Satterfield and Weltecke, contractors for the building, will probably start construction within 10 days or two weeks, weather permitting.

The six -year -old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Demaris was injured Thursday afternoon at the intersection of Stoddard street and Malone avenue, when he avoided being struck by a train only to find himself wedged between two automobiles. One of the cars could not stop and knocked the child to the pavement, causing one fractured rib and possible internal injuries.

Gently Lifting Wallet Cannot Be Robbery

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Rupert hoisted one too many in the Dry Gultch Saloon and wobbled off to a corner where, despite the hubbub in the pub, he fell asleep Before long, fidgety Freddy spotted him and nonchalantly sat down beside him. And, after making sure that Rupert was slumbering soundly and as defenseless fate could arrange, Freddy lifted Rupert's bulging wallet from his pocket with the deftness of a harpist. His skill, however, did not go unnoticed. Two police officers ovserved the scene from an exterior window and promptly collared Freddy and charged him with robbers.

"Believe me," Freddy fidgetted in court, "I'm no robber. To be a robber, you've got to be big and tough. You've got to be forceful and able to threaten people. As for myself, I'm as gentle a soul as you can find. Infact, even television commercials intimidate me. When the announcer says go out and buy something, I do it immediately."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict gently Freddy of robbery?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that robbery requires the use of force. In this case, noted the judge, no force was used since no force is required to take a wallet from an unconscious person.

Based upon a 1962 Washington Supreme Court Decision.

Army Reports High Drug Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army today released results of a survey indicating more than half of the enlisted men in Vietnam who were polled may have used marijuana at least once and that one in six is an habitual user, smoking the drug 200 times or more a year.

A team of Army psychiatrists also told a Senate subcommittee that the use of opium by troops in Vietnam tripled when compared to those who used it before reaching the Southeast Asian country.

The figures, were reported to the Senate's alcoholism and narcotics subcommittee by Capt. Morris D. Stanton, chief of the psychology section at Ft. Meade, Md.

Stanton's survey was conducted, he testified, at the 22nd Replacement Battalion in Cam Ranh Bay in November 1969 among 2,372 Army personnel, about half of them arriving and about half of them departing Vietnam.

Stanton reported these major results:

—Of the 994 outgoing enlisted men 53.2 per cent said they had tried marijuana at some time in their lives. About half said they used marijuana in Vietnam and 31.4 per cent said they used it before entering the country.

—"One out of six of the 994 or 17.7 per cent was a habitual user in Vietnam, using marijuana 200 or more times during the year or more often than once every other day."

—Nearly half of the outgoing enlisted men favored legalization of marijuana.

—Twenty-two per cent of those coming into the country and 27 per cent leaving it said they planned to continue marijuana use.

—The survey revealed "a slightly greater incidence of marijuana use in area where combat is heaviest."

Another witness, Maj. Kenneth E. Nelson, chief of the psychiatric consulting service at Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco, confirmed Stanton's figures.

It was believed the first time the Army has released such survey results for public distribution.

Gunner Says He Saw Civilians Shot by Calley

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — A machinegunner in Lt. William L. Calley's platoon testified today that a group of Vietnamese people "went in willingly" — on Calley's orders—into a ditch near My Lai where they were shot to death.

"Was there force applied to get people to go in?" Judge Raid W. Kennedy asked the witness, Robert Maples.

"No," they just went in willingly."

"Who told them to go in?" the judge asked.

"Lt. Calley" Maples answered.

Maples opened his direct testimony by saying he saw Calley —on trial for the premeditated killing of 102 unresisting Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in March 1968—herd a group of people into a ditch and shoot them; that the lieutenant even asked him to use his weapon on the unarmed men, women and children.

"I refused," the 22-year-old soldier from Freehold, N.J. said

On cross-examination, Maples was asked:

"You can't say that at any time Lt. Calley gave you an order to shoot people?"

"He never gave me an order to shoot people," Maples said.

He said he saw Calley and Pfc. Paul Meadlo fire into the ditch—Maples called it a hole, and that he saw Meadlo crying.

Another member of Calley's platoon, Lenny B. Laguney, a 26-year-old Hawaiian from Waiphu, also testified that he saw Calley and Meadlo at the ditch.

"I heard some shots; some single, some bursts of automatic shots," Lagunoy said.

"Did you see people?"

Lagunoy testified that Meadlo, who has publicly admitted shooting 35 to 40 people that day, was crying during the shooting.

Chief prosecution lawyer Aubrey Daniel III estimated today that the government will rest its case Dec. 9.

Maples' testimony Tuesday—that Calley asked him to use his weapon on the unarmed men, women and children—swung the court-martial into a new phase. It was the first time any witness —of 26 who had appeared—said he actually saw the diminutive lieutenant turn his gun on civilians.

The 27-year-old Calley sat unmoving in his seat, his eyes never leaving the witness. At times he made notations on a pad before him, but mostly he sat forward, hands folded, looking straight at Maples.

Maples said he and others had moved through the village and had come to a big ditch.

"Calley came over to the ditch," Maples told the court. "He herded the rest of them Vietnamese to a hole where him and Paul Meadlo was firing into the hole. Meadlow was crying." Asked to describe the people, Maples said: "There were women, babies, and a couple of men."

How did he know Meadlow was crying? "I saw him."

Meadlow, 23, of Terre Haute, Ind., has publicly admitted killing 35 to 40 people.

It was at the ditch that the government charges Calley shot at least 70 people.

Dont worry about your vanadium. You need it for your health, says Dr. Walter Mertz, director of vitamin and mineral research for USDA. However, vanadium deficiency doesn't occur until vanadium in your diet drops below one part per billion.

If every bite held a thousand parts, each one would be about as big as a small speck. If one speck in one bite were vanadium, you'd get one part per billion by eating a bite with that vanadium speck once every nine years.

In practice you need far less vanadium than that per bite.

Instead, you need a tiny, tiny wisp of vanadium at much more frequent intervals.

If you were to ask how an Iowa farm boy got to the Nobel Peace Prize in Mexico by way of the University of Minnesota, a simple answer might be he used a map. Dr. Norman E. Borlaug was given this year's peace prize for his successful development of short strawed, high yielding, widely adapted varieties of wheat.

We didn't ask Dr. Borlaug what map he used to get to this pinnacle of success. We do know it was Dr. E. R. Sears of UMC who mapped the genes of the wheat plant. This work makes it possible for plant breeders to know which genes control which tendencies and traits in this very important food grain.

Your fears that we may someday run out of useable water supplies may be groundless, says a Pennsylvania State University geologist. It has long been known that abundant sources of unpolluted water flow below the ground in water-bearing strata called aquifers. The difficulty has been to find them in an economical manner.

Phillip J. O'Brien has developed a method for trained geologists to detect aquifers with a thermometer. The temperature of the ground above the aquifers is several degrees different than the ground elsewhere. And with rapidly growing sensitivity of airborne infrared devices, it is not impossible that such temperature differentials could be spotted from the air.

Your milk is a lot better, and it's better for you than it was in the days when the entire sanitation procedure consisted of wiping Bossy's "faucets" with a wet rag. With today's standards of cleanliness and the problem of water pollution from organic materials and detergents, cleanliness becomes a major problem for Missouri dairymen.

Our UMC scientists in ag engineering, dairy, and food science and nutrition, are attempting to work our cleaning procedures that not only take care of these problems but also reduce the time and costs involved.

Dr. Dee Graham reports that plans are being studied now in which the small amount of water that is flushed through a pipeline milking system picks up a majority of the organic matter that is to be cleaned out. This polluted water can be set aside for treatment. After that, large amounts of water can be flushed through the system and into the sewers, carrying a very light load of organic matter. Then non-polluting cleaners can finish the job.

When it is done this way, none of the pipeline systems needs to be disassembled. Such "Clean in place" pipelines are among the labor-saving efforts that engineer Don Brooker and others are working on. When they have completed their work, they will know exactly what temperatures, what detergents, and how long a rinse cycle is needed to clean milk solids from flat plates and pipelines.

An apple a day is to doctors as what is to dentists?

The answer, at least in some communities, is fluoride in drinking water. Scientists at the Fifth International Water Quality Symposium in Washington, D.C., were told recently that the dental bill for children in communities where the water supply has fluoride -- either natural or added -- has been shown over the past twenty-five years to be half what it is in communities without fluoride.

Dr. David B. Aft reported on a study of Newburgh, N. Y., one of three cities where controlled testing of fluoride began in 1945. He compared it with the non-fluoride city of Kingston, where parents have had to pay substantially higher dental bills in recent years.

House Panels Study State Building Needs

Pending before the full committee is a capital improvement bill totaling $250 million in construction projects at universities and colleges, clinics and hospitals, prisons and state office buildings.

The bill is conditioned on approval by the legislature and the state's voters of a $250 million bond issue plan.

Meanwhile, both houses are in recess until Monday when the House plans to take up an income tax bill that would boost revenues an estimated $55 million a year, instead of the $68.8 million called for in the original administration bill.

Monday, also, the Senate Appropriations Committee will begin its own study of the $14 million emergency appropriation bill already passed by the House.

Before it quit Tuesday, the Senate gave first round approval to a bill that would put a $25 minimum on corporate franchise taxes. In the form it was advanced sponsors said it would increase revenue by only $400,000 a year.

Brown Shoe Co. Reports Record Net Sales Year

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Brown Shoe Company, Inc., announced Tuesday consolidated net sales for the fiscal year ending Oct. 31 increased to a record high of $429.4 million.

The sales, the company reported, were up 7.5 per cent over 1969's figure of $399.6 million, producing net earnings of $17.4 million compared to $16.4 million a year earlier.

Brown Shoe earnings per share during the fiscal year were $2.50 compared to $2.57 in 1969. W.L.H. Griffin, chief executive officer, attributed the gains to more favorable market conditions, expansion of retail divisons and increases in wholesale shipments.

Suspension of Electric Rate Hike Extended

JEFFERSON CITY — The date for filing testimony of Missouri Utilities Company of Cape Girardeau in support of its request for a $975,000 electric rate increase was changed today by the Missouri Public Service Commission to Dec. 30.

The company had been directed earlier to file its testimony on Nov. 30. Missouri Utilities said unanticipated delays and causes beyond its control prompted its request for the extension.

Because of the change in date, the commission extended by 30 days the length of the period during which the proposed rates are suspended and the deadline for intervention, which will be 10 days prior to the December 30 hearing.

Missouri Utilities provides electric service to 58 communities located in 13 central and Southeast Missouri counties.

MALDEN — Arnold Mantle, Missouri Community Betterment Specialist, Division of Commerce and Indsutrail Development, Jefferson City, outlined plans Tuesday for Malden's participation in the Missouri Community Betterment Program.

Mantle spoke to a group of interested business and professional people at a meeting held Tuesday morning at the Chamber of Commerce office. Efforts to enroll Malden in the 5-Star Community Betterment Program on both the state and national levels, were inaugurated recently by the local Chamber of Commerce.

Bill Johnson, Chamber manager, stated that the goal of the Chamber was to get Malden involved in the Missouri Community Betterment Program for the purpose of entering competition with other Missouri communities on both the state and national levels. The purpose of the goal, he explained, was to being the profile of Malden up to the standard accepted by M.C.B.P., as this plays an important role in attracting industry to a community.

Mantle outlined the five-star program which must include: Education: Utilities; Transportation; Community Planning; and Community Service.

The group present, which included Mrs. Raymond Dunscombe, Business and Professional Womens Club; Phil Shelton, ExecutiveDirector, B.E. D.C.; Joe Mosley, Chamber President; and Johnson, Chamber manager, agreed to take the first steps in enrolling Malden in the M.C.B. 5-Star Program, and since Malden is so engaged, as the program develops more information will be released by the Chamber office as to the progress of community improvements and the efforts in this direction.

Hubert, a German name, means "bright-spirited; bright-souled."

Direction of Special Session Remains Cloudy

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — It is not yet possible to see what kind of revenue program will emerge from the present special legislative (session, barely) over a week old.

Like any other session, this one is shrouded in a general fog of confusion, misinformation (sometimes deliberate) and the self interest of the members.

But some yellow caution lights already are blinking in the fog. Doubts have arisen on both Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' income tax proposal and on his $250 million bond issue recommendation.

On the income tax, designed to raise $19.6 million in the last six months of the fiscal year, some legislators hark back to last April, when the voters rejected a bill that would have had the same rates as the present one.

But this time the issue is a little more clear cut. The current recommendation does not include the so- called "reform" provisions which were widely misunderstood during the referendum campaign last spring.

Actually the reforms would have saved money for most of the small taxpayers but this fact was lost in the general confusion.

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, the deposed president pro tem of the Senate, led the referendum fight. At the time he informed the Senate he would take any future tax increase to the people. He was angry that his own play for a broad scale utility tax had been rejected.

Now he is being quoted again as saying that he might mount another referendum campaign if the governor's income tax proposal is passed. The only way to forestall that would be for both houses to pass the plan with an emergency clause, requiring a two- thirds vote in each house.

As a possible compromise, Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R - Clayton, Senate minority leader has suggested that the tax be approved on an emergency one-year basis so as not to foreclose a possible later referendum.

Comptroller John C. Vaughn, the governor's revenue spokesman, said he would go along with that. Such an approach would at least bail the state out of its financial crisis during the fiscal year ending next June 30.

There seems to be less doubt than before among the legislators that the money is needed. They have felt the protests of their local schools, many of which have had to raise property taxes because state aid did not come up to legislate promises after the income tax was defeated at the polls.

Some also have heard the poignant but disorganized appeals of welfare recipients who face lower monthly checks if more money is not forthcoming before spring. And some may have been importuned by relatives of the unfortunates who have had to be shifted from nursing homes back to state mental hospitals where patient costs are higher.

The referendum idea is a sacred thing in a democracy, going back as far as Thomas Jefferson. He often said he was confident the people would do the right thing to preserve their government and their freedoms if they were properly informed.

Missouri's state capital's official title is "the city of Jefferson." But even here, in this helter- skelter world of today, it cannot be said that citizens are always informed, even though they are the closest to the seat of the state government.

Doubts also have been expressed in both houses about the advisability of the $250 million capital improvements bond issue recommended by the governor -- a catch - up program to help make up for two years of virtual standstill in tate construction.

The Senate Resolutions Committee deferred action until it could find out more about the possible costs of a 25- year-bond issue. The House Appropriations Committee plans to look at the governor's recommended building projects more closely.

Rep. R. J. "Bus" King, R-Clayton, minotiry leader, expressed doubt the special session would have time to consider the proposal properly. He suggested this program could be put off until the regular session starting in January.

In his message to the special session, the governor made it clear that it would be the legislature's job under the Missouri Constitution to raise the necessary revenue to meet the crisis he outlined. He also opened the door for legislators to think up new ways of solving the problem and several such bills already have been introduced.

One of the imponderables in the current session is what the "lame ducks" will do - - the legislators who did not run for re- election or were defeated.

Hearnes said he recognized solution of the revenue problem would be up to the individual consciences of those who will not be back in January.

But he warned that the problem "is like a toothache -- it's something that won't go away."

That leaves the responsibility up to the legislators, and everyone knows their self-interest sometimes gets in the way of objective judgments. Some have financial interests at stake. Some already are running for office in 1972. Some havypersonal convictions that prevail.

As Jefferson put it in his "Autobiography";

"All know the influence of interest on the mind of man, and how unconsciously his judgement is warped by that influence."

Manufacturing Firm Finds 4-Day Work Week Popular

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — Paul Patterson's Jeep is parked outside, ready for three days of "snow-busting" in the high Rockies overlooking this fashionable Denver suburb. Lori Coffelt is looking forward to three days with her children. Executive George Gregory has a golf date Friday, and plans to finish paneling his basement playroom the rest of the weekend.

"Rest of the weekend?" Right.

Come 4 p.m. every Thursday, Paul, Lori, George and 450 other employes of C. A. Norgren Co., walk out of their modern plant, drive through the landscaped grounds and begin a three-day weekend.

Norgren's employes put in 37 hours a week at work. But it's spread over four work days, not five.

A United Steelworkers union survey shows Norgren is one of at least 27 companies—employing a total of some 6,500 people —that now have a four day work week in one form or another.

The four-day week, a dream of most every working man and the goal of many unions, is just one of many innovations adopted by Norgren, a manufacturer of air processing systems which prides itself as a long-time leader in industrial relations.

Profit sharing came 25 years ago. Pleasant working conditions and music piped through the airy lunchroom are other innovations. So's the landscaping around the sprawling two-story brick and stone building.

The $15-million-a-year family-owned company instituted the four-day week on Aug. 31. It meant going from a traditional 40-hour week to 37 hours, and amounted to an hourly salary increase of 7½ per cent.

The company says applications for employment jumped 300 per cent the week after the announcement, and have held at that level since.

"It's kind of early to tell just what economic effect it's having on us," said George Gregory, head of Norgren's advertising and marketing. "We get the general feeling we will be able to maintain or increase our production." He said a detailed study of the economic impact had not been completed.

The great majority of the employes like it, he said, although "there were a few grumbles about the long hours."

The plant runs two shifts, the day shift from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, and 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday. That's 37 hours, with a half hour for lunch. The night shift comes on at 5 p.m. and works through 3 a.m. except on Thursday when the shift ends at 2 a.m.

With a degree of pride, Gregory said unions had attempted to establish themselves at Norgren twice in the past. "They weren't successful," he said.

One immediate asset from the innovation, he said, was the problem of shipping.

"Now," Gregory said, "we are ready to ship Thursday afternoon, instead of Friday." The crates of valves, filters and other products which Norgren makes to protect air operated equipment, are picked up from the loading dock Thursday and reach the express agency in downtown Denver that evening. "That means they leave town early Friday," Gregory said, "and frequently are delivered to our customers by Monday."

Befor the four-day week, he said, shipments did not leave the city until Monday. Most of Norgren's domestic customers are on the East Coast or in California, he said, "and that two days makes a difference."

Suppliers, on the other hand, have found that they must make deliveries Monday through Thursday.

Employes agreed generally that the third day off was expensive. "It cost me money," Gregory said, noting he had purchased two suits on a recent Friday. "We have more time to spend money," Patterson explained.

Alumni Alliance Formed

COLUMBIA — A unique alumni organization, designed to serve the needs of individual campuses as well as the total university, has been established by the alumni associations of the four campuses of the University of Missouri.

The organization is the Alliance of Alumni Associations of the University of Missouri, which officially came into being during a meeting of alumni representatives from each of the four campuses -- Columbia, Kansas City, Rolla dn St. Louis. The organizational meeting, held last weekend in Columbia, culminated a period of study and planning which stretched over a period of about two years.

The University of Missouri has about 160,000 alumni. While most are in Missouri, many reside throughout the United States and in all parts of the world.

"Formation of the alliance is going to permit a new dimension of service to the University of Missouri by its alumni," according to G. H. Entsminger, Vice President for Development. "It in no way will intrude on the independency of the individual campus alumni associations. But the alliance will allow the alumni to speak as a single voice on many vital matters which affect the total University and thus pertain to all four campuses."

Entsminger cited an example already calling for action by the alliance. It is the naming of an alumni representative to the search committee being created by the Board of Curators to help in finding a new President of the University to replace Dr. John C. Weaver. At its meeting over the weekend, the alliance designated a 4- man committee to select the alumni representative who will aid in the search.

Entsminger said that, as far as he knows, the alliance now functioning at the University of Missouri is the first alumni organization of its type in America for a multi- campus university. He praised the campus associations for their willingness and wisdom to work for both the entire University and the individual campuses.

The alliance is made up of five alumni representatives from each of the four campuses, with officers being a Chairman and a Vice Chairman elected by the representatives from the 20 members.

Officers elected last weekend are Cullen Coin, Chairman, an attorney from Jefferson City, and Patrick J. Nash, Vice Chairman, who is commercial property manager for J. C. Nichols Co. in Kansas City. Coil is a graduate of the University of Missouri- Kansas City

Terms of office for the Chairman and Vice Chairman are two years and the officers cannot succeed themselves. Under rules of the alliance, the chairmanship must rotate to a different campus represntative each two years so that each campus association will hold the top position on a regular basis.

While the alliance is officially organized and operating under a broad outline of goals and guidelines, specific functions now are in the process of being formulated. Basically, they will revolve around providing whatever measure of coordination that will be helpful to each individual campus association and the total University of Missouri.

James W. Stephens of Kansas City has served as temporary chairman during the planning and study period which preceded formation of the alliance. A graduate of the University of Missouri - Rolla. Stephens is Vice President for Community Services of the Missouri Public Service Co. in Kansas City.

Transogram Reports Loss

NEW YORK — Transogram Company, Inc. New York, has reported a net loss, largely non-recurring, of$2,328,000 for the nine months ended Sept. 30, as compared with a loss of $293,000 for the nine months a year ago. Sales for the nine month period were $21,642,000 compared with $17,938,000 last year.

Joseph Bruna, recently elected president of Transogram, stated that the 1970 loss is largely non-recurring, arising from operations being discontinued. He said when the sale of the company's toy and game division and one other unprofitable operation is completed in the near future, continuing operations for the company would be profitable.

Bruna said that the personal bankruptcy petition filed by Lammot duPont Copeland, Jr., board chairman of Transogram, took the management of the company by surprise.

"We have been able to cope with the direct effects but the indirect effects of this adverse publicity will take some time to over come," Bruna said.

He reported that the generally difficult economic conditions prevailing throughout the country this year and other factors had adversely affected Transogram. "The toy and game divsion suffered heavy losses in the past few years and has failed to show any material improvement," Bruna said. "The company is presently negotiating for the sale of most of the assets of the division to Miner Industries for cash and notes. The toy division will continue on a much smaller scale utilizing the liquidity from the sale to Miner."

Following an evaluation of all the other divisions management has concluded that the sale of certain elements of the company would improve both liquidity and future profitaility, he said.

Of the new acquisitions, Quaker Masonry Company displayed notable long-run earnings potential with relatively low employement of capital funds, Mr. Bruna reported. "Quaker's operations during 1970 reflected the usual problems of rapidly expanding business, but it is now structured to make meaningful contributions to the over-all operating results of the company. Its backlog of contracts indicates a probable volume of business of about $12,000,000 in 1971," he said.

Souther Precision Industries, a manufacturer of barbecues, cookers and other leisure time products, is negotiating a sale for cash of its chain link fence fittings division as well as the sale, also for cash, of a subsidiary, a chain link fence weaver. The proceeds of these sales will be used for the expansion of Southern Precision Industries' leaisure products line.

He said that a "small but aggressive" toy import business, Frankonia Products, acquired this year, will be retained in conjunction with the other toy activities.

Bruna said, "Our objective is to consolidate the operations of the company into proven, profitable and stable activities mostly in the leisure products field, Quaker Masonry being the only exception. This restructuring will increase the company's liquidity and enable us to accomplish our objective. However, it is producing a substantial, non-recurring loss, as reported. While these losses might hurt for the moment, they will strengthen the company for the future."

Key to Economic Shift May be in Nixon Speech

By EDITORIAL RESEARCH REPORTS

NEW YORK — President Nixon will address the National Association of Manufacturers in New York City Friday in what has been billed as a major speech on the U.S. economy.

The nation's economic mix in 1970 has featured uncontrolled inflation, creeping recession, growing joblessness, high interest rates, declining stock prices, rising budget deficits, and a grumpy public. After reading the election returns, President Nixon's political instincts tell him it is time for a change.

All signs point to a shift from fine tuning to vigorous manipulation. Even the conservative National Association of Manufacturers might welcome steps designed to end a long period of uncertainty about the direction of national economic policy.

At a minimum, President Nixon is prepared to start putting the heat on labor to hold down wage demands and on business to curb price increases. The methods are variously known as "jawboning', or "national incomes policy," but the aim is the same: to bring presidential pressure on two major contributors to inflation.

Nixon has been moving away from the hands off policy on jawboning that he followed in his first 17 months in office. He took an intermediate step on June 17 -- his last major economic pronouncement -- when he established a 23-member National Commission on Productivity. The Commission was directed to publish periodic "Inflation Alert" reports prepared by the Council of Economic Advisers highlighting excessive wage and price rises.

The commission's first inflation alert, issued Aug. 7, showed a caution bordering on timidity. The document identified several price and wage increases important in raising price levels, but it pointed no finger of blame. The White House promises a more direct and tougher line in a second inflation alert due to be issued shortly. The new posture was disclosed a few hours after the Labor Department reported, Nov. 24, that consumer prices rose five - tenths of one per cent in October. Consumer prices are 5.9 per cent higher than a year ago at this time.

The Committee for Economic Development, for one, has called on the government to influence private wage and price decisions, though not by mandatory controls. To go with the stick of more moral suasion, President Nixon may have a carrot to offer in the form of a more expansionary fiscal and monetary policy.

How far is the Nixon administration willing to go in an effort to turn the economy around and get it moving again? According to one report, the revised administration game plan calls for a moderately faster growth of money and credit, a substantial rise in federal spending and, in extremis, tax reductions.

Lowering taxes in the face of a possible $15 billion federal deficit this fiscal year would be expansionary indeed. Combined with projected higher federal spending and easier money, the new mix could turn the tide against unemployment.

Of course, it also might fan inflation -- to the discomfort of the international bankers who have it in their power to attack the dollar. And a strategy of expansion written in red ink would get a cool reception from Wilbur Mills, chairman of the tax- writing House Ways and Means Committee.

Mills contends that chronic deficits are "the cause of much of our inflationary dilemma today." Yet it is a measure of the growing panic in Washington that President Nixon may be willing to take on the gnomes of Zurich and Wilbur Mills, too.

Khrushchev Memoirs Say Ike's Generosity Aided Soviet Role

NEW YORK (AP) — The second installment of Nikita S. Khrushchev's reminiscences says that if Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower hadn't let the Russians take Berlin in 1945, the Soviet position in postwar Europe "might have turned out quite a bit worse."

The installment published in the Dec. 4 issue of Life magazine says Stalin had a great respect for Eisenhower's "decency, generosity and chivalry" and enjoyed a rapport with him that the Soviet dictator had with no other allied leader except President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"Stalin said that if it hadn't been for Eisenhower, we wouldn't have succeeded in capturing Berlin," the article says. "The Americans could have been there first. Eisenhower held his troops back and halted their offensive, thus allowing our troops to take Berlin.

"If he hadn't done this, the question of Germany might have been decided differently, and our own position might have turned out quite a bit worse."

As the German army was being crunched between the Americans and British on the west and the Soviets on the east, the article continues, "they moved west to surrender to the Americans. Stalin addressed himself to Eisenhower, saying that Soviet troops had shed their blood to crush the Germans and now the Germans were surrendering to the Americans.

"Eisenhower ordered the commander of the German army to surrender to the Russians."

Khrushchev said it was "difficult to judge what the intentions of the Allies were toward the end of the war. I wouldn't exclude the possibility that their desire to postpone an assault on Hitler's Western Front was dictated by their desire to put a still greater burden on the shoulders of the Soviet Union and to bleed us even more ...

"The Western Allies were certainly not interested in strengthening us. England and America, from their class positions, knew they had to help us to an extent, but they still wanted the Soviet Union to be considerably weaker after the war so that they could dictate their will to us ...

"Nevertheless, we must still give credit to the Allies for their contribution to the common cause ... Unfortunately our historical works about World War II have perpetrated an illusion. They have been written out of a false sense of pride and out of a fear to tell the truth about our allies' contribution—all because Stalin himself held an incorrect, unrealistic position. He knew the truth, but he admitted it only to himself in the toilet."

The article speaks of Stalin in softer tones than the first one in the Nov. 27 edition of Life. In it Stalin was depicted as murderer of thousands who became unbalanced during the war.

"Khrushchev Remembers: Part II" continues in the derogatory vein, however. It says "Stalin's nerves cracked when he learned about the fall of France."

After the successful defense of Moscow in December 1941, Khrushchev says he found Stalin "a new man. He had pulled himself together and was acting like a real soldier.... But I knew what sort of hero he was. I'd seen him when he had been paralyzed by his fear of Hitler, like a rabbit in front of a boa constrictor. And my opinion of him hadn't changed."

Although the Soviet press published a statement over Khrushchev's signature repudiating the memoirs, reliable sources in Moscow said last week the former premier probably had taped the reminiscences. These sources said the Kremlin probably leaked the memoirs to Life before they could be edited and checked for accuracy, hoping that they would be discredited by errors Khrushchev made due to faulty memory and lack of access to official records.

Science Award To Cape State

WASHINGTON, D.C. --United States Representative Bill D. Burlison today announced a National Science Foundation $7,000 award for Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Giradeau.

Burlison pointed out that the institutional grant, awarded annually by the Foundation, is designed to help maintain a strong academic base for science. Their purpose is to assist institutions of higher education in carrying out their own plans and priorities through use of these funds for direct costs of science activities.

Congressman Burlison stated that the size of each individual institutional grant was based on the amount of Federal research awards received during the last fiscal year.

"Isle of Thieves"

Ferdinand Magellan, who discovered the Marianas in 1521, was angered when the natives attacked his ship and named the archipelago Las Islas de Los Ladrones (Isle of Thieves). Spanish missionaries settled there in 1667 and renamed the islands Marianas to honor Maria Anna of Austria, widow of Philip IV of Spain.

Winds of Change Begin To Blow in Portugal

By EDITORAL RESEACH REPORTS

WASHINGTON —Portugal's National Assembly meets Wedneday to consider reform legislation.

Portuguese has been called the "clandestine language" because much of the world doesn't know it exists. Somewhat in the same position is Portugal itself. Tucked away in a remote corner of Western Europe and dreaming of past imperial glory, the country seems hardly touched by the 20th century.

But since Dr. Antonio de Oliverira Salazar, the iron- fisted dictator for 40 years, was forced to step down from the premiership by a stroke in 1968, feeble and uncertain winds of change have begun to stir. And the death of Salazar on July 27 opened the way for Dr. Marcello Caetano, his successor, to make necessary shifts in Portugal's economic and political life.

So far, reports Richard Mowrer of the Christian Science Monitor, Caetano "has eased press censorship -- somewhat. He has curbed the political police--somewhat." There has been a turn toward a more vigorous economic policy to improve living standards, now among the lowest in Europe. The new session of the National Assembly is expected to receive a law abolishing press censorship and make other revisions of the constitution.

No one expected a whirlwind of change after the 63- year- old Caetano took over the premiership. After all, he helped Salazar build the "New State" that has kept Portugal in a straitjacket. Caetano is a conservative Catholic who dislikes attempts to question authority. Like Salazar, he believes in the corporate state, with consensus rather than party politics.

The regime is more liberal than it was, however. The authorities have shown new tolerance for films and plays that would have been banned or cut in the old days. The Moscow Circus was recently permitted to play in Lisbon for the first time.

To opponents of the regime, Caetano is merely opening a safety valve in a society that remains basically closed. Mario Soares, an opposition leader freed from detention by Caetano but later exiled, has charged that the premier used the presence of Salazar on the scene for nearly two years after his stroke as an excuse not to make reforms. He "no longer has an alibi," Soares declares.

Two major problems confront the Caetano regime -- Portugal's lagging economy and the continuing guerrilla war in its African colonies. An estimated 140,000 Portuguese troops are tied down in Angola, Mozambique and Guinea with no end in sight. Caetano was the architect of much of the policy for the African colonies and is not expected to adopt a more moderate position, writes Douglas L. Wheeler in Foreign Affairs.

Portugal spends twice as much for defense as does Spain with an economy that is even less robust. Under Caetano, there has been a switch to a more expansionist approach to encourage investment. But conservative, family - based groups still dominate banking and commerce. Some 130,000 people a year are emigrating, mainly to Europe, Brazil and the United States, although the government has tried to limit the exodus.

In 1928, Salazar was summoned from his university classroom to work for "the moral and material regeneration" of Portugal. He did not turn the clock back so much as he tried to hold the hands still. His successor may not be able to do so much longer.

Caroline Becoming Teenager

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON--To persons of a certain age, the realization that Caroline Kennedy is about to enter her teens will serve as a vaguely depressing reminder of the passage of time. It seems only yesterday that John F. Kennedy's daughter was photographed astride his shoulders or romping in the President's White House office. Still, the inescapable fact is that Caroline was 13 years old Friday.

She is described as charming, bright, pretty, shy and sensitive. In a recent interview, she said she had given thought to joining the Peace Corps if it is "still...going on by the time I could join."

Caroline and her brother, John, who will be 10 years old on Wednesday, have been carefully shielded from publicity by their mother. Like many other presidential children, however, they arelikely to retain celebrity status for many years. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Theodore Rossevelt's daughter, remains a leading light of Washington society at age 86. Mrs. Longworth probably is the only daughter of a President to have had a color -- Alice blue -- named after her.

Relatively few sons of Presidents have taken up carreers in national politics. The exception that proves the rule was, of course, John Quincy Adams, who served both house of Congress and as President. Robert A. Taft was the only other son of a President to be elected senator; five presidential sons served in the House. Robert Todd Lincoln adamantly refused to exploit his father's name for political ends, and it was only with reluctance that he accepted the post of Secretary of War in the Garfield and Arthur administrations.

White House children attract more attention nowadays than in former years. One reason may be that there are fewer of them. With the exception of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who had five boys and a girl, no President since Theodore has had more than three offspring. The all-time presidential champion in this respect was John Tyler, who sired eight boys and seven girls. Tyler's youngest daughter, Pearl, lived until 1947 -- more than a century after her father was President.

WASHINGTON--Nikita Khrushchev, the old shoe thumper, is back in the news.

His memoors, which he has disowned in a statement out of Moscow but which Life Magazine insists are authentic, are being serialized in the West.

The best sources available to this column say that Khrushchev dictated his memoirs all right. However, some of his reminiscences go against the current Kremlin line, and he obediently repudiated them.

For the wart-nosed, baggy-pants former ruler of all of the Russians understands the politics of power. When he was a rising commissar, Dictator Josef Stalin ordered him to entertain top officials by dancing the Gopak--a dance that required the pudgy Khrushchev to squat on his heels and kick out his legs.

He performed the dance, grinning through the sweat. Afterward he told a colleague: "When Stalin says dance, a wise man dances." Khrushchev still considers it wise to do the Kremlin's bidding.

His own preciptious fall from power in 1964 was a traumatic experience for him. He was banished to a dacha that formerly had been occupied by his finance minister.

KHRUSHCHEV'S TRAUMA

For six months, Khrushchev moped around the house. He lost his famour embullience, his earthy humor and 32 pounds. His downfall was so painful to the old man that his wife, Nina, banned all mention of the subject in his presence.

He slowly began to snap out of it, however, and to take comfort in recallin his days of glory. Increasingly, he babbled to his grandchildren about past struggles and triumphs, and he browsed among the trinkets and trophies of the past--a radio from Egypt's late President Nasser, a replica of the Taji Mahal from India's late Prime Minister Nehru, a collection of pottery from Britian's ex-Prime Minister Harold Mac[illegible].

The old man also began taking daily strolls, weather permitting, through the countryside with no company but his dog and a transistor radio. He took up photography, and his wife joked about his switch to the other end of the camera. He even did his own darkroom work.

The deposed Khrushchev suffered no hardships. He and his wife were attended by two maids, two cooks, a gardener and two chauffeurs, all paid by the state. The doctor who had watched over him in the Kremlin continued to be available. He was hospitalized briefly for inflammation of the gall bladder, is now back in ths hospital with a heart ailment.

But to the 225 million people whom he once bossed, Nikita Khrushchev became a nonetity. His name was purged out of publications that once praised him. His face, the most familiar in all Russia, was suddenly deleted or blurred out of pictures and movies, Soviet textbooks ignored him. Students weren't allowed to mention him.

OUT OF OBSCURITY

He was partially rescued from obscurity by Parade magazine's enterprising editor, Jess Gorkin, who in 1965 began to seek out the story of Khrushchev in retirement. It took Gorkin until 1967 finally to put the story together.

Krushchev, in his statement for Parade, accurately summed up his place in Russia. "I am a pensioner," he said simply. His pension: 550 rubles a month (the official exchange rate is one ruble to $1.).

Meanwhile, the onetime Cock of the Kremlin eagerly reads the Russian newspapers to keep up with events, grumping over names he doesn't recognize and developments he doesn't like.

The flap over the Soviet submarine facility at Cienfuegos, Cuba, brings back memories of his own Cuban crisis in 1962. The late President John F. Kennedy forced him to withdraw Soviet missiles from Cuba.

Yet Krushchev regards Kennedy as his favorite American and looks back upon the showdown as a triumph instead of a humiliation. In return for pulling out the missiles, he tells friends, the U.S. agreed not to invade Communist Cuba.

Even his old humor is returning. With a mischievous chortle, Khruschev tells how he slept on a Kremlin couch in his clothers throughout the Cuban crisis, because he had hear of a British official who had been caught in bed by the 1956 Suez crisis. This official, who prided himself on his correct dress, dashed around in his shorts until the emergency had abated. Khrushchev explains that he wasn't going to be caught with his pants down.

Now in the hospital whether with or without his pants, the 76-year-old pensioner is going to tell it the way his former subordinates in the Kremlin direct.

DOCTORS: CHOICE

The politically powerful American Medical Association, which blocked the appointment of Stanley Knowles as the nations's top health official, is now trying to dictate who should get the job next.

Because of the AMA's opposition to Knowles, Roger Egeberg was appointed Assistant Secretary of the Health, Education, and Welfare Department in charge of health. He raised such a ruckus in the backrooms over the Nixon administration's neglect of health problems, however, that he has now been asked to resign.

The three leading contenders for his job are Food and Drug Commissioner Charles Edwards, Mental Health Director Vernon Wilson and Maryland's Public Health Director Neil Solomon. The AMA has run its own FBI-like check on all three contenders. Last week, the doctors' lobby paid a private call upon Secretary Elliot Richardson to discuss with him who his choice should be.

Fire Razes Noranda Sheds

NEW MADRID — At the Noranda Plant on St. Jude Industrial Park Nov. 19, siding on the south side of the huge potline building was melted and framing on the interior was burned from a flame in small sheds adjacent to the building.

A security man told the fire department there was an explosion in one of the sheds preceding the fire in the late afternoon.

Workmen at the plant and the fire department got that flame under control and damage to the pot-line building was held to a minimum.

The sheds were destroyed.

Bills Introduced To Regulate Sports

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Two new revenue producing measures reached the Missouri House Tuesday.

One, by Rep. Paul Simon, D-St. Louis, would license and regulate all sporting events, not just boxing and wrestling.

Each event would have to have a $10 license and pay the state 5 per cent of the gross receipts. There was no indication from Simon as to how much he thought the plan would bring the state.

The other bill would require all retailers of fireworks, including those little roadside stands, to have a regular retailers' license, charge the 3 per cent sales tax and turn it over to the state. It was offered by Rep. Tom Ryan, D-Kansas city.

Meat Inspection Standards Law Effective Tuesday

WASHINGTON — The consumer crusade is about to score a major victory - three years after it was originally won. Regulations requiring the states to establish meat inspection standards for local slaughter houses and packing plants equal to those of the federal government go into effect Tuesday.

The Wholesome Meat Act of 1967 was approved by Congress amid considerable fanfare only after a bitter struggle by consumer groups. It gave the states three years to comeup with acceptable programs. Now the grace period has run out. Federal inspectors will fan out on Dec. 15 to see if the regulations are being met. If not, federal inspection standards will apply.

Department of Agriculture officials told Editorial Research Reports that only nine states--California, Maryland, Florida, New Mexico, Idaho, Washington, Tennessee, Kansas and South Carolina -- have met these standards as the deadline approaches. North Dakota has already said it cannot, and federal regulations will apply there. The remaining 40 states were said to be making progress but have yet to qualify.

The nation was shocked three years ago to learn that about 15,000 of the some 17,000 slaughter houses and meat packing plants operating in the country did not come under the Meat Inspection Act of 1907. That act established federal standards of inspecting for meat crossing state lines. The purely in- state operations -- mostly small and seasonal -- produce about 15 per cent of the meat consumed by Americans, especially the poor.

Because they were not involved in interstate commerce, these plants had to satisfy only state inspection regulations. This meant that in seven states they had to meet no standards at all. Those states had no inspection requirements of any kind. Twenty- nine states had mandatory regulations of varying degrees of strictness. Another 12 states had voluntary inspection. Two had very limited laws.

Sickening revelations about conditions in the state- regulated slaughter houses and packing plants rivaled those made by Upton Sinclair in The Jungle -- the book which brought about the 1907 inspection law. Describing one such plant, an Agriculture Department report stated: "The operation is located in an old building that is falling apart. It is infested with flies, cockroaches and rodents... The whole place smells bad, the stench is terrible."

Sinclair's modern counterpart may have been Ralph Nader. A series of articles he wrote for The New Republic focused attention on conditions in local meat producing operations. Although Rep. Neal Smith (D-Iowa) had been trying since 1961 to improve standards, the public was not aroused until Nader pointed out that significant portions of the uninspected meat "are diseased and are processed in grossly unsanitary conditions, and its true condition is masked by the latest preservatives, additives and coloring agents."

Imposition of federal inspection standards on local meat processors does not mean consumers can afford to let down their guard. The General Accounting Office reported in June 1970 that either unsanitary conditions or contaminated meat was found in 44 of 48 Midwestern plants inspected last year. Forty were federally inspected and eight were in the process of changing over to federal inspection. The conditions have since been remedied, but the agency recommended more vigilant enforcement of the law.

Frankly Speaking

A BAD FARM BILL

Despite the "no" votes of most farm-state Senators -- including me -- the Senate last week approved the conference report on the Agriculture Act of 1970.

I voted against it because it is a bad farm bill.

With parity now at its lowest level in the last 37 years -- 70 per cent -- it was astounding that the Administration asked he Congress for authority to further reduce farm prices and farm income levels.

Yet that is exactly what they did, and their wishes were reflected in the final legislation, which contained few of the Senate provisions.

TOO MUCH AUTHORITY

Never before in the history of farm legislation has an Administration demanded such broad authorities for setting price support and production control levels for farm commodities.

Under this bill the Secretary of Agriculture will have, in effect, a signed blank check to fill in as he sees fit. The esteemed chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, Senator Ellender, aptly labeled it a "legislative monstrosity."

As a presidential candidate in September, 1968, Richard Nixon called 74 percent of parity "intolerable" for farmers. "Farmers are entitled to better," candidate Nixon proclaimed, "and I pledge that in my Administration they will have better." Now that this bill has passed, we can only pray that the Administration will use its broad authority to make good on its promises.

COULD BE DISASTROUS

Without full and proper use of the authorities it would grant to the Secretary, this bill could be disastrous to farmers and the farm economy -- the bulwark of our national economy. It could be especially disastrous to farmers in Missouri, since its worst provisions are those relating to cotton and feed grains.

Some argue that this bill is somewhat better than the one we had in 1958. It may well be, but all the cosmetics in the world cannot make this bill look pretty.

Hopefully when this bill expires in 1974 we will have an Administration -- either this one or a new one -- which will help Congress write a farm bill that better assists farmers and the farm economy.

The output of harvesting machines of all kinds increased from 60,000 in 1880 to 250,000 in 1885, according to New Holland, the farm equipment division of Sperry Rand.

Law Students Help Solve Legal Problems

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — University of Michigan law students have lent their expertise to a gun control ordinance for Ann Arbor, an antipollution measure for Delta County and a bill regulating the distribution of abandoned property in Grand Rapids.

Through an organization formed about eight months ago and called the Legislative Aid Bureau—LAB—the students provide their services without pay.

The program is handled by student volunteers who work in their spare time, without academic credit.

"Students have tremendous ideas on ways to solve problems," said Thomas Brown of Shawnee Mission, Kan., a second-year law student and LAB chairman.

The program is under the guidance of Prof. William Pierce, director of the law school's legislative research center.

Pierce said in an interview the program fills a gap for many municipalities which have neither the resources nor the money to research proposed ordinances on their own. In most cases, when a city or county needs help in drawing up legislation, an official will visit the students on the Ann Arbor campus to discuss the problem.

The student lawyers receive more requests than they can fill.

Most times, three or four students work on a project togethmore requests than they can fill.

Most times, three or four students work on a project together, completing their research and drafting the legislation in from 10 to 100 working hours.

The student volunters worked closely with Ann Arbor city offcials in drafting a gun control bill adopted by the city last spring.

They also have drawn up a proposed ordinance which would require local retailers to cooperate in the collection of nonreturnable bottles, which the city would distribute to glass recycling centers.

KERSHNER-ROWE COMMENTARY

By Howard Kershner and Edward Rowe

Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia has said:

"I believe in a meritocracy. Our policy is a government in Rhodesia based on merit, where people won't worry whether you are African or European. Our policy is that people eventually won't look at you and say you are a Black Rhodesian or a White Rhodesian, but that you are the best man for the job."

This doesn't look like white domination and oppression. It looks like recognition of ability as rapidly as it develops. It is a common-sense program of recognizing quality wherever it appears and entrusting it with responsibility and recognition.

An increasing number of the blacks vote every year. Their incomes are rising and many of them are now paying substanial sums in taxes.

The black votes on exactly the same qualifications as the whites, namely, ownership of a minimum of property, a steady job paying around $100 a month or four years of common school education. Who would want the voting qualifications to be lower for blacks or white ? Who can doubt that as blacks gain more education and more skill, they will participate more and more in the affairs of government. No job is barred to them by reason of race. Quality is the only standard.

The Rhodesian government is very intelligent in maintaining certain minimal standards for both blacks and whites as a necessary qualification for holding responsible positions in government, educational and cultural activities.

BENTONVILLE, Ark. -- Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. reported higher sales and earnings for the third quarter and the first nine months of the fiscal year ending October 31, 1970. According to Sam M. Walton, president of the discount department store chain, earnings for the first nine months ending Oct. 31, were up 32 per cent over the comparable period of 1969 while third quarter figures showed an increase of 31 per cent over last year.

POLLY'S POINTERS

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Jeanne who has trouble grating orange and lemon peel that she should grate such fruit while it is whole and have no more trouble with scraped knuckles. Grate all around the lemon or orange but be sure not to go down to the pulp. She can then cut the fruit and squeeze out the juice.—DOT

DEAR POLLY—Jeanne will have no more trouble grating lemon peel if she cuts the lemon, or an orange, in half and then squeezes out the juice. Put the outer skin in a plastic container and store in the freezer compartment of the refrigerator. It is well to keep some on hand but, if not, do this a day ahead of the time needed. When frozen the peel grates much faster and easier. I keep an inexpensive toothbrush in my kitchen drawer to use for cleaning the grater so I have no problems. I never discard lemon or orange rinds and always have some frozen ones on hand.—CONNIE

DEAR POLLY—I find the writing I do with many ballpoint pens is splotchy. I hope some reader can tell me what causes this and what I can do to prevent it.—MRS. P. L. B.

DEAR POLLY—When I saw patterned queen-sized sheets advertised as a "special," I bought four to use as top sheets for double-beds but, lo and behold, the crazy-quilt pattern of these sheets was just darling as a spread. I dug out some old ruffled pillow shams which matched perfectly even though the sheets were long enough to tuck in under the pillows. Such sheets were cheaper than spreads, washable, no-iron, lighter weight. So many pretty prints are available that it is no trouble to find a pattern appropriate for any bedroom decor. I would advise anyone trying this idea to get the king size for double beds and queen size for twin beds.—SUE

DEAR POLLY—Hope you don't object to a man commenting for your column. (Polly's note—We love it.) I like to cook but hate cleaning up. When trying to clean crusted or burned surfaces I have found that one of those ammoniated household cleaners cuts through quicker and easier than soaking in a dishwashing detergent.—A. G. H.

Share your favorite homemaking ideas.. and send them to her in care of The Daily Sikeston Standard. You'll receive a bright, new silver dollar if Polly uses your idea in Polly's Pointers.

Plea Ruling Hints New Court Turn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has given its first clear indication that President Nixon may be able to count on his kind of criminal law decisions.

A 6-3 ruling Monday on the first important criminal case of the term upheld guilty pleas from defendants who insist they are innocent.

In what may become a pattern, the three solid liberals remaining from the Warren court found themselves in a losing bloc. They are William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall.

The case was the first important vote for Justice Harry A. Blackmun, who sided with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and the five other justices.

The ruling dealt with a Winston-Salem, N.C., man, Henry C. Alford, who pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in 1963 rather than face a jury and a possible death sentence on first-degree murder charges.

Alford insisted he was innocent but was pleading guilty only to rule out a death penalty. He was sentenced by the judge to 30 years.

The Supreme Court decision keeps him on a North Carolina prison farm instead of in a courtroom fighting at a new trial for his freedom. The U.S. Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., had held Alford was entitled to a new trial.

Plea bargaining is a useful technique for cutting down on trials and the bother they cause. Whether such pleas are really voluntary is a subject that has divided lower courts.

Brennan, Douglas and Marshall said pleas like Alford's are a product of duress and should not be accepted. But the majority, through Justice Byron R. White, called that argument "an exercise in arid logic."

The ruling appears to run counter to a 1968 decision invalidating the federal kidnaping law's death penalty provision. Then, by a 6-2 vote, the court said defendants were being forced to plead guilty since only a jury could sentence them to death.

Two members of that majority, Earl Warren and Abe Fortas, are gone. Two others, Potter Stewart and John M. Harlan, teamed up with the 1968 dissenters, White and Hugo L. Black, and with the two Nixon men, Burger and Blackmun, to produce the guilty plea decision.

Malone and Hyde To Pay 11 Cents

MEMPHIS — J. R. Hyde III, president of Malone & Hyde, announced today that the board of directors has declared an 11 cent per share quarterly cash dividend payable Jan. 15, 1971 to stockholders of record as of Dec. 23, 1970.

Embargo Put On K.C. Grain Shipments

KANSAS CITY (AP)—An embargo has been placed on all grain shipments requiring inspection in Kansas City because of a strike by grain inspectors.

William Mahoney, district transportation officer for the Association of American Railroads, said the embargo will continue until the dispute is settled. He said it was ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The embargo applies only to railroad yards in Kansas City, Mo., and does not affect Kansas City, Kan.

All six Kansas City, Mo., inspectors and a trainee turned in their licenses Friday, demanding higher pay. Twelve other state employes among the 73 in the grain inspection department went out with them.

Robert C. O'Brien, president of the Kansas City Board of Trade, said about 400 carloads of wheat, corn and soybeans were expected to arrive today, most of them destined for the Missouri yards.

Three out-of-town inspectors sent to Kansas City won't be able to handle all the work, O'Brien said. He said some shipments might be diverted elsewhere.

A spokesman for the inspectors said "Missouri inspectors get $650 a month and in Kansas they get from $704 to $856. The five-year man in Kansas also draws $10 an hour for overtime. Our man would just get his straight salary."

Dexter Davis, Missouri agriculture commissioner, spent the weekend in Kansas City trying to negotiate a settlement.

Armed Forces

SEOUL, Republic of Korea — U.S. Air Force First Lt. James W. Overall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Blois G. Overall, Route two, Kennett, Mo., has arrived for duty at Yongsan, Republic of Korea.

Lieutenant Overall, a weather officer, is assigned to a unit of the air weather service. He previously served at Columbus Air Force Base, Miss.

The lieutenant was commissioned in 1967 upon completion of Officer Training School at Lackland AFB, Tex.

A 1962 graduate of Holcomb, Mo., high school, he received his Bachelor of Science degree in mathematics in 1966 from Southeast Missouri State College, in Cape Girardeau. He also attended Texas A&M University at College Station.

Lieutenant Overall's wife, Mary, is the daughter of Mrs. Eileen Sewald, 417B Lake St., Sikeston, Mo.

HAMPTON, Va. — Airman First Class Larry V. Odom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn L. Odom of 726 Mitchell St., New Madrid, Mo., has arrived for duty at Langley AFB, Va.

Airman Odom, an administrative specialist, is assigned to a unit of the Aerospace Defense Command. He previously served at Cross City Air Force Station, Fla.

The airman, a 1967 graduate of New Madrid R-6 high school, attended Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau.

Arson Suspected In MU Fires

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Two fires about four hours apart Sunday damaged Lefevre Hall at the University of Missouri and fire chief Max Woods said arson was suspected.

The fires occured in opposite ends of the building, which houses the biology department. Some books and research papers of students and professors were destroyed.

Volpe Proposes 14-City Rail Passenger Network

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe Monday proposed 14 cities for service from the new quasi-government corporation set up to rescue failing rail passenger lines.

The cities included form a national network but exclude from mandatory service such major metropolitan areas as Denver, Minneapolis, Atlanta and Phoenix.

"We have made what I think are rational reductions in the existing and unintegrated passenger train service," Volpe said. "But we have done this with the view toward organizing it into a cohesive system and making it a financial success."

The cities recommended would be served by the National Railroad Passenger Corporation, commonly called Railpax. It will assume management May 1, 1971 of medium and long distance passenger runs unwanted by the nation's railroads.

Congress, the Interstate Commerce Commission, state railroad commissions, and representatives of railway management and labor have 30 days to comment on the proposed national system. Volpe must designate a final system 30 days later.

Volpe recommended the following city-pairs for service: Boston to New York, Washington to New York, New York to Buffalo, Detroit to Chicago, Chicago to Cincinnati, St. Louis to Chicago, New York to Miami, Chicago to Miami, New York to New Orleans, New York to Chicago, Washington St. Louis, Chicago to Houston, Chicago to New Orleans, Seattle to Chicago, San Francisco to Chicago, and Los Angeles to Chicago.

Carl L. Lyon, acting chief of the Federal Railroad Administration, said the new corporation will improve services but reduce the number of trains.

"Railpax is a way of revitalizing passenger service at a lower level than now but saving something we can build on in the future.

"There will be fewer intercity trains than the current 376 but those remaining will be a great deal better," he said in an interview.

The trains, Lyon said, will be cleaner and newer, run faster and on time and include more sleeping and dining accommodations.

In addition, he said, the national system will allow better connecting service and computerized ticketing, information and reservations.

"We hope to attract some of those who are now flying or driving between cities by the comfort and high speed," Lyon said.

Congress patterned Railpax after the successful Communications Satellite Corp., to take over passenger routes for creation of a national system.
